LANDIS SMASHES BUILDING TRUST IN COOK COUNTY

Opens Way for Bids from Outside.

Gates of the building industry in Chicago and Cook county as a whole, which for years had been closed to all but contractors having offices here, were swung wide open yesterday by Judge K. M. Landis, arbitrator of the building trades controversy. The absolute monopoly that was a stone wall to "outsiders" is at an end.

Not only will building associations not interfere with contractors from beyond the county limits, but they will, according to pledges made Judge Landis, aid them as well.

This, in substance, was an announcement made following a conference yesterday to which Judge Landis summoned representatives of the Building Construction Employers' association and the Associated Builders.

Would End "Building Trust."

If the performance is as good as the promise, an alleged combination in restraint of trade that during the present building graft investigation has resulted in scores of indictments against Chicago contractors, material men, and union labor leaders, will be dissolved.

In agreeing to meet openly any and all competition, officials of the two associations told Judge Landis the only stipulations they wished was one providing that every contractor become a member of either organization, paying the regular initiation fee. All privileges, including that of arbitration in the event of labor trouble, are to be extended the outsider.

Depended on "Collusion."

The building monopoly in Cook county, centering in Chicago, has depended largely upon collusion among contractors, material men, and union leaders, according to evidence submitted to the Dailey building graft commission, which is to resume its investigation early next month. The disclosures resulted in 157 federal indictments and scores of state indictments. Testimony had been introduced to show that all prices were fixed for Cook county contractors; that, if an outsider underbid and was awarded the contract for building in the county, he could not obtain labor, or, if he did, he would have trouble, and that building material not made here could not be used.

Blocked Building Operations.

In connection with these charges is the following, contained in an official report issued by the Dailey committee June 29 last:

"The opinion expressed by many witnesses is that the artificial burdens placed upon building by crooked business agents and criminal associations connected with the building industry have increased the cost of building in Chicago at least 30 per cent. These agencies are largely responsible for the housing shortage in Chicago, the almost complete cessation of building, and increased rentals."

Following the decision of the builders, Judge Landis held a conference with the officials of the slate and the tile roofers' union and objected to the clause in their agreement providing that an apprentice shall serve four years before he is entitled to a journeyman's card.

For Short Apprenticeship.

"I think that four years is too long," said the judge. "Why, last summer another man and myself put a new roof on the kitchen of my summer home in Michigan. And even if I do say it myself, that roof was a peach."

"You had better look out, judge, or you'll be getting yourself fined," interposed Tom Kearney, head of the building trades council. The judge, however, said he wasn't afraid, as the work he had done was out of the jurisdiction of the building trades. The apprenticeship of the roofers wasn't changed, though.

TAR AND FEATHER BEAUMONT MAN

Beaumont, Tex., Aug. 27.—J. W. Borden, an electrican, was taken from the office of the Silsbee Bee, at Silsbee, late last night by several masked men and carried into the country in an automobile where he was tarred, feathered, and whipped, according to a word received here today from the sheriff of Hardin county.

Borden was later brought back to Silsbee and dumped out on the main street. Ten men are thought to have been in the party.

Borden was said to have gone into the newspaper office on business. No reason has been assigned for the attack.

Hurls Girl to Safety; Stays to Be Crushed

WILLIAM LEONHARDT.

LOUISE SOMMER.
[Celebrity Photo.]

Bandaged and just recovering consciousness, William Leonhardt, 4224 South Tallman avenue, lay in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, last night. He was in great pain, but he was happy.

Leonhardt was happy because beside his bed, with a hand in his, sat the girl he had saved earlier in the day just as she was about to be crushed between two interurban cars. He was happy because he was the one crushed.

Were With Picnic Party.

The girl is Miss Louise Sommer, 20 years old, 1310 South Millard avenue. Miss Sommer and Leonhardt, who also is 20 years old, were among hundreds who yesterday attended the annual picnic of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company at Fox River park, Aurora.

The picnickers were piling out of several cars that reached the park at about the same time. Leonhardt and Miss Sommer were among the last to alight. Scores of those who had preceded them were still standing in laughing groups about the cars. But these two started for the park, across the tracks and in the rear of the car they had just left. Miss Sommer was a little in the lead.

Caught Between Cars.

Then it happened. Another car, bearing other merrymakers, crashed into the string of cars that had discharged its passengers. One of the string was shunted forward with great force. And there they were, caught between two cars.

Just for an instant Miss Sommer was in danger. Her escort hurled her from the tracks and into the arms of bystanders. Then he jumped, but too late. He was crushed between the two cars and, it is feared, was internally injured.

Leonhardt was rushed to the Aurora hospital on a flat car. Seated in the dust and rubbage of the work car, in her Sunday best, was Miss Sommer. In her lap, rested the head of the man who had sacrificed himself for her.

EXTRA! SENATE IN REVOLT—OVER HARDING'S CIGARS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—President Harding is facing a real revolt in the senate. The row is brewing over the brand of White House cigars.

Senators who have gone to the White House to transact business or swap information in the tobacco smoke of the President's office have been seen coming out with a stogie stuck between their lips, puffing diligently.

Senator Howard Sutherland, West Virginia, went to the executive offices today to discuss the mine situation. He emerged with a crooked stogie and no sign of smoke. Standing on the steps, he wasted a box of matches, but the weed burned like a rope.

"I don't seem to be able to light this cigar the President gave me," he muttered regretfully.

Mr. Harding and Secretary Mellon, the multimillionaire cabinet member, seem to have no difficulty with their economical form of using tobacco. Mr. Mellon is from Pittsburgh.

GERMAN CRISIS TRAILS SLAYING OF ERZBERGER

Monarchists Blamed for Murder.

BY DONALD STONE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—"Who is next?" is the question being asked by all of Germany following the assassination of Herr Mathias Erzberger at Griesbach yesterday. Nervousness is prevailing throughout the country and fear is expressed that other leaders may fall victims to assassins' bullets.

Chancellor Wirth today called an emergency meeting of the cabinet to which forty leaders of the democratic republicans were summoned.

Some definite program for combating the opposition was determined upon, as the Erzberger assassination is regarded as a definite challenge by the monarchists and pan-Germans to the present government.

Nationalists Accused.

Comment in the radical, democratic socialist, and clerical press is exceedingly bitter, certain papers holding the reactionary nationalist press as directly responsible for the crime.

The Germania, the leading organ of the Catholic party, of which Herr Erzberger was the most prominent member, in an editorial commenting on the assassination says the dead leader was the victim of nationalist agitation.

"We are finally forced to believe in the existence of a nationalist murder organization," says the paper, "which has regularly planned a long list of assassinations of its prominent antagonists."

Point to Other Murders.

The democratic press writes in the same strain and cites innumerable examples from the reactionary press of the last few months in which it alleges the articles tended to incite murder, and goes over a long list of the leading political figures, beginning with Herr Liebknecht, who were assassinated within the last two years.

Freheit, the organ of the independent socialists, openly charges that Dr. Helfferich and President von Kahr of Bavaria, the leaders of the nationalist party, and the reactionary press were directly responsible for the murder. Other radical papers come out openly and threaten revolution.

Communists Enraged.

The Communist paper Red Flag announces that their party is ready at any moment to join the other Socialist parties of Germany, which would make them invincible if unity were secured.

The more moderate expressions of the conservative press disapproves of assassination as a political instrument, but it refuses to acknowledge the political character of the murder.

The Freheit charges that many of the conservative papers show open approval of the deed, holding the German revolution responsible for the introduction of violence into political life.

Assassination "Natural."

The Deutsche Tageblatt, a Pan-German organ, referring to the failure of the attempt to convict Herr Erzberger, says "when justice fails lynch law steps in, and this has always been true and always will be. This man was guilty of high treason in accepting the armistice and his assassination was only natural."

A nationalist demonstration planned for Potsdam tomorrow has been prohibited by the authorities, as they fear that violence will result because of yesterday's event.

It has been announced that Herr Erzberger's funeral will be held in Berlin on Wednesday, when a tremendous popular demonstration is expected.

STIR PARTISAN FURY

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—No single event in post-revolutionary Germany has unleashed partisan fury with such vehemence as the assassination of Mathias Erzberger, which is discussed in Berlin in degrees of passion that apparently know no restraint.

President Ebert has authorized the government to offer a reward of 100,000 marks for the apprehension or information leading to the arrest of the assassin.

The assassination of Erzberger, which is viewed as an abhorrent political murder, and the situation in Munich are regarded as having the aspects of storm signals, the results of which cannot be foretold at this hour. The government has given public expression of its repugnance at the killing of the former vice chancellor, who was a personal friend and a close party colleague of Chancellor Wirth.

Plainfield, Ill., Aug. 27, 3:03 p. m.—[Special.]—Two-thirds of the vote in the special school election is in. Mrs. Hartong has voted. It appears to be unanimous.

BULLETIN.

Plainfield, Ill., Aug. 27, 5:30 p. m.—[Special.]—The returns are still incomplete. The hired man, Edward Strong, can't vote until he finishes the chores.

Plainfield, Ill., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—According to the law, a special election was necessary to determine whether the farm of L. A. Hartong, near here, should be admitted into the consolidated school district. Ten notices were posted. The only qualified voters in the special election district are L. A. Hartong, the election judge, and Mrs. L. A. Hartong, the election clerk, and the hired man. Predictions are that they will certify to August Mowe, superintendent of schools in Will county, that their farm is solidly in favor of annexation.

WOMAN SHOT BY FOILED ROBBERS ON STREET CAR

Miss Margaret Hermann, 3935 Archer avenue, was shot in the left leg last night by one of three well dressed robbers while she was riding on a south bound Archer avenue car at West 39th street. The man escaped. Miss Hermann was taken to the county hospital.

Miss Tina Koch, 6133 Justine street, in the seat next to Miss Hermann, was carrying a bundle. One of the three men tried to seize the bundle and when Miss Hoch clung to it another of the men drew a pistol and fired two shots. One bullet went through the floor of the car and the other wounded Miss Hermann. Screams caused the men to flee.

TYPIST TAKES AIR HONEYMOON AS RICH MAN'S BRIDE

Wins Husband by Aid in Kidnaping.

There won't be any more daily kneading of the typewriter keys for Miss Thelma Wysong, a stenographer for the Home Insurance company, and daughter of Mrs. India Wysong, a widow, 741 Cornelia avenue. Ended are the scribblings in the notebooks. The time clock has lost its tyrannical power.

An army airplane, skimming into the dusk from Michtell field, Long Island, N. Y., last night carried Rutledge Mayo, son of a New York millionaire, and his bride, who three hours before was Miss Wysong, aloft on an aerial honeymoon. They want to Atlantic City. Young Mayo is 22. Miss Wysong is 19 and pretty.

The young stenographer became acquainted with the millionaire's son when she aided him two months ago in recovering his 2½ year old half-sister, Catherine, alleged to have been kidnaped by Mrs. Charlotte Cheatham Mayo, now bringing suit for divorce against his father, Roy Alfred Mayo, president of an ink manufacturing concern.

Aided by His Future Bride.

Rutledge Mayo found the baby in Memphis, Tenn., where he met Miss Wysong, who was visiting there.

They brought the baby to Chicago and later Miss Wysong took the child to New York and returned it to the father, Roy Alfred Mayo. A romance between the younger Mayo and the young stenographer sprang up at that time. It resulted in yesterday's marriage at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

"Rutledge fell madly in love with my daughter," said Mrs. India Wysong last night. "He is a fine, upstanding boy. His father, the elder Mayo, made quite a fuss over her when she brought his baby, Catherine, to him. Thelma took her marriage to the son of a millionaire quite calmly."

Elder Mayo's Life Stormy.

The airplane honeymoon of young Mayo and his bride created another chapter in the stormy and sensational affairs of the Mayo family. Roy Alfred Mayo's wife, in her divorce case now pending in New York, asked $20,000 yearly alimony and $10,000 counsel fees. In a cross bill, Mr. Mayo charged his wife had made three attempts to kill him by poisoning his food.

Then came the recent "drowning" of Mrs. Mayo, which stirred New York and was later characterized by Mayo as a "fake." Her clothes were found in a bathing room at Coney Island. It was said last night she was in Chicago.

"I'm through with women," the elder Mayo is reported to have said. "This is not the first time my wife has tried to scare me. Some time ago I received a message that she had flung herself into Lake Michigan."

Columbia and Star & Garter Are Attacked

Two bombs were exploded this morning, one in the rear of the Columbia theater, near Clark and Madison streets, and the other in the rear of the Star and Garter theater, near Halsted and Madison streets.

The explosions are thought to be the outcome of a labor warfare against the Columbia burlesque wheel.

A week ago the owners of the burlesque wheel decided to do without union stage hands and other employés. Bitter feeling was the result.

At the Columbia theater and the Planters hotel, which are in the same building, a panic resulted. Guests of the hotel came pouring into the lobby. The night clerk was blown out of his chair and slightly hurt.

Chicago Title and Trust Damaged.

Dozens of windows in the Chicago Title and Trust building, which is immediately across the alley from the Columbia theater, were blown out by the force of the explosion.

Police hurrying to the scene found that the bomb evidently was a clockwork mechanism timed to explode simultaneously with the bomb at the Star and Garter.

It was only a few moments after the fright and commotion of the Columbia explosion that a second blast was heard from the west side. Then came the report that the Star and Garter had been bombed.

Police then turning their attention to the new explosion found that a portion of the rear entrance and wall had been torn away and that windows and fixtures had been wrecked in adjoining buildings. The Mid-City bank at the corner of Halsted and Madison streets did not wholly escape.

Big Crowds Gather.

Huge crowds gathered almost instantly about the scene of both explosions. The Columbia is in the heart of the loop. The Star and Garter is in the heart of the West Side business district.

Police lines were thrown about both places, and a search of the wreckage made for possible clews.

Guests in Tony Cesarono's Italian restaurant over the Boston movie theater on Clark street were showered with broken glass. Two of them were injured, but not seriously.

Guests in the Planters hotel were thrown in a panic when the Columbia theater bomb exploded at 12:10 a. m. underneath the gallery entrance in the alley. Windows for a distance of 200 feet were broken. Men and women, half clad, rushed terrified into the lobby of the hotel, where they were reassured by the night clerk.

WOMEN DEMAND AMENDMENT 20 TO CONSTITUTION

MRS. FLORENCE BAYARD HILLER.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Peace will not be established in the American household until all thirty-seven points in the proposed twentieth amendment to the constitution giving women all the legal rights now held by mere men are on the statute books, Mrs. Florence Hilles, new chairman of the Women's party, declared tonight.

Mrs. Hilles successor to Miss Alice Paul, said that a nation-wide campaign was under way to force congress to take cognizance of the proposed amendment upon reconvening next month.

The high spots in the list of thirty-seven points follow:

Right to choose the place of residence, even if married.

Equal liability of husband and wife for the support of the other.

Right to hold public office.

Right to control their own property.

Right to serve on juries.

Right to administer to estates, make contracts, and sue and be sued.

"Women are no longer content to sit at home and allow themselves to be dictated to by their husbands," Mrs. Hilles said. "We are capable of handling the big jobs just as well as the men. At present we are debarred from holding down responsible positions in the political, legal, administrative and medical world—simply because we are women."

Mrs. Hilles is the daughter of the late Thomas F. Bayard, secretary of state in the cabinet of President Cleveland. She led the fight for woman's suffrage in Delaware and was state chairman of the Woman's party before being made national chairman.

NO SEPARATION FOR ERIN, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

Makes Final Plea to End Conflict.

BARNSLEY, England, Aug. 27.—[By Associated Press.]—Great Britain cannot countenance the tearing up of the United Kingdom, said Premier Lloyd George in referring to the Irish question in a speech today. It would mean civil war in Ireland itself, he asserted. He hoped, however, he said, that common sense would prevail.

"I am proud that Great Britain has risen above all prejudices and proposed terms such as have been proposed before," the prime minister said. "They are terms which commend themselves not only to Great Britain, but to the whole civilized world. I trust common sense will prevail.

"Whatever our views are we cannot countenance separation. We can no more countenance the tearing up of the United Kingdom than America could countenance the tearing up of the United States. Severance would lead in Ireland itself to civil war.

Separation Is Impossible.

"If southern Ireland is not satisfied with freedom, then I fear all hope of accommodation must be abandoned. We only want to do what is fair, right, and just. If Ireland has a right to separation, so has Scotland and so has Wales, but no Welsh or Scotch patriot would ever dream of demanding separation.

"I believe that when the Irish people realize the sense of the freedom which is theirs; that all they are asked to do is to come into the proudest community of nations in the world as free men, I believe you will find that that gifted people will realize that their destiny is greater—a free people inside a free federation of peoples."

No Vendetta Can Win.

"Whether it is in public or in private trust, no man can endure who has a vendetta in business or politics, and a nation's vendettas are just the same. It is a sour pasturage of hatred. There is no nourishment, nothing but disappointment, in it. Let us sweep it to one side, whatever it costs, even when there is reason in it."

"I trust common sense will prevail," he said, "and good counsel be heeded. Courage is of two qualities—the higher part is the courage that knows when to settle and face settlement. There is the courage of a man who faces his country's foes to the death; there is the greater courage of a man who, when he sees the time has come for making honorable peace, faces his friends to obloquy.

Split Is Unthinkable.

"Are we to split up this United Kingdom at a moment when its unity of aim, its unity of action, has saved the world when nothing else could have saved it? Are we to choose this moment to begin in Ireland tearing off a bit here, a second bit there, and a third bit there, leaving the empire shattered into fragments, with no vitality, no power, no prestige, no glory and of no use to the world?

"I have been presiding at the imperial conference, where we represented not only the old nations but young nations—Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa—young nations, proud nations, and fearless nations.

"An Australian is as proud of being an Australian as an Englishman is of being an Englishman. But, at the same time, they have a great sense of pride in belonging to this greatest family of nations in the world, known as the British empire."

SURPRISE TO DAIL

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By the Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, Aug. 27.—The publication last night of Prime Minister Lloyd George's reply to Dail Eireann's letter rejecting the British peace proposals came as a surprise to the Dublin leaders, who had not expected to receive the document until noon today. It was telegraphed over the private wire to Dublin castle and handed to Mr. de Valera shortly before 8 p. m., it having been made public in London two hours earlier.

Mr. Lloyd George's reply was given to Mr. de Valera just as he was about to leave Dublin mansion house and the members of Dail Eireann had already left. They had been summoned to a private meeting today, however, and early this morning the republican cabinet met to discuss the document. Later in the day Dail held a secret session, at which the prime minister's letter was discussed, but the utmost secrecy was preserved as to what took place.

Cabinet Given Power.

It was stated that the cabinet was empowered to draft a reply, which it may or may not submit to Dail for approval before sending to London. At the close of today's meeting Dail separated for the week-end, no date for a further meeting being fixed.

The republican leaders to whom I talked this morning were not at all downcast at the tone of Prime Minister Lloyd George's letter, which they regard as a slight advance toward their position. One leader said that he expected that Dail plenipotentiaries would go to London before long.

"It would be unfair to say that this was a distinct advance," a member of the Dail cabinet said this morning, "but in my opinion it is an advance toward an understanding of our position. It by no means constitutes a break in relations."

Important Feature.

A most important feature of the new situation is the fact that Arthur Griffith is now the foreign minister of the republican cabinet, and will be in charge of the negotiations with England. Mr. Griffith is the only man in the Dail cabinet who is not a dreamer to a greater or lesser extent. He is a clear headed business man, who is more concerned with realities than theories, and he is not committed personally to any policy.

Since his release from jail he has refused to discuss the situation publicly and at the open meetings of Dail he has sat like a sphinx.

The first break in his silence was a remark made today.

"You have seen our reply. It states our basic position clearly. If that basis is accepted there will be no need for prolonged negotiations. We can settle the details in a month."

Vital Paragraphs.

In considering the latest correspondence two passages of the letters should be examined carefully. The first is in Dail's letter to Mr. Lloyd George, which says in the final paragraph:

"On the basis of the broad guiding principle of government by the consent of the governed peace can be secured, a peace that will be just and honorable to all and fruitful of concord and enduring amity. To negotiate such a peace Dail Eireann is ready to appoint its representatives and, if your government accepts the principle proposed, to invest them with plenary powers to meet and arrange with you for its application in detail."

In Mr. Lloyd George's letter, after restating the fact that all principles must be modified by geographical and historical facts, he concluded:

"If you are prepared to examine how far these considerations can be reconciled with the aspirations which you represent, I shall be very happy to meet you and your colleagues."

It is also the opinion of careful students of Irish politics and the Lloyd Georgeon forms of expression that the British prime minister has gone a long way toward Gen. Smuts' interpretation of the original offer.

ULSTER APPROVES REPLY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BELFAST, Aug. 27.—The northern unionists fully approve of the tone of Prime Minister Lloyd George's reply to Eamon de Valera's letter.

Mr. Archdale, a member of the northern cabinet, declared that Dail refused to accept the terms because it knew that it would not get Ulster into its hands to spend her hard-earned money as it wished. He declared that Sir James Craig and the members of the cabinet had no idea of giving away even a pin's head of Ulster's rights.

Word was received here from London that Sir James Craig arrived there this afternoon for a conference at the invitation of Mr. Lloyd George.

Lloyd George Scored.

BELFAST, Aug. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Royal Black institution, a branch of the Orange order, held demonstrations throughout Ulster, at which vigorous resolutions were adopted concerning the present Irish negotiations. That adopted at Ballymena, County Antrim, is a fair sample. It said:

"We look with shame upon the humiliating sight of the British prime minister groveling in the dust to rebels and assassins. We congratulate Sir James Craig [the Ulster premier] for having refused to confer with a man calling himself the president of the Irish republic. We tell him that on these lines he has loyal Ulster at his back, and that the day he deviates from this he has ceased to represent the voice of Ulster."

HUSBAND WILL DEFEND WIFE TAKEN AS SLAYER

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 27.—Mrs. William R. Stubbs, who confessed today that she is Maude Moore, wanted in Knoxville, Tenn., for slaying Leroy Harth in 1919, agreed today to accompany her bondsmen to Tennessee, starting tomorrow or Monday.

Mr. Stubbs, her husband—they were married last November—said today he will sell his hotel here and go to Tennessee to defend his wife. He said he did not know until today she was Maude Moore, and she corroborated this.

"Since my flight I told only one person I was Maude Moore," Mrs. Stubbs said, "and that person did not reveal my secret."

RUSSIA IS RED NO LONGER, SAYS SENATOR FRANCE

Big Opportunity for American Trade.

BY JOSEPH IRVING FRANCE.

[United States Senator from Maryland.]
[Copyright: 1921: By the Baltimore Sun.]

ARTICLE NO. 1.

MOSCOW.—[By Mail.]—First of all, let me make it clear that I am not a communist and never have been. Next, that, although I came to Russia primarily to study communism on its native heath, I find little of it here to study, for the Russians themselves have abandoned communism's most important principles and have this spring and summer moved rapidly toward tried, conservative policies. By means of these policies they are working out their own salvation.

Here, then, are my chief conclusions, based on a month of devoted study, aided most generously by some of the best minds in that remarkable group of men in Moscow:

Russia is no longer "red."

Russia has no designs on the world.

Russia is working hard for reconstruction, and in many fields reconstruction is well advanced.

The present government is not going to collapse.

Russia needs our help, and—

America, to restore our own foreign trade, needs to help Russia, and that without delay.

Quick Trade Convention.

My recommendation to the United States is for the immediate conclusion of a convention under which trade will be encouraged and commissions from each country will proceed overseas to investigate and report back. The result will certainly be diplomatic agreements as well as trade agreements, for no intelligent commission could recommend otherwise.

Our commission to Russia should be like that which Britain sent [and which, by coincidence, I, returning from Russia, met at the Letvian border as the commission was moving into Russia]. It should have bankers, manufacturers, transportation men, economists, and, of course, state department representatives.

Russia's Vital Needs.

Intentionally, I put political recognition as the last step. I think recommendation of this official act will come logically and normally at the end of a few weeks' intelligent examination by a capable commission. But in the meantime it is vital—to us and to Russia alike—that trade starts promptly. Here is what Russia must have without delay in the field of creative equipment alone—that is, not to fill individual needs, but to supply tools with which to create new wealth:

Locomotives	$120,000,000
Metals, tools and machinery	90,000,000
Electrical goods	17,000,000
Chemicals	13,000,000
Miscellaneous	120,000,000
Total creative goods	$360,000,000

These sums represent the very immediate, minimum, imperative needs of Russian industry. I estimate that in the all but immediate future and in other fields Russia will require for the rehabilitation of her railroads and industries and for the general requirements of the people a credit of $2,000,000,000.

To Let America Reap.

When I entered Russia, favoring immediate aid to that unhappy country, I felt that aid should be international—that is, that England, Germany, and France should join America in refinancing Russia. Curiously enough, the Russians whom I regard as best qualified to discuss economics combated this plan, pointing out that if America would have to furnish all the funds anyway, America might properly accept the industrial profit which would attend the sale to Russia.

My purpose in the forthcoming articles is to give America some surprising facts about Russia, in strong contrast to prevailing impressions, and make it clear that the more America helps Russia the more America and the world are helped.

Particularly I shall show that communism is dead, that Russia is swinging steadily toward conservatism, in many cases approaching, from the left, the identical national policies toward which America is moving from the right.

SIZE OF DISARM PARLEY BEGINS TO DAWN ON CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Washington officials today began to grasp the magnitude of the armament and far eastern conferences in point of number of participants.

The British government, responding to informal inquiries, advised the state department that its delegation and accompany staff would number about 100 persons. The Chinese government several days ago informed officials here that its representatives and their attendants probably would total almost a hundred.

The Japanese party, originally fixed at eighty persons, now has grown to at least 150 persons. While Japan's delegates probably will not exceed six, as in the case of the other participating powers, there will be a number of attachés, specialists in finance, railroads, navigation, and administration affairs, in addition to numerous army and navy representatives.

It is understood here that a special steamship and two special railroad trains will be used for the transportation of this Japanese delegation, which at this time promises to be the most numerous of any taking part in the conference.

WHAT'S A SOKOL? YOU CAN LEARN AT BIG PARADE

Editor Explains and Asks Chicago to See Drills.

Chicagoans who still remain a bit uncertain regarding the Czecho-Slovakian Sokol being held here, and interested enough in it to find out, can satisfy their curiosity by attending the huge parade to take place today.

The parade will begin at Ashland avenue and 18th street. It will proceed north to Jackson street, east to Michigan avenue, and then south to the Coliseum, reaching there at 2:30 p. m. The athletic exercises are due to begin a half hour later.

Weird Views of a Sokol.

R. J. Psenka, editor of the Bohemian Daily Svornosta, reports a multitude of questions, some serious, some ridiculous, that have been sent in to his paper. Among them, he says, are these: "What is a Sokol?" "Why does it wear a red shirt?" "What has it got to do with Emperor Joseph II.?" and the like.

Sokol, explained the editor, is Czech for falcon. The purpose of the organization is "to fortify the resistance of the race" by a system of physical and moral culture. He pointed out that of all the American Sokols that enlisted in the army, not one was rejected for disability.

At the Coliseum today, seventy Sokols will preen their feathers and show the result of their training to those less physically fit.

Order Founded 100 Years Ago.

The order was founded in Bohemia about 100 years ago. It has spread rapidly throughout Czecho-Slovakia. There are at present 16,000 Sokols in America, the first coming here in 1848. Its extensive system of drills is altogether anti-militaristic.

The competition here is being waged for honor, not for prizes, between Sokols from New York, St. Louis, Omaha, Cleveland, and numerous other Bohemian centers.

Among the speakers at the festivities today will be Senator Vaclav Klofac, heading a foreign delegation; Dr. Dedrich Stepanek, Czecho-Slovakian minister at Washington, who arrived in Chicago late yesterday with his sister, Mlle. Anna Stepanek, and Anton Miller, chairman of the arrangement committee.

SEND DEPUTIES, ENLIST GUARDS, TO HALT MINERS

Welch, W. Va., Aug. 27.—Chief Deputy Sheriff Duggeon announced here this afternoon that 400 deputy sheriffs and volunteers had left here in automobiles for Logan county under command of Sheriff W. E. Hatfield of McDowell county. Their route, he said, would take them through Wyoming county and they should reach Logan by nightfall.

Deputy Duggeon said that the force had been organized at the request of Gov. Morgan and Sheriff Chafin of Logan county. He said he did not know just why the emergency call had been sent out. The force, Mr. Duggeon added, was made up of business men, farmers, and miners from the unorganized field, most of them being miners.

Mr. Duggeon said his latest information from Logan was that the miners were still advancing and that fighting was going on.

LEADERS FIGHT NATIONAL STRIKE OF RAIL LABOR

Ohio Walkout May Lead Others Out, Is Fear.

With an unauthorized walkout of Pennsylvania railway shopmen in Cincinnati, O., early in the day, Chicago rail union leaders were kept busy last night in an effort to prevent runaway strikes at other points throughout the country.

Dissatisfaction with the recent order of the railroad labor board cutting the rate of overtime pay it was feared might result in a nation-wide outlaw strike today.

However, the situation was well in hand at a late hour, according to B. M. Jewell, president of railway employés' department of the American Federation of Labor. He said he believed the Cincinnati shopmen would return to work.

Arrange Peace Meet.

"Within a few minutes after our office was informed of trouble in Cincinnati," said Mr. Jewell, "We had three men from nearby cities headed that way. Their instructions were to get the men back on the job, leaving the settlement of grievances to proper authorities.

"I heard from two of these men this afternoon, after they arrived in Cincinnati. They had arranged a meeting and believed the shopmen would return to work. The walkout was absolutely unauthorized."

Mr. Jewell denied the statement by the union officials issued Friday had influenced the Cincinnati man.

"If they had paid any attention to the statement, they would not have walked off the job," he said, "because that was the one thing we warned against. We informed our membership we had decided to reject the overtime rules promulgated by the labor board, but we cautioned against 'stoppage of work' until such time as we had opportunity to seek reasonable concessions from railway officials."

Resent Sunday Wage Cut.

The shopmen, as well as other classes of railway employés, have expressed particular resentment against the rule depriving men regularly assigned to necessary work on Sundays and holidays of the time and one-half pay they have received heretofore.

Although no official announcement was made, it has been freely reported that a strike vote taken by the Federated Shop crafts several weeks ago in connection with the wage reduction effective June 30 favored a walkout.

The four big brotherhoods and the switchmen's union will take a strike vote on the wage cut Sept. 1.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR NEW YORK'S SUBWAY LINES

New York, Aug. 27.—A receivership for the Interborough Rapid Transit company, which operates most of Manhattan's subway and elevated lines and some subways in Brooklyn, was sought in a suit filed in the federal court today by the American Brake Shoe and Foundry company, which has a claim of $57,074.

Other large traction companies operating in Greater New York have been in receiverships for some time. All efforts to increase fares above 5 cents have failed.

The bill of complaint against the Interborough states that it owes more than $3,000,000 for material, equipment, taxes, and supplies, and is unable to pay. It is declared that a receivership is necessary, not only to protect creditors but to continue the operation of subway and elevated lines.

The Interborough company in a statement expressed the hope that its notes maturing Sept. 1 would be extended and that a receivership might be averted.

DAWES BOARDS HIT AT SHIPPING BOARD METHODS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Budget Director Dawes today took action to check an alleged waste of millions in shipping board operations. Announcement was made that the purchase of supplies for shipping board vessels, now costing about $65,000,000 a year, and the sale of surplus supplies of the board, totaling about $200,000,000, was taken from the board and placed under the control of the budget director.

Under orders from the president, all new supplies for the board's ships will be purchased by the general purchasing board recently organized by Dawes. All surplus supplies will be liquidated through the new liquidation board.

Park Policemen Quell Hard Liquor Rioters

Three west park policemen with drawn revolvers quelled a Saturday night free for all battle at 18th place and South Robey street last night. The riot began when B. J. Dembowsky, 21, 2031 West 18th place, said to have been drinking moonshine, slashed the tires on the motorcycle of Adam Bartor, 27, 2227 South Wood street. Bartor protested. Dembowsky whipped his knife across Bartor's fingers and nearly severed three. Joseph Girkowski, 816 Milwaukee avenue, thumped a beer bottle over Dembowsky's head. Then everybody joined in.

GIVES TWICE THE HEAT WITHOUT COAL OR WOOD.
New Burner Burns Oil in Any Stove—Cheaper than Coal or Wood.

A wonderful new burner which works in any coal or wood stove is the proud achievement of the International Heating Company, 4552 N. Broadway, Dept. 104, St. Louis, Mo. This remarkably simple and inexpensive invention heats stove and oven in half the time and does away with all the dirt, ashes, and drudgery of using coal or wood. It gives one of the hottest and quickest fires known, controlled by a simple valve. It is absolutely safe and can be put into any stove in a few minutes. The recent big cut in the price of oil makes it a great money saver. The manufacturers offer to send this remarkable invention on 30 days' trial to any reader of this paper. They are making a special low price offer to one user in each locality to whom they can refer new customers. They also want agents. Write them today.—Adv.

WASHINGTON NEWS
—IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 27.

Senator Penrose, chairman of the finance committee, gave definite assurance today that the new revenue bill would be ready to report to the senate on Sept. 21.

Western manufacturers of magnesite, an industry which gained a domestic foothold during the war, appealed to the senate finance committee today for protection, which they say is necessary to maintain a high standard of quality in the industry.

Charges made against Henry Lincoln Johnson, Negro political leader of the south, who was nominated by President Harding to be recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, have caused the senate committee to recall the nomination from the senate calendar, and Johnson is in a critical physical condition, having sustained a paralytic stroke.

Decision on appeals for general amnesty of political prisoners, including the case of Eugene V. Debs, will not be made until the peace treaty has been ratified, the attorney general announced.

Representatives of western roads told the I. C. C. today that the railroads are in no financial condition to accept proposed rate reductions on grain and grain products and hay.

Bituminous coal production for 1921, according to the Geological Survey, is 83,000,000 tons short of the record for 1920.

5 Killed When Train Hits Auto Near La Harpe

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 27.—Five persons were killed when their automobile was struck by a T., P. & W. passenger train at La Harpe, Ill., twenty miles south of Burlington, at noon today.

Those reported dead are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Miller, Bettendorf, Ia.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Egge, Albany, Ill., and Mrs. William Blean, Albany, Ill.

Mr. Miller was cashier of the Rock Island Sash and Door works.

Woman Accepts Auto Ride; Attacked by the Occupants

Mrs. Helen Wade, 19 years old, 1222 West Jackson boulevard, and a mother of a 2 year old son, was attacked in the forest preserve yesterday and is in a serious condition at her home. It was said she accepted an invitation to go home from a dance at the Curtis Gardens with three men in an automobile, and the attack followed.

He will be succeeded by E. H. Ockert, who served for five years as physical director for the Savannah, Ga., Y. M. C. A. The Chicago Boys' club, which maintains five houses in the city and a summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind., was founded in 1901 to help the underprivileged lads of the big town.

Grace Plunkett Seeks Whereabouts of Sister

Miss Grace Plunkett, 7139 Woodlawn avenue, has asked THE TRIBUNE's aid in her search for her only sister, Bertha M. Burgess, whom she has not seen for six years. The sister had been living with adopted parents in Sioux City, Ia., but Miss Plunkett believes she has married and is living in Milwaukee.

MARRY POOR, GET RICH AFTERWARD; SIMPLE, IS IT NOT?

Ten Tips by Buyer of the Patten Home.

"When should a young man marry?" repeated Thomas C. Russell, thoughtfully tamping down the tobacco in his corn cob pipe. "Why, I'll tell you: When he's in love with a fine girl and he's broke. That's the time for him to marry."

Such was Mr. Russell's program. When he was married to Miss Mabel Chittick of Oak Park in April, 1916, he hadn't any money to speak of. They went to live in a $15 a month flat. In the five years that followed he became wealthy, and now the Russells and their two boys, Thomas Jr., 4, and Howard, 3, are going to move into the Henry J. Patten mansion, which Mr. Russell has just bought, it is said, for $100,000.

"Tom" Russell graduated from Northwestern university's liberal arts course in 1911 and found he was broke. He had made his way through college by working nights in the shops of the Evanston Public Service company. One night he made an electrical repair at the Patten home, which extends from Judson avenue to Forest avenue on Davis street, Evanston.

Takes a Resolve.

"Some day I'll move in here with my girl," he resolved.

He started a small electrical shop, went broke, married, and began again. He invented electric hair curlers, electric blankets, and electric toasters. His business has increased until today he owns a factory on the west side.

Mr. Russell was romping with his two sons on the lounge in the library of his present home at 1418 Howard street, Evanston, last night, when a visitor called.

"There's lots of young chaps down in the loop, Mr. Russell, who ache to make good," said the visitors. "They're toiling away in banks, offices, and stores, ambitious to jump ahead, but stumped to know how. Won't you give 'em a few pointers?"

Tips for the Ambitious.

Here are Mr. Russell's success "tips":

1. Live within your means.
2. Save at least a third of your week's wages.
3. Marry a wholesome girl, even if you're broke, and steer clear of the cabaret vamps, the toddle dancers, the rouged "cuties."
4. Establish a good reputation. It is a business asset.
5. Play fair with every one.
6. Be satisfied with a fair profit or an honest wage.
7. Find out what your competitors are doing, then do the opposite.
8. Follow your hunches.
9. Say "no" or "yes" quickly on business decisions.
10. Own your home.

Mr. Russell is 33 years old. He will move his family into the Patten home in ten days.

IMMIGRANTS ARE ROBBED BY SHIP FIRM—LASKER

Hits Men He Took 9 Vessels From.

New York, Aug. 27.—Charges that the United States Mail Steamship company had diverted through prior uses $1,200,000 obtained from immigrants were made today by Chairman Lasker of the shipping board after the government had regained possession of nine ships originaly chartered by the company.

Mr. Lasker announced that, with the vessels restored to the board by court order, they would be operated by a special committee until the board decided whether to sell them or charter them to another company.

He declared that the $1,200,000 represented advance money collected from immigrants for passage, hotel expenses, railroad fares and immigration head taxes, and that decision temporarily to operate the vessels as a patriotic service was reached because "the government feels that it could not permit fraud and hardships to be worked on thousands of immigrants." Diversion of the funds, he asserted, was an "unconscionable act."

Fight Began Last Month.

The fight for possession of the nine vessels has been in progress since they were seized by the board last month on the ground of nonpayment of rental. The company temporarily regained possession of the ships through injunction proceedings, but when the case came up today before Federal Judge Manton he ordered receivers for the company, appointed after the seizure, to return the craft to the board. The receivers requested that the decree be issued and informed the court that they intended to dispose of the company's assets for the benefit of creditors.

The committee which will operate the vessels comprises W. Averill Harriman, Kermit Roosevelt, and A. V. Moore, who will serve without compensation. Mr. Lasker in his statement declared that the board had started its action "to maintain the American flag flying on the seas and to protect innocent immigrants who we discocered were being fleeced."

It's Up to Americans.

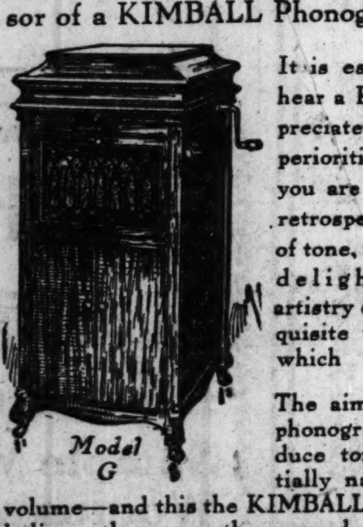
"No so-called 'alien shipping' interests will be permitted to drive the American flag from the seas—not so long as American citizens are willing and able to operate American ships for Americans," Mr. Lasker added.

The nine vessels which Judge Manton ordered returned to the government are former German liners.

The Agamemnon, Susquehanna, President Grant, and America now are in New York; the George Washington and Princess Matoika bound for this port; the Mount Vernon in Boston; the Potomac in Bremen, and the Pocahontas in Naples.

Wealthy Citizen's Body Found Under Rock Pile

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 27.—Buried underneath a large pile of rock five miles from Harriman, the body of Rice Edwards, wealthy citizen of Roane county, was found late last night by Chief of Police Roberts of Harriman. He had been missing four weeks. Six suspects have been arrested.



KIMBALL PHONOGRAPHS

AN ERA OF MUSIC
—We live today in an era of music—of many and strange kinds.

THE plaintive strains of island instruments, the half-wail of pagan chants—the classical bars of opera—famous orchestras and bands—these and others are at the command of the proud possessor of a KIMBALL Phonograph.

Model G

It is essential that you hear a KIMBALL to appreciate its manifold superiorities, and while you are charmed in the retrospect by its truth of tone, your eyes will be delighted with the artistry of design and exquisite workmanship which it portrays.

The aim of the modern phonograph is to reproduce tone in its essentially natural color and volume—and this the KIMBALL does, better, we believe, than any other reproducing instrument.

Variety of console and upright models, reasonably priced. Come in for a demonstration.

GERMANY HAPPY OVER PEACE WITH U. S., SAYS EBERT

Wants a Quick Return of Old Good Will.

BY DONALD STONE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—"It is a happy event for us that Germany has once more arrived at a state of peace with America," said President Ebert of the German republic today in an exclusive interview granted to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on the subject of the signing of the peace treaty between the two nations.

"Germany and America in peace maintained close and important economic relations and communications which became especially lively through numerous bonds of kinship and friendship created by the large emigration of Germans to America.

Want Bonds Renewed.

"We hope that these vital economic and personal bonds will again resume their former magnitude and that they will contribute to the welfare of both great nations. Whatever can be accomplished by the German goverment and myself personally to attain this object will be fulfilled."

In his interview President Ebert, who will go down in fame and story in Germany as the first president of the republic, came out of a long retirement and expressed his unquestionable confidence in the security of the German republic.

Democracy Only Hope.

With few preliminary comments and without reservation he answered simply and directly all the questions put to him. Outlining the growth and development of the democratic republican spirit, he said:

"Following our military breakdown, the German people, with comparatively few exceptions, counted on a democratic government as the only hope for a bearable peace and the possibility of saving Germany.

"We accepted the armistice on the basis of President Wilson's fourteen points, but the peace treaty following the armistice was a great disappointment to Germans of all classes and a blow to democracy. Reaction, which for a long time was afraid to raise its head, came into the open again, taking advantage of all the difficulties placed in the path of the young republic by the peace treaty.

"The reactionaries are trying to make the present democratic system and the present democratic government responsible for all of Germany's difficulties. Nevertheless, at the present time, the great majority of people, from the workers to the middle classes, unquestionably favor the republic."

Replying to my question as to what was his estimate of the most valuable accomplishments of the German republic, President Ebert said:

"The greatest advantages secured by democracy have been in the field of social legislation. We have secured an eight hour day for workers in all fields. The law for workmen's councils creates a sort of constitution for all plants. Other achievements in the same field are government relief for the unemployed, for young mothers, and babies' settlements for city workers, and government control for homing arrangements to meet the extra housing needs.

"The most remarkable improvement has been secured for agricultural laborers, who have been granted an average of an eight hour working day, and, like the men in the industrial plants, all working conditions are settled by tariff agreements.

Workmen Save Nation.

"Politically the greatest achievement has been the success in maintaining the unity of the German nation, which has been saved through the loyalty of the German workmen who appreciate the value of the new democracy. This was especially seen in the plebiscites in north Schleswig, East Prussia, and Upper Silesia."

"But do you have no conviction that the democratic government in Germany has secured a more conciliatory spirit on the part of the entente?" I asked.

"The entente claimed that the war was a struggle for democracy and the right of self-determination," he replied, "but until now we have not noticed it. We have a peace treaty that makes life a burden for us all."

G. O. P. Repudiates Dems' Promises to War Workmen

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Pledges made by the Democratic administration for additional pay to munition workers for haste in turning out guns for which Gen. Pershing was sending urgent appeals in 1918, have been repudiated by the Republicans. Acting Secretary of War Wainwright today rejected claims of former employés of the Bethlehem Steel company for more than $1,500,000 in back pay.

The case, pending for nearly three years, involves some 38,000 men. Many are said to be destitute as a result of slackness in the steel industry. The claims grew out of a decision of the war labor board awarding wage increases when such appeared necessary to keep shops working at capacity on important war orders.

BADGER BADGERS BADGERS; PUTS 'EM IN A CELL

Same old badger game:

William Silver, commercial traveler from N'Yawk, is vamped by a gal named Mabel Fox—also known as Maybelle Statsney. He goes to her apartment at 4642 Kenmore avenue. Two men enter—one the "wronged husband," the other "Detective Hogan."

"Aha! Now I have me grounds for divorce. All I want from you, woman, is the $150 I gave you this a. m."

"I went and spent it."

"On this guy, hey?" indicating Silver. "You'll have to pay it over, old man, or I'll have you arrested."

The badder had only $20, but he promised to pay the balance at his hotel next day. Meanwhile he did some thinking. When the "wronged husband" finally appeared yesterday he was greeted by Detectives Kennedy, Freeman, and Bullard, none of whom have to have quotation marks around their title. Now Mabel and John Fox occupy cells in the detective bureau.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In Sunday's society page a caption refers to Miss Barbara Granger's engagement to Alfred Cowles Jr. The announcement should read "Thomas H. Cowles."

In yesterday's TRIBUNE Frank M. Fairfield, a member of the board of directors of the Anti-Cigaret league, was quoted as saying that some members of the board smoked cigarets. Mr. Fairfield told the reporter that some of the members smoked cigars, not cigarets.

In reporting the death of Charles Benham, 715 Oakwood boulevard, in an automobile accident, a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE declared that he and his companions were intoxicated at the time. The minutes of the coroner's inquest show that no such statement was made.

The account in the paper of Aug. 19 regarding the indictment of members of the Bakers and Confectioners' union mentioned the name of Julius Roth. Numerous friends of a Julius Roth of 901 North Ashland avenue, owner of the Augusta bakery, have been under the impression that he was indicted. Mr. Roth wishes it known that he is not the man.

BLAMES PACKERS FOR HIGH PRICES OF MEAT IN N. Y.

New York, Aug. 27.—Charges that Chicago packers control the stalls in public markets here and combine to keep prices high were made public today in connection with a controversy between city officials and a legislative committee which has obtained evidence of graft paid to city employés by tenants of markets.

Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield of the Hylan administration, gave out testimony given before him by Raymond Smith, who said he was an agent for the American National Live Stock association and a former federal trade commission investigator.

Mr. Smith declared Chicago packing interests had organized the stall holders to destroy the department of public markets, and he said one of the legislative committee's counsel was head of the legal talent retained by Chicago packers for the protection of their interests and those of the stall holders.

NAME 44 MORE IN FRENCH'S HIGH FINANCE SCHEME

Hold Leader and 7 Aids to the Grand Jury.

Indictments against at least 44 persons, believed by federal officials to be agents of Charles W. French, will be asked of the Seutember federal grand jury, it was learned last night.

Those named will include prominent business men from Akron, Cleveland, Canton, Mantua, Dayton and Lorain, O.; Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Chicago and other cities.

French and seven of his alleged aids were arraigned before United States Commissioner James R. Glass yesterday. French was held in $15,000 bonds; the others were held in $5,000 bonds each.

Zebulon W. Davis, president of the Diamond Portland Cement company and director of the Wintor Motor company of Cleveland, was arrested yesterday and held in $25,000 bonds. He has been carrying that sum in Liberty bonds in his pocket for three days awaiting the arrest, it was learned.

More Evidence from Cleveland.

With the arrival in Chicago yesterday of John F. Sawken, special agent of the Cleveland branch of the department of justice, further sensational disclosures regarding French's operations were made public. Sawken brought with him, besides $19,050,000 in "securities," the complete letter files of R. K. Strobel and Elmer Gerber of Cleveland. Much of this is correspondence with French.

The letters are in themselves enough to convict French, according to Col. John V. Clinnin, acting United States attorney. Col. Clinnin and Agent Sawken will spend the next three days in checking over the mass of material.

Letters Bare Plot.

In this mass of evidence, letters of French to Strobel bare the "inside" of the "million dollar" check kiting conspiracy which was in operation between agents of the gang for more than four months, it is charged. They show that at one time, although holding almost $50,000,000 in paper, French's cash assets were only $3.81.

They tell in detail of the conspiracy through which French hoped to gain control of a prominent bank in Milwaukee and dispute many claims of Ohio business men who say they had no dealings with French, it is asserted.

Strobel made a full confession of his part in the affair to Col. Clinnin yesterday afternoon. He will appear as a government witness and is expected to give damaging testimony.

One of the men who appears to be becoming deeply involved is James Horace Leet of Mantua. Col. Clinnin said yesterday that he had given Leet "a chance to come clean" and that instead Leet "had lied."

Another Victim Bankrupt.

Another one of the firms which fell victims to French's wiles went bankrupt yesterday. It was the Consolidated Automobile company of Dayton, O. Liabilities of the company were listed at $144,000 and assets at $184,000—of which $84,000 is said to be questionable.

Davis, in an interview yesterday at Cleveland, reiterated his former declarations that he was but a dupe of French in the case. When arraigned before the commissioner he waived examination and immediately after the hearing returned to Canton, where he is said to have put in the remainder of the evening mowing his lawn. He is 75 years old.

With French at his hearing appeared Charles W. Denicke, Chicago steel furniture manufacturer; Rudolph E. Kohn, vice president of the American Rubber company; Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hawkins and J. K. Strobel of Cleveland, James Horace Leet of Mantua, O., and Alva Harshman of Milwaukee. Harshman will be a government witness.

At the same time J. L. Thomas, president and managing director of the Assiniboine Development company, appeared. His case was continued until Sept. 6 to give Col. Clinnin time to import witnesses from Winnipeg, Man.

MILLIONS—IN PAPER

Col. John V. Clinnin gets down to shirtsleeves in the investigation of the French-Worthington high finance affair. On Col. Clinnin's desk are $19,050,000 in "securities" which have been turned over by John H. Sawken of Cleveland, an agent of the department of justice. It is said $8,000,000 of the paper is secured by going concerns able to cover the notes.

Admits Leadership in Big Toledo Holdup, Police Say

New York, Aug. 27.—A confession that he was the leader of the gang that committed a $1,000,000 holdup at the central postoffice in Toledo last February, was attributed by the police today to William Teffrey, also known as "Canada Bill," who is in jail here awaiting trial on charge of robbing a jewelry store.

Miss Irene Leffingwell Married in Wisconsin

Miss Irene Leffingwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Leffingwell of 659 Buckingham place, was married yesterday to Elmer Oetting at the Beaver View hotel in Hartland, Wis. Many Chicagoans were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Stuart B. Edmondson of the Lake Forest Methodist Episcopal church.

2,000 QUARTS OF BOOZE SEIZED IN RAILROAD YARDS

Carload of "Auto Tubes" Spotted by U. S.

About 2,000 quarts of whisky, packed in thirty-four dry goods boxes, billed from New York as "automobile tubes," rewarded the all-night vigil of a dozen prohibition agents yesterday.

The liquor sleuths arrested James Marner, 3605 Greenleaf avenue, and confiscated a freight car in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy yards at 18th and Canal streets, after waiting all Friday night and half of the next morning to capture their prey.

Prohibition Enforcement Officer John Kjellander, who received a tip telling of the car with the contraband cargo, Friday, claims this to be the biggest haul since he has been in office.

Worth Nearly $50,000.

The value of the liquor is between $30,000 and $50,000. It was consigned from the West Chester Tire and Tube company.

The suspicious actions of Marner in the vicinity of the car caused his arrest.

Two trucks were found in the junk yard of Isaac Williams, 1855 South Canal street, in which the sleuths think the liquor was to have been carried away. Williams' two sons, Nathan and Robert, are being held as material witnesses.

"I'm in a tight place," the agents say that Williams told them. "I've got a carload of whisky over there and I can't get it out."

Evidence Against Marner.

Chicago, Burlington and Quincy yard officials told the federal men that Marner had admitted to them of being the consignee of the liquor. The liquor was bottled in bond. It came over the Baltimore and Ohio tracks and was switched to those of the other railroad.

Commissioner James R. Glass set the bonds of Marner at $5,000 and those of the other two at $2,500 apiece. A bondsman appeared later with $5,000 for Marner, but Commissioner Glass had gone home. The three were taken to the county jail.

NO AMNESTY FOR DEBS ET AL. UNTIL PEACE IS SEALED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—President Harding will make no decision on a petition for pardoning Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader serving sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary for counseling resistance to the selective draft, until the peace treaty with Germany is ratified.

This was announced today after Attorney General Daugherty, who has been interested in the Debs case, conferred with the President at the White House today.

It also was stated that all requests for general amnesty for political prisoners would receive no final consideration until peace has actually been accomplished.

Tex May "Test Law" Barring His Fight Film

Fred C. Quimby, producer and joint owner with Tex Rickard of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight pictures, has left for New York to confer with the fight promoter. Mr. Quimby before leaving would not comment on the rebuffs he had met other than to say, "We shall probably test the law."

The Truth About the Chalmers is Worth Learning

The Chalmers is a wonderful performer under practically all driving conditions.

The motor has greater power, greater silence and smoothness, quicker response.

Less fuel and oil are used. Upkeep and replacement charges are generally lower.

This is the truth about the Chalmers as it is today.

The testimony of Chalmers owners confirms these statements.

We will be glad to prove them by a demonstration of the Chalmers.

"STRUCTURALLY WEAK," IS STORY OF ZR-2 DRAMA

Yanks and Britons Agree on Cause of Fall.

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Official corroboration of the sensational charges that the ill-fated dirigible ZR-2 was known to be structurally weak as far back as 1919 made by Frank M. Gorey, former chief machinists' mate, U. S. N., and published exclusively in the Daily News, came from Washington and from both Hull and Howden, England.

Following the order of Admiral W. A. Moffett, head of the United States naval aviation board, for a complete inquiry of the Gorey charges, it became known that an American officer who inspected the ZR-2 at Bedford, England, in 1919, when the ship was being built, reported to Washington that the dirigible was weak and nothing more than an obsolete Zeppelin at that time.

Counted Broken Girders.

It was Gorey and another American, Chief Machinists' Mate James Cullinan, still in England as a member of the ZR-2's crew, who counted the number of girders shattered by the overstrain when the center bag of the ZR-2 was inflated to capacity in the workshop for the first time, according to his story.

Gorey and Cullinan made their report direct to Lieut. Commander Maitland, in command of the American unit in England. Commander Maitland was one of the Americans lost in the wreck. The board of inquiry of the British air service at Howden today had before it evidence to prove that British airmen had repeatedly said they were convinced the ZR-2 would never stand the strain of a trip across the Atlantic.

Gorey charged that English workmen and airmen had repeatedly told the Americans they would never get the airship to the United States.

Briton Blames "Weakness."

Lieut. A. H. Wann of the British air service, commander of the ZR-2 and one of the five survivors of the wreck, lying critically injured in a Hull hospital, swore the disaster was due to structural weakness of the giant dirigible.

It was also brought out today that practically all the British airman who went to their death were martyrs to their duty. They were convinced the ship was unfit and hoped to prove it.

Veterans of the British air service said they would refuse to attempt a flight to America in the ZR-2 because they believed that the ship was too long, and too weak, and the first real strain would prove fatal.

OPEN BRITISH INQUIRY.

BY OTIS SWIFT.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HULL, England, Aug. 27.—Salvage parties are working under electric searchlights tonight to raise the wreck of the ZR-2 in the hopes of finding more bodies of the American and British heroes who lost their lives when the giant airship fell before the action of the strong, sweeping tides and the quicksands make further search useless.

Most of the search has centered on efforts to raise the control car, wherein are supposed to lie clews to the mystery of the crash. Capt. Wann, who is in a hospital, stated that he believes Commander Maxfield and Col. Campbell were in the control car at the time of the fall, but their bodies have not yet been found.

This morning the royal air force inquiry board convened at Howden, but the session was not public. Eyewitnesses and survivors were questioned, but it may be two or three weeks before the inquiry is finished.

To Care for Widows.

All the widows of the American dead will be adequately cared for by the United States navy, according to an assurance given THE TRIBUNE this afternoon by John H. Grout, American consul here. It was said that they would not only get transportation to America if they desired, but they will be pensioned.

Steel caskets have arrived here and the bodies will be shipped to America. Memorial services whereat the United States and Great Britain will be represented will be held in Trinity church, Hull, next Thursday.

Russ Relief Head Denies Friction in Organization

GENEVA, Aug. 27.—Former President Ador of Switzerland, who is president of the joint council for Russian relief, today issued a statement denying the existence of friction between Walter L. Brown, European director of the American relief administration, and Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, high commissioner of the international committee of Russian relief, who has entered Russia. The statement quoted a telegram from Mr. Brown, saying:

"There is no truth whatever in the reports of difference between Dr. Nansen and American relief administration. Relations with him are most happy."

"BABY PAT" WINS LAURELS FROM ILLINOIS BABIES

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 27.—Pauline Patricia Pence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Pence of Taylorville, is Illinois' champion baby. Little "Pat," who is 11 months and 28 days old, scored 99.5 in the Illinois better babies conference at the state fair. Championship prizes were awarded today by Gov. Small.

Baby "Pat" scored a point higher than any of her competitors in any of the classes.

Honors were almost evenly divided between city and rural babies in the five divisions.

When Carl Robert Fox of Decatur and Francis McQuire of Springfield tied for high honors in the city class of the third division Gov. Small decided that each should receive a full award.

Hubby Attentive to Roomer, Wife Says in Divorce Bill

Mrs. Myrtle C. Sprink, 4746 Kenmore avenue, filed suit for divorce against her husband, Jesse Sprink, in the Circuit court yesterday, naming Miss Mary Brudette, a roomer in their home, whom, she related, she found in her husband's arms Aug. 21.

MARRIED 3 YEARS AGO, CLEVELAND MAYOR ADMITS

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—The secret marriage of Mayor W. S. Fitzgerald three years ago was revealed today by the mayor himself. His wife formerly was Miss Margaret Chilton Tucker of New York, a grand niece of Senator Chilton of Texas. Fitzgerald said he met Miss Chilton in Washington several years ago while there on official business.

"After our courtship we were quietly married," the mayor said. "Because of Mrs. Fitzgerald's desire to continue her musical studies abroad we kept the marriage secret by mutual agreement."

The mayor is 41 years old. He became mayor of Cleveland on May 1, 1920.

Station Agent Saves Man from Death Under Train

Joliet, Ill., Aug. 27.—Hurled by one train into the path of another coming from the opposite direction, Frank Mall, wealthy lumberman, was saved from death last night at a Rock Island railroad crossing near New Lenox by Robert Campbell, station agent, who dragged the semi-conscious man from the track a few seconds before the east-bound passenger train pounded by.

Posse Kills 1, Wounds 2, Who Stole Mine Cash

Fairmont, Va., Aug. 27.—One man was killed and two were seriously wounded in the hills by a posse following a holdup of two mine officials of the New England Fuel and Transportation company near Lowesville today.

Part of the $25,000 pay roll was recovered from the robber slain.

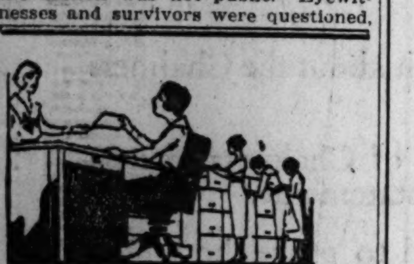
Paymaster David Richardson and Supt. J. A. McCay were crossing a trestle when three masked men leaped from the sides and held them up.

Their escape was checked by a posse.

Chicago Polish Editor Given Federal Post

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—The department of commerce announced today the appointment of John A. Wedda of Chicago to be chief of the economic editorial staff of the foreign trade division.

Mr. Wedda has been associated with Polish newspapers in Chicago and had charge of the Polish section of the last political campaign for the Republican national committee.



She has charge of 26 girls

UP to a year ago she had never had to work. Suddenly she found herself penniless, unequipped to earn a living. Some good friend directed her to the Illinois School of Filing. A month later she graduated. Today she is an efficient executive, in charge of a filing department employing 26 girls.

The Illinois School of Filing trains intelligent young women just out of school or already in business, for positions of responsibility, with salaries such as are paid only to women of training. Personal instruction and actual practice on every important method of filing.

You will want to read "Filing as a Profession for Women," a free booklet which gives full facts about the course. It tells what other young women have done. Certainly you can do as well. Write for your copy today, or better yet, step in and have a chat with Miss Gladys Bridges, Principal.

Day and evening classes now forming for course starting after Labor Day.

ROME
QUALITY

Every genuine De Luxe Bedspring bears the trade-mark on the side rail of the spring. Look for it—it is your guarantee is an important factor in your health and well-being. Many people do not feel well, and look for the reason everywhere but the right place. Instead of taking medicine they should buy a Rome De Luxe Bedspring.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

That Spine of Yours

The ordinary woven wire, national or coil spring bends the spine laterally and cramps the muscles, causing backache, headache, listlessness, indigestion, insomnia and even graver disorders.

Rome De Luxe Bedsprings are scientifically designed to fit the body—to follow the contour, gently but firmly supporting every part. Thus the spine remains straight, and the muscles relax so that absolute rest and perfect sleep results. Rome De Luxe Bedsprings cannot sag. A child and grown-up can lie in perfect comfort side by side, each on his own level.

Examine the Rome De Luxe at your dealer's. The more carefully you compare the Rome De Luxe with any bedspring at any price, the more certainly you will recognize its superior, luxurious comfort. It is always finished in Rome Gray enamel, and on the side rail appears the Rome Quality Trade Mark which identifies all Rome products. Look for it—it is your guarantee. The De Luxe is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

CHICAGO GIRLS EAGER TO DON KNICKERBOCKERS

Twenty Recruit Added to Knicker rmy.

BY A MEE MAN.

Let Miss Jo Hicky be introduced. Miss Hckey appeard yesterday on the streets of Chicagoin knickers. Her appearnce was omptly telephoned to the Knickerboker editor and Miss Hickey was soon a full fledged member of Chicago's fastest growing club, the Knckerbocr club.

Stopping for minute in the Hart, Schaffer & Mrx Clothing company's offices, Miss Hckey immediately won the aproval f the entire feminine office fce an more than twelve girls agreed appar in knickers on Sept. 10—Knkerbcker day.

The mailman yesterday brought twenty-ree signed pledges to the Mere Mn rom Chicago girls. They all agre o purchase knickers and to wear thm to their offices on Sept. 10, Knickeriker day.

hat the Members Say.

"I hav purchased a knickerbocker costume nd am very much pleased with it" aid Mrs. M. Woolson, 815 Wisconsin venue, Oak Park. "I wear the ne coume—it's lots of fun. Hope every girl n town wears them."

Miss Pea Nelson, 2232 East 70th street aske that her name be added to the list once. "Best outfit for a girl" she stes.

"Hurry on with Knickerbocker day plans," advis Miss Anna Liese, 3548 West Congre street. "I must prepare for my it—count me as one of the 300."

Four young omen employed by the Rochdale Maufacturing company, 1350 West Gra avenue, sent in their pledges. Thare Misses Frieda Gottberg, 26 North California avenue; Marie Nelson, 2316 Greenleaf avenue; Ethel aag, 2146 North Fairfield avenue, ad Olga Nelson, 2316 Greenleaf avenue There were a score of others.

Fin "Rasonable" Knickers.

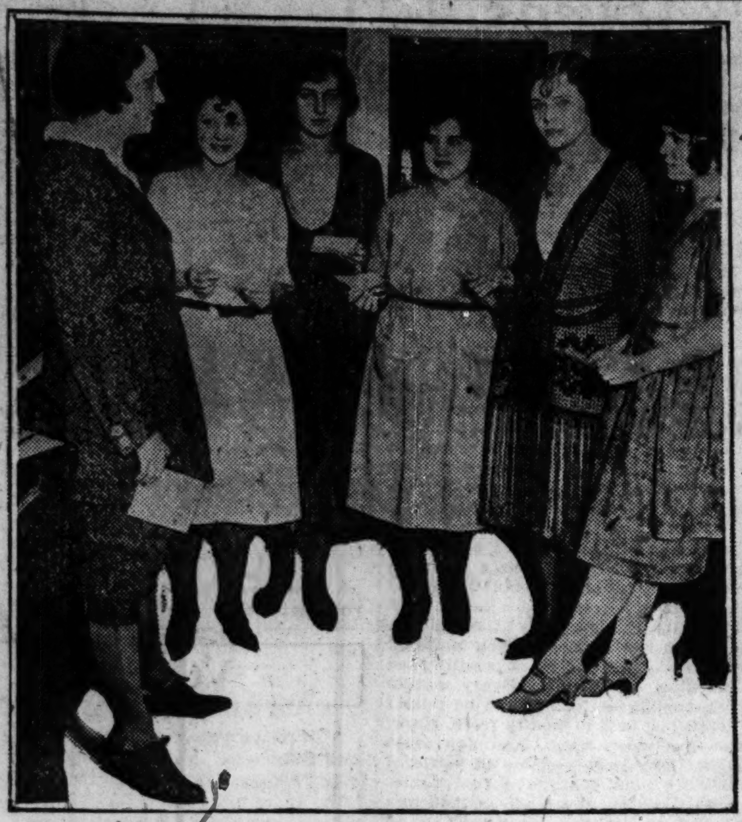
The to orinal knicker girls, Helen Davis an Matha Allen, yesterday discovered hat State street department stores have the suits at prices ranging from $32.5 o $75. The suits are made of jersey or weed, are serviceable, and will wear loger than the ordinary fall suits.

So come , Chicago girls, send in your pledges o the Mere Man.

Beware Fke Revenue Agent! Sindler Arrested

The governmnt yesterday issued a warning to Chgoans to beware of fake internal revenue agents, following the arrest o James Shotts, 5217 West Chicago avnue, on a charge of impersonating a overnment official. According to Specal Agent James J. Donovan, Shotts hs been visiting foreigners in the city n an effort to sell them a book on t income tax for $60. If they refuse to buy, he would threaten to fine the. Having frightened them, he woul then charge as high as $50 or $100 or the book.

They'll All Be Knickering Soon



Miss Jo Hickey donned her knickerbockers yesterday and won many new members to the Knicker club. At the left stands Miss Hickey, and then, across the picture, are Doris Hillmart, Josephine Bockius, Vernyce Quamme, Jennie Gray, and Evelyn Senf. All of 'em signed.

2 WOMEN, 1 MAN; SHE LOVED HIM BUT KILLED HIM

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 27.—Isabelle Machette shot Harry Gibbs, proprietor of a soft drink place, here last night. Gibbs died in a hospital this morning.

Miss Machette said Gibbs came to her home with two other men and demanded a letter she had taken from his coat pocket Friday afternoon, written, she said, to Gibbs by a Chicago woman. She said she had taken the letter for the purpose of sending it to a St. Louis woman. When she refused to give it up he struck her, she said, following her into the kitchen and striking her again.

To the police Miss Machette said: "I loved that man more than I did myself, and I am now sorry I shot him. He had kept company with me for eight years and I had done everything that a human could do for him."

Grief Stricken Mother Seeks News of Her Boy

On July 18, John Keller Jr., 14 years old, left his home at 2521 South Lawndale avenue to look for a job. Since that time neither his family nor their friends have heard from him. His mother is almost prostrated with grief. The youth is five feet five inches tall, weighs about 125 pounds, has blue eyes and light brown hair and when he left home he wore a green suit with long trousers and a lavender striped shirt.

RED ARROW VETS MEET AT DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—The second annual reunion of the 32d (Red Arrow) division opened here today with veterans present from all parts of the country. Michigan and Wisconsin men predominated, however, the division having been made up chiefly of men from these states.

Maj. Gen. William G. Haan, who led the division in most of its activities in France, was here for the opening, and Gen. Pershing will greet the veterans Monday. Senator Lenroot will represent Wisconsin. Lieut. Gen. Sir Harry Burstall is attending as the representative of Lord Byng, governor general of Canada.

Saxon-Duplex

Has It Occurred to You to Consider Strength?

Anyone can tell whether a car looks good or not. To be sure tastes differ, but you can instantly detect a poor looking car, whereas you have no means of telling what is under a body design.

The new Saxon-Duplex is noted for its strength. Built to withstand the worst kind of use—it stands up admirably under all conditions.

Saxon-Duplex engineers have produced a chassis of double the usual strength. That's what makes it so unusually rigid and rugged.

Then too it is just a good size. Anyone can handle it with ease for it is light and steers very easily.

You'll enjoy driving a Saxon-Duplex, for not only does it look like a car which costs twice as much, but what is more to the point, it acts and performs like one.

Then there is the Roman Lubricating System. Simply press a lever and oil is pumped to 28 chassis bearings. No other car has it.

This is but one of the many Saxon-Duplex features.

Come in and see the remarkable new Saxon-Duplex. New Price, $1495 F. O. B. Factory.

PROGRESS AND PRIVATE PROPERTY

Communism proposes to create a new organization of society without the main support of the existing system, the institution of private property. It proposes to substitute for it common ownership.

Believers in the existing capitalist or individualistic system of organization hold that to deprive the individual of the incentive of private ownership is to deprive society of its simplest motive for effort, with the result that the individual's energy and the total energy of the social body is very seriously lowered, personal initiative is discouraged, slackening is encouraged, the total production of wealth dangerously reduced, and the rate of progress slowed down disastrously.

We of this generation may have the benefit of an actual demonstration of the fallacy of the communist plan and of the soundness of the individualist theory. In Russia communist doctrinaires of the strictest sect seized power and proceeded to put the communist system into operation. The Russian masses had practiced communism to a considerable extent and should have been able to adopt and make workable the more thoroughgoing application attempted by Lenin. Psychologically and morally they were more prepared than perhaps any western people, and they now found themselves in complete control of all necessary basic resources for the maintenance of a simple life.

Yet the experiment has proved one of the great failures of history. From the beginning the peasant seized and held private property in land and its produce. When the communist central authority, the dictatorship of the industrial proletariat, attempted to seize private produce for the common stock, the peasants, now determined capitalists and individualists, resisted actively and passively. They concealed their property when possible. They produced only what they themselves could consume or conceal. They refused to create reserves because they feared to be deprived of them. The result was a drastic fall in agricultural production which, aggravated by a heavy drought in some districts, has plunged Russia into the miseries of famine.

But the industrial proletariat seems to have done little better. The bolshevik régime was hardly set up when Lenin and his associates of the central power were compelled to devise means of discipline to compel workers to produce. In time communist industrialism took on a military form. Labor battalions were conscripted and sent from place to place, like troops in a campaign. Yet under this form of pressure, which was really involuntary servitude, town workers deserted to the country districts, cities dwindled like fever patients, and industrial production fell off rapidly.

Communism, in other words, ignored and defied a basic human motive, as if an engineer should ignore and defy the law of gravitation. The result is collapse.

Socialists are very bitter against the right of private property because individual accumulation is sometimes unjust and excessive. But the instinct of private ownership is a profound element in human nature founded on the instinct of self-preservation, and when it is thwarted there is gradual paralysis of the human energy required to sustain life on a civilized level.

Far from being an evil thing the instinct of private ownership has been the main force in the building of civilized society. The fact that it produces wrongs is no more an argument for its abolition than indigestion is an argument for the abolition of food. The instinct of private property, like all other instincts, requires checks and intelligent direction. These are being involved gradually in the course of social evolution. But the Russian communist revolution has been a setback and reaction, not an advance. Individualist society is working out checks upon egotistic abuse of private liberty and limiting the right of private property. This is the safe path of human progress through experience. The doctrinaire cannot improve upon it. When he gets hold of a situation he proves a poor builder. His plans do not work because he has little knowledge of the actual forces which work in human society.

IS THE SAILING SHIP COMING BACK?

A great deal of the beauty and romance of the sea passed with the decline of the sailing ship. There is nothing afloat today, not even an America cup winner, that could give the esthetic thrill of a clipper under full sail. As for speed, only a relatively few steam driven ships surpass even today the fastest of the clippers, which sometimes ran 350 knots in twenty-four hours.

The sailing ship gave way to the steamer because the latter was more reliable as to runs and was not hung up by calms or slowed down so much by head winds and gales, and finally could be operated in larger units. So it has been assumed that the sailing ship has been displaced forever. It survives, though chiefly under fore and aft rig, but most ocean freight is carried by the steam driven vessel.

But now there is talk of the revival of the sailing ship as a carrier. The Suez and the Panama canals have shortened the world routes materially, coal is becoming a more expensive fuel, and oil is not cheap. So there are interesting proposals for a return to sails. Of course there would be great improvements. The rig would be fore and aft instead of the old square sails, and there would be machinery for handling and an auxiliary in case of calm.

A naval architect of standing has come forward with a design of this kind, making use of the Diesel engine, steel wire running gear, and electricity for lighting and heating. American ships have been operating with as many as seven masts and the use of power would permit the operation of large units with a comparatively small crew.

In long voyages, carrying freight from the far east to America and Europe, such ships would make good time and would be cheaper to operate than the coal burner. The problem is not a simple one, but it is by no means improbable that commerce can make profitable use once more of the cheap power supplied by nature in the great trade winds. The fore-and-after will never match the beauty of the square rigged clipper, but with the aid of auxiliary machinery it can be made safer and far more comfortable. In such case men of the white races may be more willing to follow the sea than they have been since modern industry has made it possible to live on terra firma with the aid of good wages. Something at least of the old charm of the sailing ship may yet be recovered for the romantic and without a return of the miseries and dangers of the older sea dog's existence.

WAR THE TEACHER.

"War," says Lloyd George, indicating that Greece and Turkey may take their fill of fighting, "in the end teaches respect for facts, and both races will be easier to deal with if at least their own limitations are brought clearly to their own minds."

War taught Napoleon that he was not master of Europe, even if it had a bad time in doing so. War taught the kaiser that he was not an invincible war lord and it taught the czar that he was not autocrat of the Russias. War taught part of the United States that it was a part of the United States and that it could not have slavery. War taught Great Britain that the American colonies were independent.

War is frequently a conclusive definition of facts. Sometimes it is the only definition of facts, defining them by creating them. Some of them later alter, some of them remain. War taught Poland that it was not a nation and later taught it that it was one.

These are concrete facts which war teaches. There are truths which it does not teach, unhappily. The human mind can be taught a fact and sometimes not taught a truth. War did not teach the United States that it cannot extemporize the material equipment of an army and the technical experts needed by the equipment.

We went into the war with the million armed springers idea and we came out of it with that idea and we have it now. We did not believe there could be a war; we went into one and came out of it believing that there cannot be another.

We saw billions of dollars hastily thrown into war machines which would not work and we believe that we can make war machines on a minute's notice. We were not taught that a nation which goes to war without having given the requirements of war a thought is badly punished in men and expenditures. We were, but we were not taught it.

European nations were not taught that hatreds engendered by the making of peace later cause war. They have had that experience throughout their history, but war did not teach them the truth. War did not teach Europe how wars are made. It did not teach the United States how they are fought.

War is a teacher, but it could be a better one.

NO CHANGES IN THREE CENTURIES.

O. W. Firkins, writing in the Weekly Review on "Plymouth and Her Tercentenary," describes the drowsy New England village attempting to stage the "birth of a state in a cabin" with uncertain effect, and remarks that "the changes of 300 years have been momentous. What would these Pilgrims have done if they had come back in that hour to that spot. Their first act would have been to stop the pageant."

Is there not an apparent discrepancy and a great truth contained in those lines? Would the Pilgrims have stopped the pageant? Probably. Why? Not because it was ineffective or futile in its effort to portray the humble birth of a nation, but because it was a spectacle contrary to their habits of thought, and, therefore, to their conception of morality.

If that assumption be true, have "the changes of 300 years been momentous"? It may be doubted. Our moderns, instead of stopping a pageant, would stop a prize fight or a movie which they deem improper. The stopping is the thing. At heart they are the same. The changes of 300 years have not been momentous—at least in human nature. That is unchanged. We have survived in America in spite of it for these 300 years, just as the race has survived for centuries. There is some comfort in that. Probably we will not do so much worse in the next 300 years, despite the human element revealed so effectively by Mr. Firkins' comment.

A SCOT ON ULSTER.

[The Weekly Review.]

"Although I have dear friends and cousins and wife's relations in the north of Ireland," said Prof. MacAndrew Cantlie, "I will tell you, in strict confidence, that I do not stand for everything that they say and do. They are for the Union Jack and the United Kingdom and the unity of the empire and every other unity except a united Ireland. Between you and me, they are thinking mainly of protection against the majority of the Irish people, and without doubt they need it. The only question is whether they shall trust in some external power or determine to defend themselves. From the time of the first settlements they have enjoyed throwing stones at their Irish neighbors, knowing that their big brother, Great Britain, would back them up. But no minority can come to manhood in such a way as this. A minority that is a minority must put away childish things, must stand on its own feet, must fight its own battles, must take its punishment like a man, must assume all the rights and responsibilities of a minority. And why not? We Scots are well able to hold our own in any country, whether as a majority or minority. We have done very well without parent or guardian in England, America, South Africa, and Australia, and why not in Ireland? And if, in the course of a thousand years, we should be completely absorbed and Erinized, what a blessing for Ireland! The Irish, with a dash of Scottish blood, could rule the world."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

TO JOY.

Come, tarry here, thou nimble-footed one,
The shyest nymph that ever paced the grass,
Or through deep shadows ran, or wooed the sun
In some far glade where none is wont to pass;
Come, rest thee here, a moment, if no more;
For I have set a fragrant feast for thee,
And poured such wine as gods would love to quaff.
And I have hung above my cottage door
Fresh wreathes of rose, and taught a melody
Unto my lyre, that, hearing, thou wouldst laugh,
And dance and sing—and he grow happy, sprite,
Who oft hath prayed to sip thy full delight.

How many times, within the silent shade
Of forest ways, I thought thee at my side,
But, turning quickly, only saw thee fade
To nothingness, or in some fountain hide,
Or in some tree—and found myself alone;
Yet not alone, in that I felt thee near;
Yea, also felt that if my hopes came true,
I still might speak with thee, and come to own
Thy charm against the overwhelming fear
Of men; so drain such cups of healing dew
As I might look into the face of Death
And smile to see him take my final breath.

Away, bright hope! Thou only art a dream,
A phantom of the brain, a name—no more;
Beauty's the soul of life, beauty's the Gleam
That stars the sky and rules the field and shore;
There never was, there is not now, nor will
There be in all the world, a nymph named Joy.
Therefore, invite the Muse unto thy feast,
O bard, and pour thy wine; nor deem it ill
To think that life is good, if but alloy;
For still our eyes may peer into the east,
Still may we hear the bugles of the dawn,
Still, still to high adventure hasten on.

Reality and Romance.

Sir: Graveyard, Citronelle, Alabama. Backwoods woman being buried. Christian rites finished. A Cajan lad approaches minister, and asks for permission for some of his people to sing over the grave—and pray. Permission given. Six Cajans begin one of their wild, fast hymns. Son of dead woman, who is too full of shinny to get to graveyard on time, approaches. Hears song. Grabs knife, and assaults one of the Cajans.

"Ah! Let me at the ——— ———!" he screams, when seized by a sane onlooker.

"Yeh, let him go!" advises one of the men of the village. "Them damn' Cajans . . ."

TO PEGGY IN A HAUGHTY MOOD.
(Aged Fourteen Months.)

Proud beauty! For a kiss I might essay
  A quaintly rhyming old French melody
  With envoi and refrain, quite prettily,
Could I compete with Orpheus' magic lay,
White Sappho's burning sweetness, or the gay
  Anacreon's delicate simplicity:
  For where else shall I find the harmony
To set your charms in adequate array?

Ah, cruel one! My heart is all ensnared,
  Wholly entangled in your golden hair,
  Mortally wounded by your eyes of blue,
Unto your least caprice my will is bared.
  And now—the kiss I pray you, haughty fair,
  To close the sonnet I have written you.

FOR MEDICINE FANS.

AT the last meeting of the Southern Medical association Dr. J. D. Love of Jacksonville talked turkey to the doctors from all parts of the southern states.

His theme was overdosing the patients. He said patients would get well quicker and more often if given less medicine. First, he discussed quinine.

Those with malaria as a rule do not get enough quinine, while those with other complaints get far too much. Once a patient is known to have malaria he should get plenty of quinine until the attack is broken and then enough each day until cure is complete. But patients with other complaints should not have their stomachs upset and their nervous systems shot to pieces by taking a medicine which they do not need and which does them no good.

Next he tackled calomel of the firm of David and Jonathan—quinine and calomel. In nine cases out of ten when calomel is given it does more harm than good. It has few advantages over other purgatives and it upsets the stomach, causes nausea and vomiting in cases where it is advisable that the stomach be quiet. It raises cain generally.

Next he discussed opium as a remedy for diarrhœa. As a rule, diarrhœa is a self-limited disease. It gets well somewhat promptly if the patient will take nothing and do nothing. It is a symptom and the rule is that it is serving a good purpose. Diarrhœa mixtures, cholera mixtures, paregoric, laudanum, blackberry brandy, and opium, and all such combinations, are useless and worse in the ordinary case of diarrhœa.

He next discussed cathartics in general, taking the position that they are useful in about 1 per cent of the cases where they are used and useless or even harmful in the remainder.

Following down the list, we come to the use of iodides in enlarged glands. Whenever glands are found enlarged an effort should be made to remove the cause. If enlarged neck glands are due to drinking milk from tuberculous cows, where is the sense in giving iodides and continuing the use of the milk?

Next comes the use of digitalis and caffein in acute Bright's. If it is desirable to stimulate the kidneys nothing equals drinking a few glasses of water.

When a doctor is consulted about an ordinary cough he examines the chest and prescribes a cough medicine containing expectorants or sedatives, or both. The cough will get well just as quickly and his patient will miss fewer meals if he will leave off the cough medicine.

It is customary in all cases of heart trouble of every sort and kind to give digitalis. Digitalis is a fine heart remedy. Given properly and in proper cases it is a life saver, but given hit or miss it does much more harm than good.

Dr. Love closes his list with bromides—a powerful remedy badly misused—and cod liver oil as a remedy for consumption.

He should have delivered his address to the people as well as the physicians. When the people learn not to expect a pint of medicine to follow every doctor's visit, less medicine will be prescribed. Therefore, I suggest that Dr. Love make talks on this subject to the people in all the states whose physicians belong to the Southern Medical. It does no good to pick on the doctors alone. When he makes these talks he might say that everything he said went for patent medicines also.

PANS DOCTOR NOW.

Mrs. A. R. R. objects to the panning which the mothers of bottlefed babies get. Before her baby came she belonged in the anvil chorus and she slammed them just as hard as anybody did. But her milk dried up before she left the hospital, in spite of everything she could do. Upon the advice of a general practitioner she fed the baby on a proprietary food. The baby nearly died. A sensible, up to date physician taught her how to modify fresh cow's milk. Her baby is now 1 year old, as fit as a fiddle, and altogether a blue ribbon product. She thinks babies can be successfully fed on modified cow's milk. Every mother who cannot breastfeed should be taught in detail just how to modify fresh, clean, wholesome cow's milk. And now since she no longer pans mothers of bottlefed babies she pans those who feed babies canned foods of any kind, and doctors who fail to instruct mothers how to modify milk and who neglect to see that the instructions are carried out in minute detail.

PASTEURIZING MILK AT HOME.

D. P. writes: "1. How is milk pasteurized at home? 2. Is pasteurized milk indigestible? I understand there is more or less typhoid about at present and I cannot be absolutely certain of the source from which our milk comes."

REPLY.

1. Set the bottle of milk in a deep saucepan filled with water to the level of the milk in the bottle. The bottle should be set on the handle of a spoon so that the glass bottom may be lifted from close contact with the bottom of the pan. Heat the water until the milk becomes beady. Hold at that temperature for thirty minutes. Remove and cool quickly. Keep the milk cold.

2. No.

OPERATION SUREST REMEDY.

M. E. T. writes: "1. I am a young man of 23 and afflicted with rupture. What is the best way of curing it?

"2. Is an operation necessary?

"3. What is good for perspiring feet?"

REPLY.

1. A few hernias are cured by wearing trusses, a few by exercises, but operation is the only reasonable certain cure.

2. Operation is not necessary for comfort and efficiency. A truss accomplishes that as a rule. It is necessary for a cure, or almost so.

3. Wash and keep clean. Apply alum water occasionally or a dusting powder consisting of sixty parts alum and forty parts talcum.

SEND FOR BOOKLET.

Mrs. J. Y. writes: "1. Can anything be done for intense hot flushes in a woman of 52? Have suffered with them for eight years. They are most uncomfortable and embarrassing. I am the mother of one child.

"2. Can anything be done to relieve a body oversensitive to underwear? It seems impossible to wear new underwear, unless silk, although it is washed first. I cannot afford silk."

REPLY.

1. Send stamped addressed envelope for booklet.

2. I know of nothing. Perhaps less bathing and more use of cold cream to cleanse may help.

CHILD LABOR.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you kindly investigate the lawfulness of employing a girl 12 years of age?

The family residing below us is employing a child of 12 years to do all house cleaning, scrubbing, washing, and in addition to that this little girl must take care of two children. The young tot works from morning until late at night, which seems unreasonable, and I think some law should prevail to forbid this.

J. B.

Section 1 of the 1921 revision of the child labor law provides that "no minor shall be allowed to work more than eight hours in any one day nor more than six days in any one week," but since the main portion of the section applies to designated employments only, not including domestic labor, it is not clear that the proviso above quoted is intended to have a general application. Section 9 provides similar limits for persons under 16 years in "gainful occupations," and it is not clear whether the adjective applies to the employer or employé. It seems probable that the state factory inspector would construe the wording as applying to your facts.

DEEDING BACK THE FARM.

Hoopeston, Ill., Aug. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Some years ago a man deeded some land to his wife. She now wants to deed it to her husband and son and to include herself, in joint tenancy.

1. How can this be done legally?

2. Would there be objection, when only these three are interested in the title?

3. Would the federal inheritance tax apply to the survivor? M. E.

1. The wife should deed to a third person, who will deed back to the two in joint tenancy.

2. We see no ground for legal objection.

3. Yes.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO CHANGE NAME.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We are three brothers wishing to change our name legally. How shall we go about this matter? What are the approximate costs? E. H. M.

No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. It is sufficient if you use the new name and give notice of change of name to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which your old name appears, we suggest that you continue to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in you under the old name, when you come to sell you should use the same name.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONFETTI COMPLAINT.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise if there is a law prohibiting the promiscuous throwing of confetti in public places in Chicago. P. L. H.

The practice could be stopped on proper facts.

JOINT TENANTS.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We have built a home from a joint account. My husband is very ill. If he died intestate would I get the home? 2. Do you think it would be better if the deed were made out "in joint tenancy" instead of "tenants in common"? We have two children whose names I should like on the deed. 3. Would this be a satisfactory arrangement? A. R. M.

1. Not entirely. The children would take most of it.

2. Yes.

3. Not if it should become desirable to sell, when court proceedings would be necessary.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

A "PREJUDICIAL ARTICLE."

Chicago, Aug. 23.—It is a fortunate thing that most intelligent and thoughtful citizens do not regard your editorials of intrinsic value, and regard THE TRIBUNE'S attitude regarding Japan insincere and the Japan menace to the U. S. as a mere bugaboo.

Your prejudicial article, "Rewarding an Ally," with its disregard to facts, is altogether misleading. Good Lord, Lloyd George's appreciation of Japan's loyalty to the allies during the world war does not by one iota lessen Britain's gratitude for the services rendered by the U. S. in winning the war. You must have a very short memory regarding Japan's frequent urgings on the allied council to participate more fully in both naval and military warfare. In order to dispose of the illogical position of keeping the little yellow fellows out of Europe, Britain withdrew the Hindu troops from France and used them in the eastern zone. It was those repeated rebuffs that encouraged certain Japanese diplomatics to dicker with Germany, and it says much to Japan's credit that she did not revoke, as did Russia. You cannot be so blind as not to recognize what it would have meant for this country had Zimmerman succeeded in his machinations regarding the attempt to intrigue Japan and Mexico in a fiasco.

With respect to your article, "America and Britain," touching upon the Anglo-Japan treaty. No man with any common sense or regard to truth will not but admit that the late treaty had its reflected benefits for America. As for the new treaty under consideration by the two powers, it is evident that to meet the demands of Canada and Australia, Britain is endeavoring to impose further restrictions upon Japan for their security, and consequently what materially benefits Canada will certainly in a lesser degree affect America.

There is also an aspect that you and certain peanut politicians have overlooked, but which the astute Britons have not. That to refuse an alliance with Japan, leaves Germany an open door to oriental ambitions.

A CHINESE VIEW OF OUR VETERANS' RELIEF WORK.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 22.—In your issue of the 20th inst. you recite a pitiful account of a former soldier, John Osborne of Richardson, Kas. The article states that the public health service has ordered Osborne to the leprosy hospital at Varville, La. Also that his wife will probably have to sell her home in order to raise the money for his transportation in a special car, as the state law will not permit him to ride with other passengers. Holy smoke! What a splendid opinion Osborne will evidently have of his "glorious state and nation"! What about our Red Cross societies, who pay a doctor of this state a salary "far in excess of $10,000 a year" out of the Red Cross treasury for "managing" its affairs, but cannot pay for the transportation of one poor afflicted soldier? Also, what about our churches? Have they become simply a social club, plus a mutual admiration society? What about the Golden Rule and the Sermon on the Mount? In short, what do you think of the white man?

FARM LAND RENTALS.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 22.—Referring to the article of B. F. Butterfield in today's issue, will say that I certainly disagree with his conclusions on the renter's problem.

In the first place the greater part of all Illinois and Iowa farm lands are rented for a share rent, ranging from two-fifths to one-half of the grain, exactly the same as it was when farm lands were worth but one-fourth of the present value. And as to cash rents, there is not one farm that I know of that has netted the owner even 2 per cent the last two years, and many not 1 per cent, after paying all taxes, assessments, insurance, repairs, upkeep, etc.

If the farm owners depended entirely on the tenants paying him interest on his investment he would surely be "in the hole," and millions of our farm lands would be thrown on the market.

However, land owners depend more upon the advance in the value of lands to pay a living interest on their investments than from rents, as there has been an average advance in land values of at least $10 per year for the last forty years on the best Illinois and Iowa lands. Land owners would starve to death if they depended entirely on the net income from rents. R. H.

THE CHANGING WORLD.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 2[illegible]—In your paper of Aug. 22 appears the account by the United News of the "finals" for the season at Deauville, and incidentally connecting the names of some American and English people high in the social and commercial world [together with the names of a king, crown prince, and a baron] with the bacchanalian revels. This whole affair was portrayed in the most matter of fact manner, and with the greatest freedom and reportorial sangfroid, characteristic of the growing, universal tendency of the generation to view such proceedings in a [illegible] if not an envious manner.

Ten or fifteen years ago if names of people similar in standing had inadvertantly been connected with such a public exposition of drunken brawling, they would either have slunk to the Englewood of obscurity, or sued the News agency for damages for indecent exposure and defamation of character, but at the present this brand of publicity seems only to uplift and stimulate to further social prestige, adding another A1 to their rating in the social Bradstreet. Hinky Dink never had anything on "society" at its best. I. D. CLARK.

PERHAPS THE "L" SHOULD RAISE ITS RATES.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—I note with interest the reply of the publicity department of the North Shore line to my inquiry about rates. Boiled down the answer says, "We don't operate at as little cost as the other fellow." This does not give me any really good reason though for paying 34 cents more to ride from Grand avenue to Central street over the North Shore line than over the "L," in other words, paying [illegible]9 cents from Grand avenue to Central via North Shore line, as compared with 15 cents via "L," using the same rails and in my opinion better equipment. Of course I have the privilege of paying this excess if I so desire.

HELP FOR "MUSKIE" SEEKERS

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 23.—In response to the appeal of "Anxious" on Aug. 14, I suggest you write that reliable guide and trapper, Mr. Fred Vaughn, at Mercer, Wis. There are "muskie" in the lakes all around Mercer, and if any one can give you the right dope Vaughn is the man.

If you have fished for muskie, you are no doubt aware that they are never captured in large quantities, and I have heard of fishermen going after them for years and not getting even a small one.

C. B. SMITH.

ENFORCE THE AUTO LAWS.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—If the strike leaders should be held contributorily responsible for crimes while the light men were called out on strike, as per Chief of Police Charles Fitzmorris, then what is the relative or direct responsibility of the administration and the heads of departments who neglect to fully enforce all the long established necessarily protective motor car laws? New York is proportionately far below Chicago for speeding and crossing and other reducible slaughter, perhaps 50 per cent lower in proportion. Why does this wild Chicago laxity continue? Greater slaughter than from holdups! Why does it exist? Enforcement to the limit would reduce day and night accidents over 80 per cent, perhaps save twenty lives monthly, $100,000 worth of property losses. Why are the laws not ever enforced? The fines would pay a handsome profit on the added police force costs.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE WORLD IS TOO MUCH WITH US.

By William Wordsworth.

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending we lay waste our powers;
Little we see in nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon;
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;
It moves us not—Great God! I'd rather be
A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn!

PROGRESS AND PRIVATE PROPERTY

Communism proposes to create a new organization of society without the main support of the existing system, the institution of private property. It proposes to substitute for it common ownership.

Believers in the existing capitalist or individualistic system of organization hold that to deprive the individual of the incentive of private ownership is to deprive society of its simplest motive for effort, with the result that the individual's energy and the total energy of the social body is very seriously lowered, personal initiative is discouraged, slackening is encouraged, the total production of wealth dangerously reduced, and the rate of progress slowed down disastrously.

We of this generation may have the benefit of an actual demonstration of the fallacy of the communist plan and of the soundness of the individualist theory. In Russia communist doctrinaires of the strictest sect seized power and proceeded to put the communist system into operation. The Russian masses had practiced communism to a considerable extent and should have been able to adopt and make workable the more thoroughgoing application attempted by Lenin. Psychologically and morally they were more prepared than perhaps any western people, and they now found themselves in complete control of all necessary basic resources for the maintenance of a simple life.

Yet the experiment has proved one of the great failures of history. From the beginning the peasant seized and held private property in land and its produce. When the communist central authority, the dictatorship of the industrial proletariat, attempted to seize private produce for the common stock, the peasants, now determined capitalists and individualists, resisted actively and passively. They concealed their property when possible. They produced only what they themselves could consume or conceal. They refused to create reserves because they feared to be deprived of them. The result was a drastic fall in agricultural production which, aggravated by a heavy drought in some districts, has plunged Russia into the miseries of famine.

But the industrial proletariat seems to have done little better. The bolshevik régime was hardly set up when Lenin and his associates of the central power were compelled to devise means of discipline to compel workers to produce. In time communist industrialism took on a military form. Labor battalions were conscripted and sent from place to place, like troops in a campaign. Yet under this form of pressure, which was really involuntary servitude, town workers deserted to the country districts, cities dwindled like fever patients, and industrial production fell off rapidly.

Communism, in other words, ignored and defied a basic human motive, as if an engineer should ignore and defy the law of gravitation. The result is collapse.

Socialists are very bitter against the right of private property because individual accumulation is sometimes unjust and excessive. But the instinct of private ownership is a profound element in human nature founded on the instinct of self-preservation, and when it is thwarted there is gradual paralysis of the human energy required to sustain life on a civilized level.

Far from being an evil thing the instinct of private ownership has been the main force in the building of civilized society. The fact that it produces wrongs is no more an argument for its abolition than indigestion is an argument for the abolition of food. The instinct of private property, like all other instincts, requires checks and intelligent direction. These are being involved gradually in the course of social evolution. But the Russian communist revolution has been a setback and reaction, not an advance. Individualist society is working out checks upon egotistic abuse of private liberty and limiting the right of private property. This is the safe path of human progress through experience. The doctrinaire cannot improve upon it. When he gets hold of a situation he proves a poor builder. His plans do not work because he has little knowledge of the actual forces which work in human society.

IS THE SAILING SHIP COMING BACK?

A great deal of the beauty and romance of the sea passed with the decline of the sailing ship. There is nothing afloat today, not even an America cup winner, that could give the esthetic thrill of a clipper under full sail. As for speed, only a relatively few steam driven ships surpass even today the fastest of the clippers, which sometimes ran 350 knots in twenty-four hours.

The sailing ship gave way to the steamer because the latter was more reliable as to runs and was not hung up by calms or slowed down so much by head winds and gales, and finally could be operated in larger units. So it has been assumed that the sailing ship has been displaced forever. It survives, though chiefly under fore and aft rig, but most ocean freight is carried by the steam driven vessel.

But now there is talk of the revival of the sailing ship as a carrier. The Suez and the Panama canals have shortened the world routes materially, coal is becoming a more expensive fuel, and oil is not cheap. So there are interesting proposals for a return to sails. Of course there would be great improvements. The rig would be fore and aft instead of the old square sails, and there would be machinery for handling and an auxiliary in case of calm.

A naval architect of standing has come forward with a design of this kind, making use of the Diesel engine, steel wire running gear, and electricity for lighting and heating. American ships have been operating with as many as seven masts and the use of power would permit the operation of large units with a comparatively small crew.

In long voyages, carrying freight from the far east to America and Europe, such ships would make good time and would be cheaper to operate than the coal burner. The problem is not a simple one, but it is by no means improbable that commerce can make profitable use once more of the cheap power supplied by nature in the great trade winds. The fore-and-after will never match the beauty of the square rigged clipper, but with the aid of auxiliary machinery it can be made safer and far more comfortable. In such case men of the white races may be more willing to follow the sea than they have been since modern industry has made it possible to live on terra firma with the aid of good wages. Something at least of the old charm of the sailing ship may yet be recovered for the romantic and without a return of the miseries and dangers of the older sea dog's existence.

WAR THE TEACHER.

"War," says Lloyd George, indicating that Greece and Turkey may take their fill of fighting, "in the end teaches respect for facts, and both races will be easier to deal with if at least their own limitations are brought clearly to their own minds."

War taught Napoleon that he was not master of Europe, even if it had a bad time in doing so. War taught the kaiser that he was not an invincible war lord and it taught the czar that he was not autocrat of the Russias. War taught part of the United States that it was a part of the United States and that it could not have slavery. War taught Great Britain that the American colonies were independent.

War is frequently a conclusive definition of facts. Sometimes it is the only definition of facts, defining them by creating them. Some of them later alter, some of them remain. War taught Poland that it was not a nation and later taught it that it was one.

These are concrete facts which war teaches. There are truths which it does not teach, unhappily. The human mind can be taught a fact and sometimes not taught a truth. War did not teach the United States that it cannot extemporize the material equipment of an army and the technical experts needed by the equipment.

We went into the war with the million armed springers idea and we came out of it with that idea and we have it now. We did not believe there could be a war; we went into one and came out of it believing that there cannot be another.

We saw billions of dollars hastily thrown into war machines which would not work and we believe that we can make war machines on a minute's notice. We were not taught that a nation which goes to war without having given the requirements of war a thought is badly punished in men and expenditures. We were, but we were not taught it.

European nations were not taught that hatreds engendered by the making of peace later cause war. They have had that experience throughout their history, but war did not teach them the truth. War did not teach Europe how wars are made. It did not teach the United States how they are fought.

War is a teacher, but it could be a better one.

NO CHANGES IN THREE CENTURIES.

O. W. Firkins, writing in the Weekly Review on "Plymouth and Her Tercentenary," describes the drowsy New England village attempting to stage the "birth of a state in a cabin" with uncertain effect, and remarks that "the changes of 300 years have been momentous. What would these Pilgrims have done if they had come back in that hour to that spot. Their first act would have been to stop the pageant."

Is there not an apparent discrepancy and a great truth contained in those lines? Would the Pilgrims have stopped the pageant? Probably. Why? Not because it was ineffective or futile in its effort to portray the humble birth of a nation, but because it was a spectacle contrary to their habits of thought, and, therefore, to their conception of morality.

If that assumption be true, have "the changes of 300 years been momentous"? It may be doubted. Our moderns, instead of stopping a pageant, would stop a prize fight or a movie which they deem improper. The stopping is the thing. At heart they are the same. The changes of 300 years have not been momentous—at least in human nature. That is unchanged. We have survived in America in spite of it for these 300 years, just as the race has survived for centuries. There is some comfort in that. Probably we will not do so much worse in the next 300 years, despite the human element revealed so effectively by Mr. Firkins' comment.

A SCOT ON ULSTER.

[The Weekly Review.]

"Although I have dear friends and cousins and wife's relations in the north of Ireland," said Prof. MacAndrew Cantlie, "I will tell you, in strict confidence, that I do not stand for everything that they say and do. They are for the Union Jack and the United Kingdom and the unity of the empire and every other unity except a united Ireland. Between you and me, they are thinking mainly of protection against the majority of the Irish people, and without doubt they need it. The only question is whether they shall trust in some external power or determine to defend themselves. From the time of the first settlements they have enjoyed throwing stones at their Irish neighbors, knowing that their big brother, Great Britain, would back them up. But no minority can come to manhood in such a way as this. A minority that is a minority must put away childish things, must stand on its own feet, must fight its own battles, must take its punishment like a man, must assume all the rights and responsibilities of a minority. And why not? We Scots are well able to hold our own in any country, whether as a majority or minority. We have done very well without parent or guardian in England, America, South Africa, and Australia, and why not in Ireland? And if, in the course of a thousand years, we should be completely absorbed and Erinized, what a blessing for Ireland! The Irish, with a dash of Scottish blood, could rule the world."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

TO JOY.

Come, tarry here, thou nimble-footed one,
The shyest nymph that ever paced the grass,
Or through deep shadows ran, or wooed the sun
In some far glade where none is wont to pass;
Come, rest thee here, a moment, if no more;
For I have set a fragrant feast for thee,
And poured such wine as gods would love to quaff.
And I have hung above my cottage door
Fresh wreathes of rose, and taught a melody
Unto my lyre, that, hearing, thou wouldst laugh,
And dance and sing—and he grow happy, sprite,
Who oft hath prayed to sip thy full delight.

How many times, within the silent shade
Of forest ways, I thought thee at my side,
But, turning quickly, only saw thee fade
To nothingness, or in some fountain hide,
Or in some tree—and found myself alone;
Yet not alone, in that I felt thee near;
Yea, also felt that if my hopes came true,
I still might speak with thee, and come to own
Thy charm against the overwhelming fear
Of men; so drain such cups of healing dew
As I might look into the face of Death
And smile to see him take my final breath.

Away, bright hope! Thou only art a dream,
A phantom of the brain, a name—no more;
Beauty's the soul of life, beauty's the Gleam
That stars the sky and rules the field and shore;
There never was, there is not now, nor will
There be in all the world, a nymph named Joy.
Therefore, invite the Muse unto thy feast,
O bard, and pour thy wine; nor deem it ill
To think that life is good, if but alloy;
For still our eyes may peer into the east,
Still may we hear the bugles of the dawn,
Still, still to high adventure hasten on.

  For where else shall I find the harmony
To set your charms in adequate array?

Ah, cruel one! My heart is all ensnared,
  Wholly entangled in your golden hair,
  Mortally wounded by your eyes of blue,
Unto your least caprice my will is bared.
  And now—the kiss I pray you, haughty fair,

FOR MEDICINE FANS.

AT the last meeting of the Southern Medical association Dr. J. D. Love of Jacksonville talked turkey to the doctors from all parts of the southern states.

His theme was overdosing the patients. He said patients would get well quicker and more often if given less medicine. First, he discussed quinine.

Those with malaria as a rule do not get enough quinine, while those with other complaints get far too much. Once a patient is known to have malaria he should get plenty of quinine until the attack is broken and then enough each day until cure is complete. But patients with other complaints should not have their stomachs upset and their nervous systems shot to pieces by taking a medicine which they do not need and which does them no good.

Next he tackled calomel of the firm of David and Jonathan—quinine and calomel. In nine cases out of ten when calomel is given it does more harm than good. It has few advantages over other purgatives and it upsets the stomach, causes nausea and vomiting in cases where it is advisable that the stomach be quiet. It raises cain generally.

Next he discussed opium as a remedy for diarrhœa. As a rule, diarrhœa is a self-limited disease. It gets well somewhat promptly if the patient will take nothing and do nothing. It is a symptom and the rule is that it is serving a good purpose. Diarrhœa mixtures, cholera mixtures, paregoric, laudanum, blackberry brandy, and opium, and all such combinations, are useless and worse in the ordinary case of diarrhœa.

He next discussed cathartics in general, taking the position that they are useful in about 1 per cent of the cases where they are used and useless or even harmful in the remainder.

Following down the list, we come to the use of iodides in enlarged glands. Whenever glands are found enlarged an effort should be made to remove the cause. If enlarged neck glands are due to drinking milk from tuberculous cows, where is the sense in giving iodides and continuing the use of the milk?

Next comes the use of digitalis and caffein in acute Bright's. If it is desirable to stimulate the kidneys nothing equals drinking a few glasses of water.

When a doctor is consulted about an ordinary cough he examines the chest and prescribes a cough medicine containing expectorants or sedatives, or both. The cough will get well just as quickly and his patient will miss fewer meals if he will leave off the cough medicine.

It is customary in all cases of heart trouble of every sort and kind to give digitalis. Digitalis is a fine heart remedy. Given properly and in proper cases it is a life saver, but given hit or miss it does much more harm than good.

Dr. Love closes his list with bromides—a powerful remedy badly misused—and cod liver oil as a remedy for consumption.

He should have delivered his address to the people as well as the physicians. When the people learn not to expect a pint of medicine to follow every doctor's visit, less medicine will be prescribed. Therefore, I suggest that Dr. Love make talks on this subject to the people in all the states whose physicians belong to the Southern Medical. It does no good to pick on the doctors alone. When he makes these talks he might say that everything he said went for patent medicines also.

PANS DOCTOR NOW.

Mrs. A. R. R. objects to the panning which the mothers of bottlefed babies get. Before her baby came she belonged in the anvil chorus and she slammed them just as hard as anybody did. But her milk dried up before she left the hospital, in spite of everything she could do. Upon the advice of a general practitioner she fed the baby on a proprietary food. The baby nearly died. A sensible, up to date physician taught her how to modify fresh cow's milk. Her baby is now 1 year old, as fit as a fiddle, and altogether a blue ribbon product. She thinks babies can be successfully fed on modified cow's milk. Every mother who cannot breastfeed should be taught in detail just how to modify fresh, clean, wholesome cow's milk. And now since she no longer pans mothers of bottlefed babies she pans those who feed babies canned foods of any kind, and doctors who fail to instruct mothers how to modify milk and who neglect to see that the instructions are carried out in minute detail.

PASTEURIZING MILK AT HOME.

D. P. writes: "1. How is milk pasteurized at home? 2. Is pasteurized milk indigestible? I understand there is more or less typhoid about at present and I cannot be absolutely certain of the source from which our milk comes."

REPLY.

1. Set the bottle of milk in a deep saucepan filled with water to the level of the milk in the bottle. The bottle should be set on the handle of a spoon so that the glass bottom may be lifted from close contact with the bottom of the pan. Heat the water until the milk becomes beady. Hold at that temperature for thirty minutes. Remove and cool quickly. Keep the milk cold.
2. No.

OPERATION SUREST REMEDY.

M. E. T. writes: "1. I am a young man of 23 and afflicted with rupture. What is the best way of curing it?

"2. Is an operation necessary?

"3. What is good for perspiring feet?"

REPLY.

1. A few hernias are cured by wearing trusses, a few by exercises, but operation is the only reasonable certain cure.
2. Operation is not necessary for comfort and efficiency. A truss accomplishes that as a rule. It is necessary for a cure, or almost so.
3. Wash and keep clean. Apply alum water occasionally or a dusting powder consisting of sixty parts alum and forty parts talcum.

SEND FOR BOOKLET.

Mrs. J. Y. writes: "1. Can anything be done for intense hot flushes in a woman of 52? Have suffered with them for eight years. They are most uncomfortable and embarrassing. I am the mother of one child.

"2. Can anything be done to relieve a body oversensitive to underwear? It seems impossible to wear new underwear, unless silk, although it is washed first. I cannot afford silk."

REPLY.

1. Send stamped addressed envelope for booklet.
2. I know of nothing. Perhaps less bathing and more use of cold cream to cleanse may help.

CHILD LABOR.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Would you kindly investigate the lawfulness of employing a girl 12 years of age?

The family residing below us is employing a child of 12 years to do all house cleaning, scrubbing, washing, and in addition to that this little girl must take care of two children. The young tot works from morning until late at night, which seems unreasonable, and I think some law should prevail to forbid this.

J. B.

Section 1 of the 1921 revision of the child labor law provides that "no minor shall be allowed to work more than eight hours in any one day nor more than six days in any one week," but since the main portion of the section applies to designated employments only, not including domestic labor, it is not clear that the proviso above quoted is intended to have a general application. Section 9 provides similar limits for persons under 16 years in "gainful occupations," and it is not clear whether the adjective applies to the employer or employé. It seems probable that the state factory inspector would construe the wording as applying to your facts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEEDING BACK THE FARM.

Hoopeston, Ill., Aug. 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Some years ago a man deeded some land to his wife. She now wants to deed it to her husband and son and to include herself, in joint tenancy.

1. How can this be done legally?
2. Would there be objection, when only these three are interested in the title?
3. Would the federal inheritance tax apply to the survivor? M. E.

1. The wife should deed to a third person, who will deed back to the two in joint tenancy.
2. We see no ground for legal objection.
3. Yes.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO CHANGE NAME.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We are three brothers wishing to change our name legally. How shall we go about this matter? What are the approximate costs? E. H. M.

No legal proceedings are required to make a change of name valid. It is sufficient if you use the new name and give notice of change of name to those persons to whom the information may be material. In transactions in which your old name appears, we suggest that you continue to use it to avoid confusion. For example, if real estate records show title in you under the old name, when you come to sell you should use the same name.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONFETTI COMPLAINT.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Please advise if there is a law prohibiting the promiscuous throwing of confetti in public places in Chicago. P. L. H.

The practice could be stopped on proper facts.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT TENANTS.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—We have built a home from a joint account. My husband is very ill. If he died intestate would I get the home? 2. Do you think it would be better if the deed were made out "in joint tenancy" instead of "tenants in common"? We have two children whose names I should like on the deed. 3. Would this be a satisfactory arrangement? A. R. M.

1. Not entirely. The children would take most of it.
2. Yes.
3. Not if it should become desirable to sell, when court proceedings would be necessary.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

A "PREJUDICIAL ARTICLE."

Chicago, Aug. 23.—It is a fortunate thing that most intelligent and thoughtful citizens do not regard your editorials of intrinsic value, and regard THE TRIBUNE'S attitude regarding Japan insincere and the Japan menace to the U. S. as a mere bugaboo.

Your prejudicial article, "Rewarding an Ally," with its disregard to facts, is altogether misleading. Good Lord, Lloyd George's appreciation of Japan's loyalty to the allies during the world war does not by one iota lessen Britain's gratitude for the services rendered by the U. S. in winning the war. You must have a very short memory regarding Japan's frequent urgings on the allied council to participate more fully in both naval and military warfare. In order to dispose of the illogical position of keeping the little yellow fellows out of Europe, Britain withdrew the Hindu troops from France and used them in the eastern zone. It was those repeated rebuffs that encouraged certain Japanese diplomatics to dicker with Germany, and it says much to Japan's credit that she did not revoke, as did Russia. You cannot be so blind as not to recognize what it would have meant for this country had Zimmerman succeeded in his machinations regarding the attempt to intrigue Japan and Mexico in a fiasco.

With respect to your article, "America and Britain," touching upon the Anglo-Japan treaty. No man with any common sense or regard to truth will not but admit that the late treaty had its reflected benefits for America. As for the new treaty under consideration by the two powers, it is evident that to meet the demands of Canada and Australia, Britain is endeavoring to impose further restrictions upon Japan for their security, and consequently what materially benefits Canada will certainly in a lesser degree affect America.

There is also an aspect that you and certain peanut politicians have overlooked, but which the astute Britons have not. That to refuse an alliance with Japan, leaves Germany an open door to oriental ambitions.

A. J. Turtle.

A CHINESE VIEW OF OUR VETERANS' RELIEF WORK.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 22.—In your issue of the 20th inst. you recite a pitiful account of a former soldier, John Osborne of Richardson, Kas. The article states that the public health service has ordered Osborne to the leprosy hospital at Varville, La. Also that his wife will probably have to sell her home in order to raise the money for his transportation in a special car, as the state law will not permit him to ride with other passengers. Holy smoke! What a splendid opinion Osborne will evidently have of his "glorious state and nation"! What about our Red Cross societies, who pay a doctor of this state a salary "far in excess of $10,000 a year" out of the Red Cross treasury for "managing" its affairs, but cannot pay for the transportation of one poor afflicted soldier? Also, what about our churches? Have they become simply a social club, plus a mutual admiration society? What about the Golden Rule and the Sermon on the Mount? In short, what do you think of the white man? Li Chung Fong,

[Chinaman.]

FARM LAND RENTALS.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 22.—Referring to the article of B. F. Butterfield in today's issue, will say that I certainly disagree with his conclusions on the renter's problem.

In the first place the greater part of all Illinois and Iowa farm lands are rented for a share rent, ranging from two-fifths to one-half of the grain, exactly the same as it was when farm lands were worth but one-fourth of the present value. And as to cash rents, there is not one farm that I know of that has netted the owner even 2 per cent the last two years, and many not 1 per cent, after paying all taxes, assessments, insurance, repairs, upkeep, etc.

If the farm owners depended entirely on the tenants paying him interest on his investment he would surely be "in the hole," and millions of our farm lands would be thrown on the market.

However, land owners depend more upon the advance in the value of lands to pay a living interest on their investments than from rents, as there has been an average advance in land values of at least $10 per year for the last forty years on the best Illinois and Iowa lands. Land owners would starve to death if they depended entirely on the net income from rents. R. H.

THE CHANGING WORLD.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 23.—In your paper of Aug. 22 appears the account by the United News of the "finals" for the season at Deauville, and incidentally connecting the names of some American and English people high in the social and commercial world [together with the names of a king, crown prince, and a baron] with the bacchanalian revels. This whole affair was portrayed in the most matter of fact manner, and with the greatest freedom and reportorial sangfroid, characteristic of the growing universal tendency of the generation to view such proceedings in a delectitious if not an envious manner.

Ten or fifteen years ago if names of people similar in standing had inadvertantly been connected with such a public exposition of drunken brawling, they would either have slunk to the Englewood of obscurity, or sued the News agency for damages for indecent exposure and defamation of character, but at the present this brand of publicity seems only to uplift and stimulate to further social prestige, adding another A1 to their rating in the social Bradstreet. Hinky Dink never had anything on "society" at its best. I. D. Clark.

PERHAPS THE "L" SHOULD RAISE ITS RATES.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—I note with interest the reply of the publicity department of the North Shore line to my inquiry about rates. Boiled down the answer says, "We don't operate at as little cost as the other fellow." This does not give me any really good reason though for paying 34 cents more to ride from Grand avenue to Central street over the North Shore line than over the "L," in other words, paying 49 cents from Grand avenue to Central via North Shore line, as compared with 15 cents via "L," using the same rails and in my opinion better equipment. Of course I have the privilege of paying this excess if I so desire. C. Jackson.

HELP FOR "MUSKIE" SEEKERS

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 23.—In response to the appeal of "Anxious" on Aug. 14, I suggest you write that reliable guide and trapper, Mr. Fred Vaughn, at Mercer, Wis. There are "muskie" in the lakes all around Mercer, and if any one can give you the right dope Vaughn is the man.

If you have fished for muskie, you are no doubt aware that they are never captured in large quantities, and I have heard of fishermen going after them for years and not getting even a small one. C. B. Smith.

ENFORCE THE AUTO LAWS.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—If the strike leaders should be held contributorily responsible for crimes while the light men were called out on strike, as per Chief of Police Charles Fitzmorris, then what is the relative or direct responsibility of the administration and the heads of departments who neglect to fully enforce all the long established necessarily protective motor car laws? New York is proportionately far below Chicago for speeding and crossing and other reducible slaughter, perhaps 50 per cent lower in proportion. Why does this wild Chicago laxity continue? Greater slaughter than from holdups! Why does it exist? Enforcement to the limit would reduce day and night accidents over 80 per cent, perhaps save twenty lives monthly, $100,000 worth of property losses. Why are the laws not ever enforced? The fines would pay a handsome profit on the added police force costs. Reader.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE WORLD IS TOO MUCH WITH US.
By William Wordsworth.

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending we lay waste our powers;
Little we see in nature that is ours;
We have given our hearts away, a sordid boon!
This sea that bares her bosom to the moon;
The winds that will be howling at all hours,
And are up-gathered now like sleeping flowers;
For this, for everything, we are out of tune;
It moves us not—Great God! I'd rather be
A Pagan suckled in a creed outworn,
So might I, standing on this pleasant lea,
Have glimpses that would make me less forlorn;
Have sight of Proteus rising from the sea,
Or hear old Triton blow his wreathed horn!

POLICEMAN SHOT BY GIRL'S FATHER FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Stories of Shooting Fail to Agree.

With a bullet in his spine and the right side of his body paralyzed, Policeman Delbert Covey, 28, of the Shakespeare avenue station, lay in the Alexian Brothers' hospital last night fighting for his life. Covey was shot early yesterday morning by George Webster, assistant secretary of the janitors' union, in front of the latter's home at 2448 North Sacramento avenue.

Webster, questioned last night by Sergt. T. J. Casey in the Shakespeare avenue station, insisted that he thought he was shooting at a burglar. Miss May Donovan, Webster's daughter, who was talking with the policeman on the porch, said her father's revolver blazed forth without warning.

Webster was booked later on a charge of assault and was released on $10,000 bonds.

Thought Is Was Burglar.

"We have had trouble with many burglars around the neighborhood lately," Webster told the police. "I thought this man was one and I shot him."

"I was sitting on the porch," said Miss Donovan, a divorcee, held at detention home No. 2. "I saw some strange man walking back and forth across the street. Father had been slugged a month ago and I was nervous. When Policeman Covey came along, I told him of my fears. The stranger disappeared and Covey decided to wait for him.

"Just then, my father came rushing out of the house half dressed. 'Who's there?' he shouted. No answer came and he fired."

Policeman in Uniform.

The policeman was in uniform. Webster said he is nearsighted and didn't notice the brass buttons or the star. He added that he had been compelled to chase several men recently, after they had tried to annoy his daughter.

SLICE $3,500,000 FROM BONDS OF ACCUSED BAKERS

Bail for the forty-four bakers indicted on charges of conspiracy by the Cook county grand jury last week was reduced yesterday from $3,960,000 to $440,000 by an agreement between Judge Charles A. McDonald and Assistant State's Attorney James E. McShane. Bonds for each defendant were set at $10,000.

Prosecutor McShane, in opposing a reduction, declared that 90 per cent of the men hit by the true bills were not American citizens and that they should have been indicted for sedition.

Two more names were added yesterday to the list of members of the Milk Drivers' union against whom indictments charging boycotting and conspiracy will be returned by the Cook county grand jury this week.

The new men, both of whom are alleged to have been active in boycotting customers and in using violence to enforce the union's orders, are Morris Friedman and N. A. Acree.

Holdup Victim Is Stabbed for Tardy Coming Through

Albert Michael, 2819 North Troy street, was robbed of $385 last night by a man armed with a knife, who stabbed him in the abdomen when he was tardy in handing over his money. The holdup took place at Belmont and Christiana avenues.

BOYS ATTACKING GIRL DESIST TO ROB SAMARITANS

Edith Woodruff, 15 years old, 2327 Grenshaw street, was under medical care at her home last night as the result of an attempted attack by four unidentified young men in a motor car early yesterday in Palos Park.

While the girl was resisting the youths a roadster drove up containing Dr. Raymond E. Sweeney and Miss Anna Gavin, a nurse, both of the Post-Graduate hospital, who had heard her cries and sought to help her.

The gangsters left Miss Woodruff lying in a faint in the tonneau of the car and proceeded to rob Dr. Sweeney of $240, his watch and chain, and coat. He was beaten over the head by one of the men. They took $39 from Miss Gavin and also her hat, and commandeered the roadster.

Take Girl to Her Home.

After the robbery the four men took Miss Woodruff to her home in the stolen car. She was found on the front doorstep by her mother, Mrs. Lena Woodruff. The Marquette police last night were hunting for the four youths.

"I knew one of the fellows as 'Johnnie,'" the girl told the police. "I met them at Leavitt and Van Buren streets. Sadie Weir, my chum, was with me. She is 16 and lives at Flournoy street and Hoyne avenue. We went for a ride. Then they let Sadie out and made me go with them to Palos Park.

"They made me drink a lot of wine."

After the robbery Dr. Sweeney and Miss Gavin walked a mile through plowed fields to a farmhouse. The roadster, which belonged to Dr. F. W. Bunn of the Post Graduate hospital, was found yesterday by the police in front of the Woodruff home.

Doctor Tells of Holdup.

"We were returning to Chicago from Palos Park," Dr. Sweeney said. "At 97th street and 92d avenue a small automobile was standing on the side of the road. One tire was missing. Four young men jumped out and brandished revolvers at us.

"One struck me over the head with the butt of his pistol. Then they held us up. A young girl, who was in the rear seat of their car, climbed into our machine, and the five of them drove off in it.

Suitcase Thief Gets $3,000 in Jewels as Owner Phones

PRICE REDUCTIONS!

Much of the public's buying reluctance is blamed on the retailer. Many retailers, it is said, have not given the public the benefit of price reductions made by manufacturers. In our case it is different—for we are manufacturers as well as retailers. To overcome this buying reluctance, we have cut prices on the bulk of our huge stocks of Grands, Uprights and Players, and have cut them vastly more than the actual decrease in manufacturing cost. Our newest and finest instruments are included, making it wiser to buy now than wait. Waiting will only deprive your family of the boon of music in the home. Right now we can arrange especially easy terms of payment.

1921 IS REWARDING FIGHTERS

KLAN IS WARNED BY GOV. BLAINE OF BADGER STATE

Answers Protests on the Organization.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 27.—Pledge was made by Gov. Blaine today in a letter to Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, that if the Ku Klux Klan in Wisconsin, "or its membership, violated the law, the entire power of the state will be used to protect the people in their liberty and their security."

The governor has received a petition signed by a large number of Milwaukee citizens and another signed by Maj. J. G. Joachim of Kenosha, in which it is urged that he use his influence to prevent the organization of the Klan in Wisconsin.

"With such a record as the Ku Klux Klan had during the period following the civil war, and steeped in crime as the Klan was, do you think that any liberty loving, law abiding sensible citizen of Wisconsin is going to join an order that is alleged to be a counterpart of the Klan of rebel days, if in fact it is?" the governor says in his letter. "I cannot engage in the presumption that the Klan will engage in violence or crime. I must indulge them the same presumption under our constitution that is granted others.

"However, permit me to say that as governor, I must make the pledge that, if its membership violates the law the entire power of the state will be used to protect the people in their liberty and their security.

"I must also suggest that the commission of any overt act or any violence by members of any organization may, as a legal conclusion, implicate and hold guilty the entire membership if a general conspiracy is proven.

"If Ku Klux Klan of today is like the Ku Klux Klan of rebel days, it has no place in Wisconsin."

Woman Resents Being Dubbed 'Old Rubber Neck'

Patrolman Joseph W. Schaefer has lived in the same block with Mrs. Ellen Murray, 5715 Maryland avenue, for eight years, and when he saw her looking at some tents at 60th street and Cottage Grove avenue on Aug. 15 he is alleged to have called her "an old rubber neck" and told her to be on her way. She reported Schaefer to Capt. Fred C. Gurney, who forwarded a report to Chief Fitzmorris. Charges have been drawn up against Schaefer, but have not yet been filed.

ADVANCE SALE OF OPERA SEATS BREAKS RECORD

The Chicago opera season of 1921-'22 took a step nearer realization yesterday when the subscription department broke the seals on 200,000 opera tickets and began the allotment of advance reservations for the subscription series—one night each week for ten weeks, beginning Nov. 14.

When the "pulling," as the operation is known in theatrical vernacular, had ceased, a total of $171,240 in reservations had been reached, with September and October, the two best selling months, still ahead.

Four men and a stenographer working under the direction of George M. Spangler, the new business manager, checked and rechecked the allotments—encountering but two errors in the several thousand reservations handled.

"To eliminate possibilities of scalping," declared Mr. Spangler, "no tickets will be mailed this year. We will ask each subscriber when they receive notice their tickets are ready to call in person with checks or cash. They will then be handed the tickets, which they will have an opportunity to examine before leaving. No tickets have been sold to hotel stands, and no scalping, direct or indirect, will be tolerated."

Early in September 50,000 pamphlets setting forth a detailed list of stars, operas and ballets to be given will be mailed, after which the real rush is anticipated.

Despite the large advance subscriptions, the locations already reserved represent approximately only one-third of the seating capacity of the Auditorium for the season, so that the best seats in all priced divisions are still available. As usual, the majority of seat reservations have been in the balconies and galleries—upsetting the popular impression that opera is only for the wealthy.

"The magnitude of the advance sale simply astounds us," declared Mr. Spangler. "The entire advance sale for last year was $177,000. By Sept. 1 we will have reached that figure, so that every seat reservation in the next two months, which ought to be our best selling months, will represent that much of an increase.

"To date the public has been buying in the dark, which can be interpreted in no other way than widespread confidence in Mary Garden's declaration that the forthcoming opera season will be the most brilliant Chicago has ever known. Spearman Lewis, whom I have assigned to our promotional work, has pledged himself to sell $100,000 more in reservations before our subscription books close Nov. 1."

ALDERMEN PLAN TO SEIZE GROUND FOR CITY DUMPS

Mayor's Friends Lay Dirty Alleys to Democrats.

An order directing the city law department to start condemnation proceedings against owners of twenty clay holes and abandoned quarries within the city limits, to be used as refuse dumps, will be introduced at the special meeting of the city council to be called by Mayor Thompson to consider the condition of the city's alleys.

Ald. John Toman began work on the council order yesterday. He declared that by purchasing the clay holes and filling them up with rubbish the city can create valuable property, some of which may be used for parks and playgrounds, and at the same time will reduce the cost of waste disposal.

Action Urged by Francis.

Ald. Toman's proposal is not new. Commissioner of Public Works Francis has been urging the aldermen to take the same course for more than two years. On March 31, May 7 and July 1 he urged the council finance committee "to take immediate action" on his request for authority to purchase dumps. On June 26 he urged the council to take action.

As early as March of this year the aldermen were asked to buy a clayhole at West 16th street and Kostner avenue, with a capacity of 1,600,000 square yards. They refused, however.

"The charge that city waste disposal is rendered inefficient by the subletting of team contracts by city hall favorites is untrue," Mr. Francis asserted. "The city pays $10.50 for teams. That is the union scale and they can't be hired for less and many contractors are paying more for the work of a teamster and his team for a day."

Lay Blame on Democrats.

Friends of Mayor Thompson charge that Democratic members of the city council "have allowed the refuse disposal question to slumber" in order to manufacture an issue for future political campaigns. The aldermen reply that the city hall leaders are playing politics with the question.

At present the long haul from the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, and Eighteenth wards to the Tessville dump at the northwest city limits permits the teams to make only one trip a day. The round trip distance is eighteen miles in some instances.

Judge J. W. Mack Upholds Actors' Equity Shop Pact

New York, Aug. 27.—The Equity shop policy of the Actors' Equity association was upheld today as legal and not in violation of sound public policy by Judge Julian W. Mack, referee in the controversy between the association and the Producing Managers' association. Under the equity shop policy, members of the equity association refused to play in the same theatrical companies with nonmembers.

The equity association's counsel declared that the policy affected only theatrical producers outside the managers' association and was the only means of restraining certain irresponsible theatrical managers from violating contracts and stranding actors.

Judge Mack held that the equity shop did not violate the basic agreement between managers and the actors' organization, reached at the conclusion of the actors' strike two years ago.

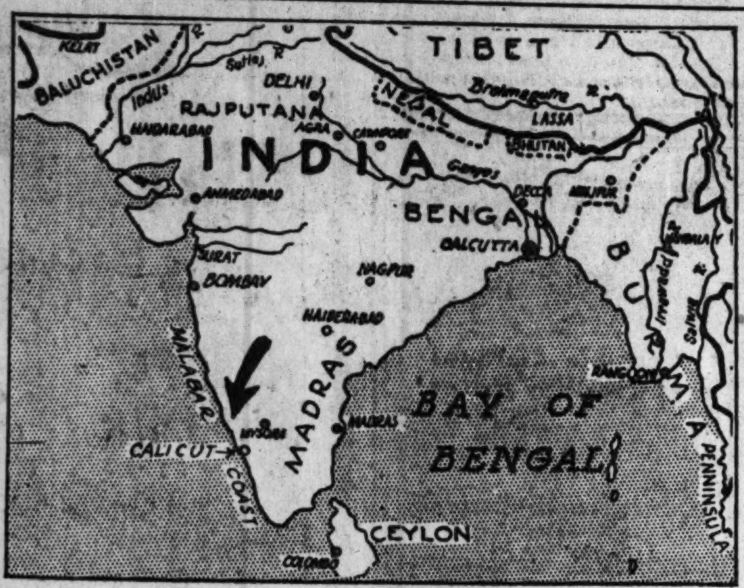
RIOT ZONE IN INDIA



MORE than 1,000 lives have been lost, it is feared, in the recent rioting near Calicut, on the Malabar coast, in India. Grave anxiety is felt for the British women and children in the outlying districts as the natives rise against the British. Many stations have been destroyed. Frequent clashes with the military forces are reported. The British attribute the outbreak to agitators, who have been active among the natives.

MALABAR AREA IN INDIA UNDER MILITARY RULE

MADRAS, India, Aug. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Malabar district of British Indian has been proclaimed a military area. This action was taken because of the serious aspect which the rioting by the Moplahs, or Mohammedan inhabitants of Arab descent, had assumed in the district.

Last week there were several cases of lootings and burnings. On Monday Magistrate Batty, with an armed force, proceeded to Pattambi, where a mob of Moplahs marching on the railway was encountered. The mob came rushing on, and machine guns were fired. It is believed the casualties must have been heavy, although the number is not known.

The police station at Charapalchary has been burned, the treasury at Periatalmanna looted, and the court there burned.

Soldiers Mutilated.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Conditions in the disturbed district south of Calicut, British India, are shown to be of considerable gravity in an official statement issued at the India office here. This statement, based on a telegram from Madras, which was filed in that city early on Friday, states that a mob of 2,000 made an attack upon the police in the town of Tirur, and later clashed with the Leinster platoon, which dispersed the rioters with machine guns. Lieuts. Rowley and Johnson became separated from their troops and were killed. Their bodies, terribly mutilated, were subsequently recovered.

GRAIN TEAMSTERS REJECT PAY CUT; LOSE THEIR JOBS

Two hundred nonunion teamsters and chauffeurs will be employed tomorrow morning by the hay, grain, and feed companies of Chicago in place of 250 members of the Hay and Grain Teamsters' union, who unanimously voted Friday night against a reduction in wages.

The agreement of March, 1920, giving the drivers $12 a week increases in wages, expired last night. After six weeks of delay the union representatives have refused a readjustment or arbitration, according to J. W. Badenoch, president of the dealers' association.

"When the cost of living went up, we allowed the men wage increases," said Charles H. Jensen, secretary of the employers' association. "Now that prices have dropped we feel the men should share in the readjustment."

OUTPUT OF SOFT COAL CONTINUES AVERAGE SLUMP

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Production of bituminous coal declined slightly during the third week of August, but was still above the average for July.

The total output for the week ended Aug. 20 is estimated by the Geological survey at 7,704,000 tons, a decrease of 52,000 tons when compared with the week preceding, but still a half million tons greater than the low point reached in the first week of August.

The year 1921 is in round numbers 35,000,000 tons behind 1919, 83,000,000 tons behind 1920, and about 111,000,000 tons behind the average of the war years.

Compared with the average of all four years, it is 85,000,000 tons behind.

LABOR DEMANDS SAME RIGHTS AS CORPORATIONS

Won't Suffer Longer, Say A. F. of L. Chiefs.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 27.—In order that corporate industries conducted under corporate grants shall be operated for the common good and "not merely for the profit of a class of men," the executive council of the American Federation of Labor tonight announced that it proposes to investigate this entire subject, so that the "people of our land may be fully and accurately apprised of the real situation of affairs."

Rights, privileges, and opportunities equal to those granted the corporate interests are demanded by the wage earners, said the council, declaring that an inquiry will also be made with a view of devising a comprehensive plan for the correction of the "grave dangers and great evils that have fastened themselves like barnacles upon our people."

To Demand Equal Rights.

"Organized labor," the statement said, "intends not to suffer longer under the persistent efforts being made to misrepresent their hopes, aims and aspirations, and to deny them equal rights and opportunities with all other classes of citizens. It intends to remove the smoke screen that has been raised to place into security those interests whose profits are enlarged when the people's suffering is increased—whose rights and powers are extended when the liberties and rights of the people are curtailed."

Deploring the discrimination against the workers in favor of organized industrial corporate interests, the council declared that it "will give attention to the revision of plans by which the group rights of wage earners may be fully recognized and adequately safeguarded."

Says Laws Hit Labor.

The council declared that the conspiracy and anti-combination laws were being misused against the workers in behalf of the corporate interests and referred especially to the Kansas Industrial court law as "only another attempt to deny the wage earners the right of organization and of collective decision to protect themselves against the encroachments of corporate wealth."

The council also declared that the judiciary departments of both federal and state governments have "seriously impaired the constitutional rights of the workers" and characterized some of their decisions, including those of the United States Supreme court, as "narrow, strained, and class biased interpretations."

The council announced its intention to investigate the methods used by the banking institutions and insurance companies of the country in handling the funds intrusted to their care for investment and safekeeping of the wage earners.

FOREST PRESERVE HAVEN FOR 2,341 CAMPERS, PICNICS

Permits for large picnics and camping privileges in the forest preserve have exceeded last year's number by more than 1,000, the total number to date being 2,341. Permits for campers expire Labor day, although a number will be extended. The advent of the hay fever season has brought applications from victims of that malady who hope to find relief by a brief stay in the deep woods.

Distribution of the second edition of the district's 1921 year book will begin in Room 547 County building tomorrow. Requests for the book have come in from individuals and organizations in nearly every state in the Union. The congressional library at Washington will be supplied with copies for distribution in various governmental departments, and the Chicago Plan committee has requested 500 copies. The Chicago public library ordered copies for the main library and all branches.

AIR SACRIFICES LAID AT DOOR OF PROPAGANDA GOD

New York, Aug. 27.—Seven victims of the aerial tragedy at Morgantown, Md., last May were killed in an illegitimate "propaganda flight," President Henry Woodhouse of the Aerial League of America charged in a report to Attorney General Daugherty tonight.

Col. Archie Miller and six others were killed when in returning from Langley field in an Eagle army ambulance plane the machine crashed in a terrific storm.

"The flights," Woodhouse charged, "were arranged by agents of a clique of aircraft manufacturers, at government expense, to spread propaganda in congress to obtain support for schemes to get larger aeronautic appropriations and retard grand jury investigation of apparent frauds in army aircraft contracts."

Woodhouse presented his report as part of an investigation requested by the department of justice into the destruction of government airplanes and other property.

THE HOME MAKERS

When considering the progress during the past decade we must not forget the strides made in the comforts and conveniences of American Homes.

It is not only in the cities that the call of Better Homes has been heard and answered. In the country each month sees greater care being used in the condition of the American Home. No longer is the plain and cheaply built furniture good enough. The farmer now wants and has the best. This desire has been created by a progressive policy of country stores and by the advertising of city stores.

In the city we see a natural progress of good taste in furnishing. People realize that a quiet but tasteful home atmosphere gives as definite dividends in happiness as a well managed, conservative business earns money dividends.

The result is a nation of clean, comfortable homes; of mothers who have time for other than tiring household tasks; of children who have a clean and refined opportunity to learn the duties and responsibilites that will surely fall upon them, and of fathers who have a delightful and restful home to come to after a hard day's work in the office, factory or fields.

Does not all this connect with peace loving, quiet, forceful men and women and a clean, wholesome policy?

ADELYNN WILL ROSS BRIDGE OF IGHS TOMORROW

benchain's Plea Shields Her from Public.

BY EDWARD J. DOHERTY.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Ralph R. Obenchain's devotion to his wife won a victory today over the state of California and the chivalry of the west, and established a precedent.

When Madelynn Connor Obenchain is taken into court Monday morning with Arthur Courtenay Burch to plead not guilty to the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, she will be taken over "The Bridge of Sighs," an inside passage leading from the jail to the court.

She will be the first woman prisoner accorded this courtesy. Hitherto every woman taken into court from the jail has had to pass through a crowd of people in Buena Vista street, has had to listen to their cries, jeers, insults.

Made Ill By Ordeal.

Mrs. Obenchain underwent this ordeal for the second time last Monday. She has been ill ever since. It was believed at one time that her illness might cause a postponement of the arraignment, but her former husband and her present attorney gave assurance this morning that Madelynn would be well enough Monday morning to enter her plea.

It is expected that Judge Sidney Reeves will set a date for the trial. Neither the state nor the defense seems anxious for an early trial, and it is probable the date set will be in October or November.

There has been much discussion as to whether the defendants will be tried separately or together. Obenchain and the Rev. W. A. Burch, in every interview given THE TRIBUNE, have stated the plans were for a joint trial. Attaches of the state, too, have intimated they wanted to try Madelynn and Burch at one time.

Burch for Joint Trial.

Arthur Burch is strongly of the opinion that he and Madelynn will stand trial together.

"My father is raising the money for the defense," he said today, "and while I do not know for certain. I believe the money will be split on a 50-50 basis for both of us."

TALKED HIMSELF INTO JAIL; THEN TALKED WAY OUT

Henry Mason, Negro, inhabitant of 2819 South Dearborn street, is proprietor of a versatile tongue. Friday it talked him into being arrested and yesterday, in the South Clark street court, it talked him out again.

Henry was nabbed when neighbors reported he was harboring white girls in his home. The charge was found to be false, but Henry made such a lengthy and impassioned plea on his own behalf that Lieut. Daniel Murphy booked him in self-defense for disorderly conduct.

Then, before Judge Wells M. Cook, Henry submitted documentary evidence to prove that he conducted a debating society at his home. As further proof he started a debate.

"Jedge, your honor, I'se de common deviser foh mah neighborhood," he perorated. "Hundreds of mah people comes to me foh legal devise. Why, jedge, your honor, I sent three sons to the world wah and——"

After twenty minutes of this the court discharged him and sent out for some medicated cotton to soothe its ears.

DESPONDENT WOMAN ENDS LIFE.
Despondency over the separation of herself and husband, which occurred eleven years ago, caused Mrs. Lila Oszarth Henter, 35 years old, to drown herself in a quarry pool north of La Grange yesterday.

Identify Aged Woman Killed by Elevated Train

The woman killed late Friday night by a Metropolitan elevated train at the Home avenue station in Oak Park was identified yesterday as Mrs. Frieda Moore, 60, 3909 West Monroe street. Identification was made by Mrs. Fred Moore, a daughter-in-law, 829 Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park.

The police are investigating a rumor that the woman committed suicide.

WHEN you look at these illustrations you don't get much idea of the remarkable beauty of this furniture; it's so difficult to convey its charm, that we don't try; we just give you the general lines, and tell you about it as well as we can; and if you really want to see some of the finest things we ever had, you'll have to come to the store.

We're tempted to say that this bedroom suite, in richness of material, in beauty of design, in excellence of construction, is the best we've ever offered; but when we think of some of the other wonderful things we've had here, and that our customers now possess and enjoy, we decide not to say that.

But every time we look at it, open the drawers and examine the wonderful cabinet work, or pass a hand lovingly over its satin-like surface, we're invited to employ superlative language.

And the prices are not the least interesting item in it; when you see the goods you'll wonder how such prices are possible; for they're not simply very low prices for good furniture, but they're astonishingly low for furniture that has so much to commend it as this.

We hope you'll come in and let us look at it with you; it's a pleasure to see such merchandise. We are sure we have a number of customers who are going to have that pleasure in their own homes for years to come.

$21 CONSCIENCE MONEY WILL AID POOR CHILDREN

BY REV. G. A. MAC WHORTER.

"Ill blows the wind that profits nobody," says the old song in "Henry VI.," and so Camp Algonquin will benefit by an undertaking that came to naught when its promoters found it was only "a gambling proposition." The following letter, which is a splendid commentary on the honesty of its writer, is the most unusual contribution that has yet been received by the Camp Algonquin fund:

"Gentlemen: I recently undertook to sell punch board prizes, and as this appeared as a gambling proposition I have obtained the consent of all those who participated to turn over the money so received to the Algonquin fund, which is handled by you. The proceeds amount to $21 and for which enclose please find check.

[Signed] "ANNETE M."

It would not be fair to publish the name and address of the writer of this letter, but Diogenes would not have to seek much further for an honest person if he would look up this name and address.

Camp Fund Now $5,162.76.

Together with a check for $5 from Ruth Lindstrom, this $21 check will bring the Camp Algonquin fund today from $5,136.76 up to $5,162.76.

For three weeks, eight little folk out in the neighborhood of 6749 Ridgeland avenue, have been working on their costumes for the play called "The Lost Princess," which will be produced for the sole benefit of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund. They have already sold $12 worth of tickets, at 10 cents for adults and 5 cents for children, and we wish them all manner of success in their undertaking.

These Children to Act.

The children who will take part in the performance of "The Lost Princess" in the back yard of 6749 Ridgeland avenue this week are: Emily and Jean Craig, Ruth and Frank Metcalf, Evelyn and Myron Larson, Martha Hofmann, and Margaret Duffey.

MAN KILLED, BOY DIES, RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

Alex J. Joicki died at his residence, 4741 South Rockwell street, yesterday afternoon a few hours after an automobile driven by Huntley Kelsey, a neighbor, his him as he was crossing the street near his home.

John Tassel, 6, 5612 South Racine avenue, died at the German Deaconess hospital early in the morning. He was struck by a machine on Friday.

While riding a pushmobile in the vicinity of his home, 4032 South Maplewood avenue, John Caven, 9, was struck by an automobile piloted by Anakletas Rindzus of 3101 West 38th street. At the Illinois General hospital it was said his skull had been fractured.

Perry Beeman, farmer from Lebanon, Ind., suffered a skull fracture yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Trumbull, 422 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, in front of the Park row station. Trumbull was held by the police.

Ask Hoover to Attend Trade Convention Here

Efforts are being made to have Secretary of Commerce Hoover present at the second annual convention of the American Trade association executives, which opens a three day session at the Drake hotel Oct. 26. Among the speakers will be O. B. Towne of the Waxed Paper Manufacturers' association, J. E. Rhodes of the Southern Pine association, and Alfred Reeves of the National Automobile chamber of commerce.

Give Benefit Matinee for Sergt. Egan's Mother

"The Love Chef," in which Leo Carillo is playing at the Playhouse, will have an extra matinée next Friday. The performance will be an expression of the sympathy of theater folk for the mother of Sergt. Thomas J. Egan, who died of wounds suffered in a battle with a youthful bandit near the home of Chief Fitzmorris. The benefit has the hearty coöperation of the chief as well as all members of the theatrical profession playing in Chicago.

Zion Merchants Who Defy Tax Law Freed from Cells

Ernest C. Garner and John Irvine, two Zion City business men, incarcerated Thursday night by Justice of the Peace W. E. Schmallfuss for not having paid a tax levied on local merchants, were released yesterday by Judge C. C. Edwards of Waukegan. The men were held all night. They threaten to bring suit against Chief of Police Theodore Becker for $10,000 on a charge of false imprisonment.

PACKARD

The immense and growing popularity of the Packard Single-Six is due, first, to the car's inherent quality, and second, to the superior character of its performance. In action it is powerful and reliable; its pick-up is swift and strong; its riding qualities are little short of amazing. Already, more than 4,000 Single-Sixes are in the hands of owners, delivering traditional Packard service at exceedingly low cost. Originally the Packard Single-Six touring car was priced at $3640; it is now $2975, f. o. b. Detroit.

YOU CAN SAFELY EXPECT FROM THE PACKARD SINGLE-SIX A YEARLY AVERAGE OF 17 MILES OR BETTER TO THE GALLON OF GASOLINE, 2,000 MILES OR BETTER TO THE GALLON OF OIL, AND 15,000 MILES OR BETTER FROM TIRES.

"HOME OF THE BABY LOBSTER"

Big portions are one feature of the North American Restaurant which help reduce your dining costs. Because most of our portions are ample for two, and there is no extra charge when you share them, two people can get a complete lunch or dinner here for a very small sum.

Not in Chicago—or in Any Other City—is There a Restaurant Just Like This

Whole Baby Lobster, hot or cold, with melted butter or chili sauce	65c
Breast of Chicken, with Bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce	65c
Chicken, dark meat, with Bacon	55c
Tenderloin Steak	75c
Pork Tenderloin	35c
1 dozen Shrimps with Cocktail Sauce	30c
Chicken Salad (all white meat)	50c

It would be unfair to attempt to compare the North American Restaurant with other dining places here or elsewhere—unfair to the others. The North American Restaurant is the utmost expression of the one big and new idea in restaurants which has been developed during the past twenty-five years. And it is a real idea.

For the sake of argument suppose we divide all dining places into two classes: The places where "service" is the rule and food is brought to your table and the places where you serve yourself.

Both have made mistakes. The better restaurants and hotels made the mistake of worshipping "service." Service stuck out in every direction, until one might well ask, "What am I buying here—food or service?" The food was good but the customer's money had to pay not only for food, but for service as well. Service costs money, so prices were necessarily high. Sometimes the service was good—often it was bad—but you paid for it just the same.

The other class went to the other extreme. In their efforts to get prices down to bed-rock (a laudable purpose and the keynote of their success) they cut the size of portions until many of them were mere "dabs." Every possible means was used to reduce costs.

But where is the happy medium, which gives us, at Common Sense prices, exactly what we were accustomed to eating?

The North American Restaurant is the answer because it has combined the advantages of both classes and eliminated the disadvantages. Costly "service" has been cut out, getting prices down to reason. On the other hand it is a real Restaurant in every sense of the word.

The restaurant itself is a big, beautiful room. It is kept comfortable, no matter what the weather, by one of the finest ventilating systems ever installed. On hot days you breathe pure air, washed and cooled. And in the winter, pure air, washed and heated. You dine at your own table. You get big portions (often ample for two) of the finest food in the market. But because costly "service" has been eliminated the prices are 40 to 60 per cent below those of other good restaurants and hotels where "service" is the rule.

Bring the "Kiddies"

This is one restaurant where youngsters are welcome. Plenty of high chairs and, for 15 cents, a bottle of the richest certified milk possible.

And our portions are so large that usually the food the youngsters eat costs nothing extra.

FARMERS OPPOSE VALUATION PLAN OF TARIFF BILL

Mr. Congressman to Get Some Decided Views.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Congressman Thistletuft of the middle west, home for the recess, will need no ear trumpet, it seems, to catch what the home folks are saying about the tariff and tax situation at Washington. Agriculture, as viewed by the officials of some of the largest farmers' organizations with headquarters in Chicago, is taking the following general position:

Tariff—Farmers in general are opposed to the "American valuation" plan on which the Fordney bill is based. They regard it as a cumulative tariff wall behind which the American manufacturer would practically determine the amount of customs to be paid on competing imports. The results, they argue, would be a stifling of imports, a boosting of prices, and freezing up of many foreign outlets for our surplus farm products. On this point, agriculture and the ordinary business man and manufacturer seem to be in accord.

Against Profits Tax Repeal.

Tax Revision—Unlike business and industry, generally speaking, the farming regions, experts declare, are against repeal of the excess profits tax. The cut in surtaxes on higher incomes is criticized by agriculture on the ground that to be fair the adjustment should be uniform on all size incomes. On this, business and industry are divided, some for the cut as proposed; others against.

On tax exemption of securities the farmers hold that the need is imperative to call a halt—at present $30,000,000,000 of property is estimated to be wholly or partly exempt from taxation, and the volume of tax exempt securities is now increasing at a terrific clip. This reform is also being extensively urged in business and manufacturing circles.

Farmer Chief's Views.

J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, which has some 1,300,000 members which is about one-fifth of the total number of farmers in the United States, yesterday looked at the tax-revision-tariff situation from the agricultural point of view.

"Our federation," said Mr. Howard, "emphatically insists that the measure of ability to pay taxes is net income and the bulk of taxes should be levied and collected on the basis of net income; that taxes should be progressive —the higher the income the higher the rate; that this is a country of all the people and all the people should have some part in supporting the government, hence a certain part of our revenues should justly be raised by tariffs and other consumptive taxes; that in so far as is practical, taxes should be so levied as to tend to the distribution of wealth in the hands of the many and not to its concentration in the hands of the few.

Must Be Shown Alternative.

"We have considered the opposition to the excess profits tax by the business interests of the country, but we cannot advocate its repeal unless means of obtaining revenue from the same sources in accordance with the principles I have just set forth may be determined.

"We believe the present plan of a flat rate on corporations to be unjust to the smaller corporations of low dividend earning power, and that it grants undue favor to the wealthier corporations earning larger dividends, who, in place of being taxed on a progressive rate of earnings, would be taxed on the flat rate.

"The scaling of the higher brackets of income taxes from 50 per cent surtax top may be desirable, but the readjustment has been to too low a figure and it will discriminate against the man of medium earning power. Any readjustment should apply horizontally to all classes to be fair. We would have been much better satisfied had the higher brackets been left at approximately 50 per cent.

Opposes Tax Exempt Paper.

"Tax exempt securities? Well, very conservative estimates are that at least $16,000,000,000 of bonds and securities are totally exempt from taxes, and an additional $25,000,000,000 to $30,000,000,000 are partially exempt. These securities are property just as much as our farms or city homes or stocks of merchandise, and it is unfair that they would not bear their just share of taxation.

"The valuation of all farm property including buildings and other improvements, according to the 1920 census, was $67,795,965,384. Thus the tax exempt securities constitute a valuation of almost one-half the farm wealth of the nation and the farmer bears his proportion of the additional burden of taxation because of these tax exempt securities.

Tariff a Consumptive Tax.

"The tariff is one of the principal consumptive taxes. Much has been said by the farmers in favor of agricultural tariffs. There is no doubt in our mind that the farmer is just as much entitled to protection on his product as is the manufacturer, and we have consistently supported this contention. We do not, however, believe that this is a time for tariff barriers so high as to stop a free exchange of world commodities."

Average Reduction on All Models Since Last Year

Price Now—$1895

And remember that for five years, including last year, when it sold at $2600, the Hudson Super-Six was the largest selling fine car in the world.

At its new price of $1895 doesn't it represent incomparably the greatest value in the fine car market?

No judicious buyer today makes his choice without comparing not only the present price of cars, but also their relative values as indicated by the position and reputation they have held for years.

It Redoubles Hudson's Value Advantage

There is no need to call attention to the quality, ability and distinction of Hudson. Its leadership in these is a long acknowledged position. It is now in its sixth year as the largest selling fine car. In every way that proof can be offered it has established its right to that eminence.

Many of its official records are of five years' standing. They have been challenged incessantly. Isn't it significant that five years of intensive competition has produced no rival to outstrip them?

And consider that many Super-Sixes are today rendering smooth, dependable duty after more than 100,000 miles of service.

Does any car within its new price range deserve consideration upon the basis of comparative proofs?

And among higher priced cars where will you find any desirable quality that Hudson at $1895 does not give in equal measure?

CONCESSION FIRM GIVES UP PROFITS MADE AT PAGEANT

City Hall Men to Take Pay Only for Services.

The Great Lakes Concession company, which dispensed the ice cream, red hots and soft drinks at the Pageant of Progress, was organized for private profit but the city hall adherents who formed the concern have decided, in view of Judge Swanson's order for an accounting, they will forego their profits and accept "only legitimate pay for their time."

This announcement followed the news that F. Bowden De Forest, president of the concern, and Edgar A. Jonas, its secretary-treasurer, had visited the offices of the collector of internal revenue in the federal building and left behind them a check for $9,700 to cover the government tax on sales made during the pier exposition.

Expect Charges to Fall.

Health Commissioner Robertson, who was held responsible by Mayor Thompson for the pier concessions, is said to have given the order to De Forest and Jonas to expect no profits from their venture. With the promoter's refusal to accept their gains, pageant officials believe that the charge that, indirectly at least, the exposition was used for private profits by the mayor's friends will fall flat.

Mr. De Forest is a member of the board of directors of the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium of which Dr. Robertson is president. Attorney Jonas was formerly attorney for the sanitarium.

Auditors now at work on the concession company's books have reported that the gross receipts will amount to approximately $160,000. Under the concern's agreement with the pageant corporation, 10 per cent, or $16,000 will be turned into the pageant treasury. A similar amount goes to the hundreds of nurses who worked as clerks and soft drink dispensers but were paid nothing.

Graduates of Robertson School.

The nurses are graduates of the home and public health nursing school organized by Health Commissioner Robertson two years ago.

"I understand," Dr. Robertson said, "that De Forest and Jonas have decided not to accept the profits which they are legally entitled to. They will take a reasonable amount to cover their time and expenses."

Persons familiar with the organization of the concession company say that expenses were more than $100,000. The profits of the company are not known, but are estimated to have been more than $10,000.

Dr. Robertson denied a report that a part of the $9,700 payment to the government was in the nature of a penalty for the company's failure to keep an accurate account of the refreshment orders sold.

"The nurses were at first unfamiliar with the check system of keeping account of the war tax," Dr. Robertson said. "In some cases they did not put aside war tax slips on each order. In such cases the government agents decided the amount of the tax by estimating the number of orders sold from bills showing the amount of ice cream, sirup, etc., used."

GLORIES OF THE PAST REVIVED FOR FIRE FETE

Old Fort Dearborn courthouse square, the peristyle and court of honor of the World's Fair, will be among the "glories of a departed day" that will be recreated at the semi-centennial of the Chicago fire, to be observed in Grant park Oct. 3 to 8.

All the artistic genius of the city's designers and painters will be called upon in the presentation of a festival play, for which an ampitheater, seating 25,000 persons, will be erected through the courtesy of the south park board.

The play will consist of six scenes, with a prelude. The prelude will give "the story of the past and the prophesy of the future." Then, beginning with the coming of Marquette and Joliet in 1673, the elevation of the cross, and the prophecy of the drainage canal, in the first scene, the play will recall the march of the Spanish from St. Louis and the French from Kaskaskia to Fort Dearborn, beneath its flag then of fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The massacre of 1812, the signing of the Indian treaty of 1833, South Water street in 1835, and the war dance of the Pottawatomies will be reproduced.

The play also will depict the Chicago zouaves and light artillery on their way to join Grant in Cairo, the holocaust of 1871, when buildings crumbled and toppled in the flames, and the Chicago of the days of the world war. The climax of the picture will come with a "revelation" of the Chicago of the future.

A cast of 2,000, a chorus of 500, and an orchestra of 60 will present the spectacle. The scenario books and lyrics are the work of Wallace Rice, the music is by Edward Moore, music critic of THE TRIBUNE, and the prelude by Donald Robertson, festival playmaster.

The play will be given through the coöperation of many organizations, including the Association of Commerce.

Surely the Great Novel of the Year

IF WINTER COMES

By
A. S. M. HUTCHINSON

From the first four reviews:

Edwin Francis Edgett, in the Boston Transcript:

No review, no amount of comment or praise, can reveal the warm humanity of this story. It is more serious in manner and plot than "Once Aboard the Lugger," "The Happy Warrior" and "The Clean Heart," with an intense and deep note that is undoubtedly the outcome of its author's mental and physical experiences during the war. Rarely if ever has any such man as Mark Sabre appeared in a novel before, although now that we see him in Mr. Hutchinson's pages he is the perfect incarnation of one aspect of a very lovable masculine mankind. If ever the mirror were held up to nature, it is held up by Mr. Hutchinson in "If Winter Comes"; if ever man were recreated in a literary image, that man is his Mark Sabre.

John Clair Minot, in the Boston Herald:

And this is a novel of distinction. Have no doubt about that, those of you unhappily unfamiliar with Hutchinson's earlier work. There is a sense of power in the way the whole thing sweeps along, through the development of character and the unfolding of plot, to the tremendously intense climax that you rarely find in contemporary fiction.

William Lyon Phelps, in the New York Times:

"If Winter Comes" is not only a thrilling tale, it is an important work of art. It has a real and skillfully constructed plot; the hero is unforgettable, and even the minor characters are impressively human; it abounds in humor and wit, the laughter of fun and the laughter of the mind; it is based on the spiritual truth revealed to the world some nineteen hundred years ago. I do not know when I have had more continuous enjoyment in reading a new book.

"If Winter Comes" is one of the best books of our times. Its author is a creative artist and a spiritual force.

Heywood Broun, in the New York Tribune:

"If Winter Comes" deserves the attention of all readers who love fine prose combined with deep and warm feeling for character. Mark Sabre is one of the most fully revealed persons we have encountered in any novel for a year. . . . With the exception of Tarkington's "Alice Adams" we have not read any book this year of such sustained feeling. We think that "If Winter Comes" is the best novel in English which has come from the war.

PRODUCING CASH FOR PRODUCE IS CONGRESS' TASK

Insurance May Supplant Credit for Farmer.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Congress, when it resumes the special session in October, will devote special attention to the growing necessity for agricultural relief. One of the measures pending which will be given renewed consideration is the McFadden-Kenyon rural credit and multiple insurance bill, which has already had preliminary hearing before the house subcommittee on banking and currency and the joint commission of agricultural inquiry.

The bill is designed especially to provide capital instead of credit for agricultural production. Every witness who has thus far appeared for the measure has emphasized the danger of substituting credit for capital in the financing of agricultural enterprise.

The time required for agricultural reproduction is too long, and where bad banking practice is employed the credit stream becomes clogged, thus precipitating financial crises such as have occurred recently.

Provisions of Bill.

The McFadden-Kenyon bill proposes to create two corporations, a rural credit society with a central bank, forty-eight branches, one for each state, and any number of community associations composed of farmers, and one multiple insurance league, both by separate federal charters.

The multiple insurance charter is broad and liberal, authorizing the corporation to insure against any contingency, just as is provided by the charters of many of the British insurance companies, some of which have operated more than two centuries. It is proposed to induce one of the big life insurance companies to accept this federal multiple insurance charter and surrender its state charter.

The multiple insurance league is to serve two purposes. First, to furnish sound and cheap multiple insurance to the members of the credit society, as a security for credit, and second, to become a guarantor of the credit society itself by furnishing the capital for its branches aggregating $2,400,000, electing its auditors, who would inspect the credit society and hold one of the keys to its securities vaults.

There is nothing novel in the plan of furnishing cheap multiple insurance to the members of the credit society, so as to enable the tenant farmer to furnish as good security for credit as the richest farmer, as this has been tried in Europe for years. This has placed European agricultural credit on a sounder basis than prevails here, where the tenant farmer is required to furnish an endorser.

How Plan Works Out.

But that is a protection to the seller rather than to the tenant, for if the credit is for the purchase of a cow and she dies, the tenant will owe the debt and have no cow, whereas if he takes cattle insurance on the cow the debt would be canceled and the tenant placed in a position to buy another cow.

The novelty of the plan consists in the use of a life insurance company to become a credit insurance company as well as a multiple insurance company. This is analogous to the British commercial credit system in the use of the "acceptance house," which is nothing more or less than a credit insurance company.

It was contended by the experts who appeared at the hearings on this measure that the big life insurance company would prove an ideal "acceptance house" or credit insurance company for the rural credit system because its financial stability is established to a high degree among the wage earners of our industrial and financial centers.

As one of the experts testified at the hearings, "It is too frequently the case that the city man looks on the farmer as a joke, and no one can do business with another who does not take him seriously. But the city man looks on the big life insurance company with confidence and trust, as evidenced by his patronage of that institution."

R. BRUCE WATSON DIES FROM HEART ATTACK; NOTED AS ARCHITECT

R. BRUCE WATSON. [Harrison Photo.]

R. Bruce Watson, well known politician and former state architect, died suddenly from a heart attack in his home at 225 South Central Park boulevard shortly after 7 o'clock last night. Mr. Watson was born in Chicago, Jan. 15, 1869, and his first attempt at architecture was in winning a prize for drawing when he was graduated from the public schools.

As an employe of Burnham & Root he spent four years in designing and constructing buildings for the World's Columbian exposition in 1893. He later organized the firm of Watson & Hazleton.

He was appointed city architect by Mayor Swift and designed and built some of the city's pumping stations. He was appointed county architect in 1898 and was made state architect by Gov. Tanner in 1899.

Mr. Watson was married twice. In 1911 he gained considerable publicity when he was shot twice and wounded by Mrs. George C. Coney in front of his South Central Park avenue home. He had been named co-respondent as "Richard Roe" in Coney's divorce suit a year previous. Two years later Mr. Watson and Mrs. Coney were married.

Mr Watson was an active member of the Chicago Athletic association, of which he formerly was a director. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Harriett B. Watson, and one daughter, Jane. Funeral services will be held at the family residence at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Burial will be at Rosehill.

ALIMONY DEBTOR PAYS PART AND GAINS FREEDOM

Leo Leslie Dunlap, who has spent the last two days in the county jail for nonpayment of $500 back alimony to his wife, Irene Dunlap, 5250 Indiana avenue, was released yesterday on an order by Judge Fred Rush of the Superior court upon the payment of $200.

Dunlap, who is the son of J. W. Dunlap, president of the Arrow Motor Truck company, came in for a scoring a few days ago when his wife told the court he had left her to join the army two weeks after they were married.

The court told Dunlap that a husband's first duty was to his home and that a man who would desert his family in the manner related would never make a valuable soldier.

Dr. Wekerle, Five Times Premier of Hungary, Dies

BUDAPEST, Aug. 27.—Dr. Alexander Wekerle, five times premier of Hungary, died here today. Dr. Wekerle entered the Hungarian cabinet as minister of finance in 1886. He became premier in 1906, remaining in power three years. He was again called upon to head the Hungarian cabinet in 1917, and three times more between that date and the signing of the armistice he headed the government. Early in 1919 Dr. Wekerle was arrested on the charge of being implicated in a revolutionary plot, but was set free because of his advanced age, 72 years.

'WE DON'T WANT TO GO HOME,' CRY YANKS ON RHINE

Hope Rumor Peace Means Moving Is False.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1921: By the Chicago Tribune.]

COBLENZ, Aug. 27.—Reports that the American forces in Germany are to be recalled as soon as the senate ratifies the treaty of peace spread like wildfire in the Coblenz area, provoking general dissatisfaction in all ranks.

For a long time to the members of the Rhine forces the strongest disciplinary measure possible was to be sent home for infractions of rules. A high state of discipline and order has been maintained since delinquents have been shipped back to the United States. Only men of the highest and cleanest records are included in the drafts sent to Coblenz as replacements.

It has been rumored so often to the Americans that they were to be withdrawn from the Rhine that today's report did not arouse much credence. It was realized by some, however, that because of the signing of peace with Germany there might be some foundation for an accurate report and certain popular leaders among the men stated their intentions of drawing up round robins addressed to the senators urging that the American forces be permitted to remain on the Rhine.

The German civilian population received the reports with dismay, fearing that they will lose the trade of the well paid Americans and afraid that the Yanks might be replaced with French troops.

Berlin's Aid.

A number of leading German citizens have announced their intention of petitioning the Berlin government, demanding that Wilhelmstrasse officially request the state department to maintain the American troops on the Rhine so long as the occupation lasts.

The principal reason why the American soldiers desire to remain on the Rhine is high wages, as every dollar purchases ninety-eight marks and the American authorities keep prices of goods and food regulated. The next most important reason is that there is prohibition at home, whereas on the Rhine they can enjoy beer and wines and can afford to buy choice French champagnes.

Another factor is that many soldiers have married German girls, others are engaged, and all have sweethearts. They enjoy good billets, have excellent food and are enabled to make interesting trips on their furloughs—to Paris, London, Berlin, Rome, Monte Carlo and Brussels.

The officers find Coblenz attractive, most of them having automobiles at their disposal, or are able to buy or rent motor cars. The finest accommodations are available in the best hotels, servants are cheap, and Weisbaden with its casino and gaming rooms is only a few hours away by motor.

The welfare workers—Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, Salvation Army, and Knights of Columbus—all sympathize with the soldiers, they preferring to remain in Coblenz.

"Don't Want to Go Home."

"We do not want to go home," sang a big crowd of doughboys at the Y. M. C. A. house this afternoon, paraphrasing an old war song.

The newspaper published by the American soldiers on the Rhine already has received a bunch of letters protesting against being returned to the United States, and many men are writing to the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE.

That lies within our hearts concealed.
Peaceful be thy rest, dear mamma;
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Mamma, darling, we are lonesome,
For we miss your loving face,
But you left us to remember
That none on earth can take your place.
Gone but not forgotten.

CHICAGO FRIENDS OF MRS. DIBBLEE PAY LAST TRIBUTE

Friends paid their last respects at the home of the late Mrs. Laura Field Dibblee, 1100 Lake Shore drive, yesterday and attended the services which were held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church.

Mrs. Dibblee was the sister of the late Marshall Field Sr. Her death occurred Aug. 24 in York Harbor, Me.

Among those who visited the home to express their sympathy was Miss Edna Foley, head of the Visiting Nurses' association. The association has been one of Mrs. Dibblee's particular charities since 1907. She had contributed to the entire support of one nurse for fourteen years and made possible the success of an entire section of the association's work. This she did as a memorial to the late Sedalia Field, her mother. The burial was private.

Mrs. Catherine Simpson Will Be Buried Tomorrow

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Parkhurst Simpson of Lake Bluff will take place tomorrow at 10 a. m. from her late residence. Mrs. Simpson is survived by her husband, Charles G. Simpson, and M. Gilliland, Cathleen, and G. Lyman Simpson, her children. She was the daughter of the late Rev. M. M. Parkhurst.

Funeral of W.M.M'Cormick Will Be Held on Tuesday

The funeral of William M. McCormcik, 917 West 35th place, son of former Ald. James J. McCormick, will be held Tuesday at his late residence. Interment will be made at Mount Olivet cemetery, after high mass at Nativity church.

BERGMANN—Virginia Mary Bergmann, beloved infant daughter of Adolph and Georgia, Saturday, Aug. 27. Funeral Monday, Aug. 29, at 2 o'clock, from late residence, 1020 So. Cuyler-av., to Bohemian National cemetery.

JAPAN'S VICTORY PUTS TEAM INTO DAVIS CUP FINAL

Defeats Australian Men in Singles Matches.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 27.—[Specail.]—Japan won the right to challenge the United States for possession of the Davis cup this morning when Ichiya Kumagae defeated J. O. Anderson, the rangy Australian, 3—6, 7—5, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1, and gained the third and deciding match of the series. The final score stood 4 to 1 in favor of the Nipponese, for in the anti-climax match this afternoon Zenzo Shimidzu took the toll of J. B. Hawkes, 4—6, 6—0, 6—2, 6—3.

ZENZO SHIMIDZU.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

It cannot be said that today's tennis was more brilliant than that of the preceding two days. The Japs played their usual steady, enduring game, gradually wearing out the men from down under, although Anderson must be given credit for playing a headier and craftier game against Kumagae than he did when he lost to Shimidzu on Thursday.

Anderson Starts Strong.

Anderson gave every indication of winning during the early part of the fray. He took the first three games, starting with his own service—not on his own earned points, but on Kumagae's errors, for of the 18 points in the first trio of games the bespectacled Jap netted six times and put the ball out for the count of 11, the Australian earning only one point, on a placement shot in the second game. Kumagae took the fourth and sixth on his own service, and then Anderson ran out the set to the tune of 6—3.

Kumagae launched into the lead in the second set. He took two games, the first on his own service at love on four outs by Anderson, and was not headed until the eighth game. He had things his own way until it stood 4—1, when the antipodean hit his stride again.

Plays Rushing Game.

He had been staying back, but he suddenly started rushing to the net and for a while he was placing things all around the Jap, taking four games in a row, and tying the score at 5 all. But he had shot his bolt. The next went to deuce, and he lost, and then Kumagae took the final game at love, for the set.

Anderson had things all his own way in the third set, and he rushed Kumagae off his feet, outscoring him 32 to 21 for a tally of 6—2.

The Jap took the first game on his own service, and by a remarkable show of speed Anderson ran out five games in a row. He was flashing the ball past Kumagae time and again, and putting it where the eventual victor could just about touch it with his racquet. Kumagae took the seventh game on his own service, but Anderson capped the set in the eighth.

Pace Tells on Anderson.

As the fourth set opened it was plain that the pace was telling on Anderson, but Kumagae showed no evidence of fatigue whatever. Anderson really beat himself. He had thirty-three errors to twelve for Kumagae, although the latter scored only five placements to Anderson's fourteen. The final set was a repetition of the fourth. Kumagae took it at 6—1, Anderson winning only one game, the second, on his own service at love.

The afternoon match between Shimidzu and Hawkes drew a fairly large gathering. Hawkes ran out the first set in a surprisingly easy manner, giving every indication of winning from his opponent; but again the stability of the easterner held true. He played a waiting game, forced the Australasian to keep to the base line, and eventually tired him out.

TILDEN, PAIRED WITH RICHARDS, NEW NET CHAMPS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 27.—William T. Tilden II. and Vincent Richards today regained the national doubles lawn tennis championship. In a match marked by supertennis, especially on the part of the youthful Richards, they defeated the eastern doubles champions, R. Norris Williams II. and W. M. Washburn, in straight sets, 13—11, 12—10, 6—1.

The national mixed doubles title went west, Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles and William M. Johnston of San Francisco defeating William T. Tilden II. and Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Miss Browne defeated Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, San Francisco, in the final of the women's singles, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3.

In the finals for the national junior championship, Vincent Richards beat Arnold W. Jones, Providence, R. I., 6—4, 6—3.

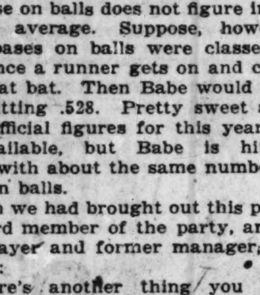
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

BABE RUTH'S VALUE.

"BABE RUTH is a record player and not as valuable as a man of much less ability who is giving everything to his team rather than trying for a home run all the time," remarked the casual fan as three of us were discussing Yankee chances for the American league pennant.

We do not believe Ruth is a record player in the sense the term is generally used. True, Babe is trying for home runs, but the very possibility of producing them is a tremendous asset for any team. Just consider also how many passes he receives during a season.

In 1920 Babe was charged with 458 times at bat, which produced 172 hits, including 54 homers, for a batting average of .376. But Babe also received 148 bases on balls, most of them intentional. In effect, they are not as good as singles, because a man cannot go from first to third or score from second, but they fill up the bases. Then its up to succeeding batters.



A base on balls does not figure in the batting average. Suppose, however, those bases on balls were classed as hits, since a runner gets on and called a time at bat. Then Babe would have been hitting .528. Pretty sweet average! Official figures for this year are not available, but Babe is hitting higher with about the same number of bases on balls.

When we had brought out this point, the third member of the party, an old time player and former manager, cut in with:

"There's another thing you both overlook. That's the mental effect on the pitcher. He's unconsciously thinking of Babe even when he pitches to the others. A youngster would feel it more than a veteran, but it gets to all of them. It affects their work. You know a pitcher never thinks he is off himself. It's his arm, or his stomach, or his head. Well, when Babe's in the game, if it isn't his stomach, it's his heart."

Poker Series—No. IV.

THE WILD GAME HOUND.

And now the biggest boob, I wot,
Who ever tried to win a pot!
We've hardly had one hand around
Before he starts—the wild game hound—
With "Say, this old men's stuff is slow,
Let's play another game I know.
You take the treys and deuces out
And run the joker wild about
A half a dozen hands and then
You'll never fool with this again,
And, O yes, how about some stud,
With black cards wild." We thirst for blood,
We yearn to rend him limb from limb—
But why waste strength on fools like him.

Farm for the Cubs.

Purchase of the Los Angeles club by William Wrigley does not come as a surprise to those who knew the deal was on the fire last winter. There was a difference then on the purchase price. Meantime the coast season opened to good crowds and Owner Powers did not care particularly to sell.

The coast league plays good baseball. Many stars have come from that organization. The acquisition may prove a decided advantage in the necessary rebuilding of the north side team.

I. A. C. RELAYERS CLIP 6 SECONDS OFF OLD RECORD

Miss Sybil Bauer Victor in 100 Yard Race.

Two world's outdoor swimming records went by the boards yesterday at the Edgewater beach, where some of the National and Central A. A. U. swims were decided under ideal conditions.

SYBIL BAUER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Sybil Bauer of the I. A. C. won the Central association championship in the 100 yard back stroke for women in the record breaking time of 1:16. Miss Bauer has been the leading woman back stroke swimmer in the country for the last two years and had been counted upon to break all previous records if conditions were favorable.

Relay Team Breaks Record.

The I. A. C. relay team, composed of Ross, Weismuller, Perry McGillivary, and Siegel, won the Central A. A. U. championship and hung up a new world's outdoor record of 3:51. The former mark was 3:57 and was held by the Tri-Color club quartet.

Miss A. Artlepp of the I. A. C. won the Illinois state championship in fancy diving for women, while Halvorsen of the C. A. A. won the same title for men.

More Title Events Today.

Another batch of National and Central A. A. U. championship swims will be held at the same place today. Summaries:

Fancy diving, women's Illinois state championship—Won by Miss A. Artlepp, I. A. C., 89.4 points; Miss Wagner, Chicago Women's Swimming association, 80.7 points, second; Miss Bresnen, West Side Women's Swimming association, 71.1 points, third.

Fancy diving, men's Illinois State championship—Won by Halvorsen, C. A. A., 128 points; J. Heyn, C. A. A., 123 points, second; McFarland, I. A. C., 120.3 points, third.

100 yard back stroke, women, Central A. A. U. championship—Won by Miss Sybil Bauer, I. A. C.; Miss Marcell Miller, I. A. C., second; Miss Happy O'Hara, I. A. C., third. Time, 1:16. New world's outdoor record.

400 yard relay, Central A. A. U. championship—Won by I. A. C. first team [Ross, Weismuller, P. McGillivray, Siegel]; I. A. C. second team, second; Chicago Aquatic club, third. Time, 3:51. New world's outdoor record.

440 yard swim, men, Central A. A. U. championship—Won by Ross, I. A. C.; B. Miller, I. A. C., second; G. McDermott, I. A. C., third. Time, 5:59 2-5

Water polo, Central A. A. U. championship—Won by I. A. C. first team; I. A. C. second team, second. Score, 7 goals to 2.

RELAY MARKS BROKEN

New York, Aug. 27.—A world's record of 4 minutes 47 2-5 seconds for the women's 400 yard relay swimming race was set today by the team of the Women's Swimming association of New York in winning the national championship in that event at Manhattan beach. The team consisted of Aileen Riggin, Helen Wainwright, Charlotte Boyle and Ethelda Bleibtrey. The former record of 4 minutes 59 seconds was made at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1919 by a team from the same organization, consisting of Misses Boyle, Bleibtrey, Alice Lord, and Leslie Bunyan.

The national 50 yard title was defended successfully by Miss Bleibtrey who won in 29 3-5 seconds. The National high diving championship went to Miss Helen Meany of New York.

MISS AMERICA I. WINS FIRST HEAT OF GOLD CUP RACE

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—[By the Associated Press.]—Miss America I. of the Detroit Yacht club, piloted by Gar Wood, captured the first heat of the Gold Cup race here this afternoon, defeating Miss Chicago of the Chicago Yacht club, driven by George Wood, the victor's brother. The winner's time for thirty miles was 31:51.94, an average of 56.5 miles an hour. Miss Chicago's time was 35:15.02.

Only two boats started out of the original entry list of fourteen.

In addition to the Gold Cup race three other events were run off. They were the first heats in the Detroit trophy for single engined hydroplanes, the Wood-Fisher race for displacement boats, and the Sallan trophy cabin cruiser event.

The Detroit trophy race was won by Baby Sure Cure of Detroit. The Wood-Fisher event went to Baby Gar, driven by Gar Wood, who established a new world's record for displacement boats by driving the craft at a speed of 43.1 miles an hour. The Sallan trophy race for cabin cruisers was won by White Cap II. of the Toledo Yacht club in a field of twenty-one starters.

Johnson Disallows Claim of Protest by Cleveland

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—James C. Dunn, president of the Cleveland team, today received word from B. B. Johnson, president of the league, announcing he had disallowed Cleveland's protest of New York's 3 to 2 victory last Wednesday. The protest was based on Peck's alleged interference with an attempt by Catcher O'Neill of the local team to throw Miller out at third base in the ninth. Miller later scored the winning run.

The Inquiring Reporter

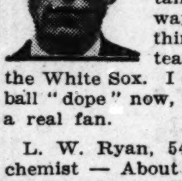
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Question.

How much of the news concerning professional baseball do you read?

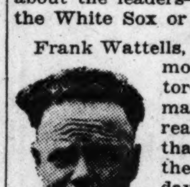
Where Asked.

South Water street and Michigan avenue.

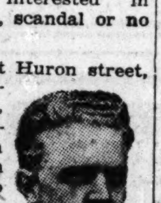


J. B. Crowe, 5813 West Washington boulevard, salesman—I can't get interested in baseball news any more, since the scandal, though I ought to, talking to buyers the way I have to do. I think most of the other teams were as bad as the White Sox. I don't read any baseball "dope" now, though I used to be a real fan.

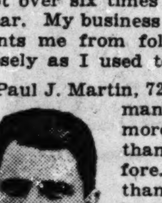
L. W. Ryan, 5411 Harper avenue, chemist — About as much as I ever did. I never read all of it. I am watching the dope on the race between the Yankees and the Indians very closely. And there's a dandy fight between New York and Pittsburgh. But I only care about the leaders—I never read about the White Sox or the Cubs.



Frank Wattells, 67 West 111th place, moving picture operator—I don't attend so many games, but I read more "dope" than ever. I'm playing the baseball pools these days, and I've been winning. I'm just as much interested in baseball as I ever was, scandal or no scandal.



R. S. Clark, 224 East Huron street, artist — The topnotchers, like Babe Ruth, are the only ones I follow, and I don't even read all the dope on them. I used to go to ball games about once a week, last year, but not over six times this year. My business prevents me from following baseball as closely as I used to.



Paul J. Martin, 7219 Bennett avenue, manager—I'm reading more baseball dope than I ever have before. It's a closer race than we've had for a long time. I read the whole business, from the box scores to the batting averages. And I'm attending more ball games this year.

Twombly Leaves Gleasons to Return to University

Pitcher Twombly of the White Sox yesterday was given permission to leave the club for the balance of the season so that he might complete his studies at Washington and Jefferson university. He will rejoin the club in the spring.

HIT AVALANCHE ROUTS CUB CREW IN 15 TO 5 GAME

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—What promised to be a good finish to the Cubs' 1921 endeavor in Brooklyn developed into an awful farce today and wound up in a 15 to 5 rout for the Killefer crew.

For four rounds Elmer Ponder held the Robins to four hits and one tally and the Cubs made the same quantity of runs off Leon Cadore. Then things began to happen. The Robins started to whale Ponder all over the place and the Cubs drove Cadore off the hill in the sixth, with the score tied and one out. Cadore weakened because of a strained leg and quit of his own accord.

Pound Ponder and Cheeves.

Ponder's support began to totter in the seventh and the Robins took advantage of it with all kinds of hits except a home run. He was relieved by Virgil Cheeves, after Griffith and Wheat had opened the round with whistling singles. Cheeves had only his glove and nothing else with which to fool the Robins. Besides, he made a wild heave on the first chance he had. It was something of a scream.

There were Robins on first and second, and Myers laid down a petty bunt. Cheeves corralled it all right, then made a hot peg to Grimes, who had come in on the bunt and was standing twenty feet from first base, Terry being the gent who covered the bag. Grimes did not expect the throw, which hit him on the shin and caromed so far that Griffith scored and the other runners moved up.

Then Things Happened.

That was the beginning of an orgy of runs, and the Robins counted ten of them in the seventh and eighth rounds. The only thing that did not happen was a balk. Kilduff made the circuit without stopping in the seventh with a three-bagger over Barber's head, followed by Hollocher's wild relay trying to catch him at third—and nobody backed up the play. Score:

HAYES TO PLAY HERD FOR STATE NET TITLE

Winning in straight sets, and at no time being pressed, Miss Marion Leighton and Mrs. A. E. Michel carried off the state title in the final round of the women's tennis doubles championship at the Skokie Country club, defeating Miss Emily Scully and Mrs. Lewis Bailey. Last year Miss Leighton and Miss Scully, who were partners, won the title.

The match went in straight sets, both 6—3. The new champions went into an early lead in the first set, and while Miss Scully and Mrs. Bailey rallied well at times, they were never able to forge ahead in either set.

Errors Help Victors.

Miss Leighton played brilliantly, stroking with easy skill, while her partner was less flashy, but steady in placement. Miss Scully put up a good battle, and Mrs. Bailey returned with occasional flashes of speed, but in general it was the errors of the losers that gave Mrs. Michel and Miss Leighton their comfortable win.

Walter T. Hayes, the lanky veteran, and Clifton Herd will meet this afternoon for the state singles title. Both were victors in the semi-final round yesterday. Hayes disposed of A. R. Kaiser in easy fashion, by 6—0, 6—1, 6—1, but Herd had to put up a real battle to down Alex Squair, even though the match was won in straight sets. Herd slashed viciously and was too fast for Squair, who went down to defeat 6—3, 6—4, 6—3.

Squair and Green Victors.

The semi-final doubles brought out the best match of the day, a five set battle between Alex Squair and Al Green against the brothers Weber, Jimmie and Jerry.

The Webers looked unbeatable in the first two sets, coming from behind from a 4 to 1 handicap in the first set to a 6 to 4 win, and taking the second set 6—3, by another spurt after trailing. Then, with only one set needed to win, they blew up, and Squair and Green romped home with three easy sets; 6—0, 6—1, 6—2.

Hayes and Herd, national clay court doubles champions, won their semi-final match easily, defeating Preston Boyden and William Blair, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

Fisher of Millers Makes Hits in 33 Games in Row

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 27.—Robert Fisher, second baseman for the Minneapolis team, broke the association's consecutive hitting record today when he hit safely in both games of a double header with Indianapolis, making thirty-three consecutive games in which he has hit safely. Brief of Kansas City held the old record of thirty-one.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Red Faber who is out for a record with a second division club this year, tried to win his twenty-fourth victory of the season yesterday but he bumped into two bad innings and the Boston Red Sox trimmed him, 6 to 5.

In the fourth inning things went all wrong and before anybody was out, the Red Sox had made four hits in rapid fire order. They got three runs before the side could be retired. In the seventh they poled Red for four more hits which with the help of an error netted three more runs, just enough to win.

For a time it looked as if the game was over for Red because in the very first round, with one out, Mulligan and Eddie Collins singled and Harry Hooper clouted a regular drive into the right field bleacher for a homer.

Bostons Tie in Fourth.

With three runs over the plate, naturally it looked soft for the Cascade, Ia., boy and when in the second inning the south siders raked in another run, after two were out, it seemed a cinch.

Then came the fourth. Eddie Foster opened with an infield hit and in a jiffy Mike Menosky, Derril Pratt and Stuffy McInnis had hit safely and two runs were home. Another got in while Red was getting the side out. The Sox still had a one run margin but the game looked tough. In the fifth the Sox batted in another run and immediately Mr. Allan Russell was yanked and Mr. Karr was sent to the rubber. This Karr person stopped the Sox stone dead for the balance of the ball game.

Falk's Error Fatal.

Then came the luckless seventh. Everett Scott opened with a single and went to third when Vick, subbing for Walters, poled safely to right. Sam Jones, being a fleet footed pitcher, ran for Vick. Karr produced a fly, a short one to Falk. Falk tried something smart. Scott wasn't going to try to score, but Falk bluffed a throw to the plate, and then fired to second, heaving clear over first. Scott ambled home when he didn't intend to. Then Leibold and Foster came through with base hits and three runs were over. That was just enough to win.

SCORES 6 AND 4 VICTORY OVER MRS. DOUGLASS

Gives a Great Display of Prowess in Match.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Some golfers leap to fame while others toil up the road to success. Mrs. Melvin Jones of the Olympia Fields, who yesterday won the western woman's open championship at Westmoreland by defeating Mrs. John W. Douglass of Westmoreland, 6 and 4, is a player of the latter type.

MRS. MELVIN JONES.

Threetimes Mrs. Jones has been medalist, but until yesterday she never went farther than the semi-final round, reaching the final four at Oak Park last year. She won the city championship in 1916 and repeated this year.

Mrs. Jones at Top Game.

In twenty-one years of play only two players from other cities have won the tournament, Mrs. Harry Hammond of Indianapolis taking the title in 1914, and Mrs. Perry Fisk of De Kalb winning in 1919.

Mrs. Douglass did all that could be expected in reaching the final. Her hope of success was to play her best game and have Mrs. Jones shoot a few strokes over her normal total. Nothing like this happened, as the Olympia Fields player, who lives on Lofty avenue, Flossmoor, was at the top of her game.

Course in Fine Shape.

Reaching the turn in 42, Mrs. Jones held a lead of 3 up, but as Mrs. Douglass won the tenth with a fine four, it was still anybody's game. Then the tide of defeat set in for the home player, and she lost the next four holes in succession, while Mrs. Jones' golf was almost flawless.

The Westmoreland course was in fine shape, but recent rains made the soft grass off the course a tough proposition, except for players with powerful wrists. The putting greens were perfect. The yardage for the holes follows:

In .320 391 453 361 177 350 310 440 460

Two perfect shots at the first hole left Mrs. Jones a five foot putt for a 3 at the first hole, and she won, 4-5, Mrs. Douglass getting a poor drive and taking three to get home.

Mrs. Douglass Squares Match.

After they halved the second hole in normal sixes Mrs. Douglass squared at the third hole, 5-6, her fine second shot being the keynote of her success. Mrs. Jones was bunkered on her second, and, playing from off the bank, got a short cut, while her fourth also was short of the pin.

Mrs. Jones lined out a fine drive for the short fourth, being just short of the pin, and, chipping up to one foot, she nailed a perfect 3, Mrs. Douglass being bunkered on her drive and taking 4.

Although Mrs. Douglass pulled to the rough at the fifth, she played a good safe second between the pits and both reached the green in 3. Mrs. Douglass ran her approach dead and Mrs. Jones missed a three foot putt, losing, 6-5, and squaring the match.

Mrs. Jones 3 Up.

The long fifth was taken by Mrs. Jones, 6-7, Mrs. Douglass dubbing her third shot and taking 5. They got normal fives at the next hole, but at the short eighth Mrs. Jones sent her spoon shot five feet from the pin and won, 2 to 4.

Both reached the ninth green in 3, and here Mrs. Jones sunk a twenty-five foot putt for a win, 4-5. This left Mrs. Jones 3 up.

There was a brief ray of hope for the home contingent when Mrs. Douglass took the tenth hole with a perfect 4, Mrs. Jones being short on her second and third shots and taking 6 after rimming a five foot putt. Mrs. Douglass made a five footer.

Wins on Thirteenth Green.

A trapped drive cost Mrs. Douglass the next hole, and at the twelfth she was in the rough, Mrs. Jones getting home in 3 and running a long putt dead to the hole for a win, 5-6.

Turning south for the thirteenth, Mrs. Jones outdrove her opponent thirty yards, and after Mrs. Douglass had played an iron shot out of the ditch, Mrs. Jones got away a great brassie which stopped thirty yards from the pin. Mrs. Jones took the hole, 5-6, and was 5 up.

The finish came at the fourteenth, where Mrs. Jones drove the green and won, 3-4. Cards:

Mrs. Jones—Out.....4 6 6 3 6 6 5 2 4—42
Mrs. Douglass—Out..5 6 5 4 5 7 5 4 5—46
Mrs. Jones—In......6 5 5 5 3
Mrs. Douglas—In....4 6 7 6 4

Mrs. Harry Hammond of Indianapolis won the championship consolation from Miss Corella Lukens of Midlothian, 1 up, her greatest lead being 3 up at the thirteenth hole.

Three Cushion Title Cue Tourney at Pittsburgh

The championship tournament for the national three cushion billiard title will be held in Pittsburgh beginning Oct. 3, it was announced here yesterday. Play will be limited to twelve contestants, who will have the priority rights to challenge in the order they finish. The entrance fee will be $150, entries closing Sept. 19.

GIANTS CUT GAP, TAKING ALL FIVE FROM CORSAIRS

New York, Aug. 27.—New York made a complete sweep of the five-game series with Pittsburgh, taking today's contest, 3 to 1, and reducing the lead of the Pirates to two and a half games. It was Nehf's sixth victory this season over the league leaders.

Carlson subdued the Giants' batters until the seventh, when singles by Frisch, Young, and Meusel, and Carey's fumble gained the victory. Score:

BIG JIM VAUGHN TO HURL AGAINST NEISEN'S PYOTTS

Big Jim Vaughn, the suspended Cub southpaw, will be the attraction this afternoon on the semi-pro circuit. He will be on the hill for the Fairbanks Morse team of Beloit when they clash with the Pyotts at Pyott field. Leo Murphy, another former leaguer, will be Vaughn's battery mate.

Beloit and the Pyotts are two of the leading teams in the fight for the Midwest championship. Although the visitors are in the lead, a victory for the Pyotts will put them within hailing distance. Grover Baichley and Bud Cronin will be in the points for the home club.

Another Midwest championship game will be played at St. Rita's field where the Marquette Manors will meet the Standards of Joliet. Tom McGuire and Otto Jacobs, former White Sox, will look after the battery interests of the visitors, while the Marquettes have Eddie Sack and Rudy Rehor.

The Logan Squares will play an exhibition with the Cuban Stars. Pete Holmes will take his crack Fireos to Oark Park to play the West Ends. The Roseland Eclipse will make their first Sunday appearance at the home club at Normal. They will have the Alvernos as opponents.

AM. GIANTS, 5; CUBANS, 4.

After holding the American Giants scoreless for seven innings the Cuban Stars blew up and a flock of errors gave the south siders enough runs to win, 5 to 4, at Pyott park.

ONE HANDED SHOT WINS LAST PRIZE IN TRAP TOURNEY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

After going into a seven cornered tie for honors in class 1 of the classification competition, final of the Grand American handicap trap shooting tourney held over the traps of the South Shore Country club yesterday, Johnny Noel, one handed shot of Nashville, Tenn., defeated E. W. Renfro of Butte, Mont., in the final shoot-off by one target.

In this event which called for 100 targets, 16 yards rise, seven shots tied for first place with perfect scores. The competition was open only to experts who had averages of 94 per cent or better. Weather conditions were ideal for excellent scores as there was no wind to cause the targets to take fluky flights.

Chicago Man Also Victor.

In class 2, open to shots with an average between 90 and 94 per cent, Ellis Naak of Canton, O., winner of the Grand American handicap held Friday and Dean Bergen of Chicago tied with perfect scores. In the shoot-off at 25 targets, the Chicagoan won by one target.

Another shoot-off was necessary to determine a winner in class 3 as M. M. Footte of Columbus, O., and J. A. Bolen of Kansas City knotted for the honor with scores of 98. After two test to determine a victor, the Kansas City expert won, 25 to 24. Shooters with an average of 86 to 90 took part in the event.

F. D. Telling of Cleveland, O., won the class 4 trophy with a total of 99. He shot well throughout the race, and lost a target in his opening event. Shots, with averages from 82 to 86 were eligible for this match.

Naperville Shot on Top.

In class 5 Phil Hammersmith of Naperville, Ill., won the prize by defeating C. W. Foss of Flint, Mich., in the shoot-off of a tie. In the preliminary round the experts tied with scores of 94. In the first test the Napervill shot won, 25 to 24.

B. A. King of Delta, Colo., won the first leg of the Governor's cup offered to the amateur who made the highest score in all amateur events held during the week. King broke 767 targets out of 800. J. S. Day of San Antonio, Tex., was second with 765, and Dave Fauske of Worthington, Minn., third with 760.

Throw 305,755 Targets.

The tournament was pronounced the most successful in its history by Stoney McLinn, secretary of the A. T. A., who was general manager of the event. During the event 305,755 targets were thrown. Following are yesterday's leading scores:

MORAN, MARTIN MAY GET LONDON BOUT WITH CARP

PARIS, Aug. 27.—Georges Carpentier will be called upon to face an opponent in Albert hall, London, Dec. 2, says the newspaper Auto. His opponent will be picked by Maj. Wilson, English fight promoter, from four prominent heavyweights—Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the American expeditionary forces; Frank Moran, the veteran pugilist; Boy McCormick, the English light heavyweight, and Joe Beckett, whose defeat by Carpentier in December, 1919, provided a sensation for the sporting world.

The fight will be of twenty rounds' duration, with four ounce gloves.

GAR WOOD, ONE OF AMERICA'S BEST IN AMATEUR SPORT, HOLDER OF THE WORLD'S FASTEST RECORDS ON THE WATER

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

ONE of the year's greatest sporting events will be the international motor boat race at Detroit, beginning Sept. 3, when Gar Wood will defend the Harmsworth cup that he captured in England last year. Motor boat racing has been a thrilling sport ever since the Hard Boiled Egg ran twenty-two miles an hour on the Hudson, breaking world's records and completely flabbergasting all the old salts, who said no gas driven craft would ever run at the impossible speed of a mile in two minutes.

Gar Wood's latest, Miss America, will go at least four times as fast as the Hard Boiled Egg. Gar counts on a sustained speed of about ninety miles an hour, averaging a mile in forty seconds. If the English contenders can beat that let them have the cup. It will take some beating.

National Figure in Sport.

Gar has become a national figure in amateur sport during the last three or four years. When only 13 he ran a motor boat for the government at Duluth, and learned a lot about engines. He loved the water, and when he could afford it he bought a small launch. When Gar was married he and his wife spent their honeymoon on a little cruiser of the chug-chug variety. Mrs. Wood, by the way, is as good a sportsman on the water as her husband, and she can drive a cruiser or a speedboat at a record clip on salt water or fresh, with the best of the skippers.

Later Gar Wood invented certain mechanical devices which he now manufactures in an immense factory in Detroit, where he has made enough money to have all the boats he wants, with no limit on any detail of their outfitting. He lives in a cottage at Algonac, next door to Chris Smith's boat shop, where all his racers and cruisers are built under his own direction.

Drives Own Races.

Gar Wood always drives his racers himself and Jay Smith handles his engines. Gar doesn't take his sport second hand. The reason he doesn't care for horse racing is that he'd have to let the jockeys have all the fun. His first jump into big league speed racing was as part owner of the first Miss Detroit, which won the gold challenge cup at Manhasset bay in 1915. Chris Smith was builder. After that Gar had Smith build all his speed boats, and he has win the gold challenge cup, championship of America, four years in succession, with Miss Detroit II., Miss Detroit III., Miss Detroit III., and Miss America.

Last year, having won everything worth going after in America, Mr. Wood took his two racers, Miss Detroit V. and Miss America, to England. It cost him about $5,000 to ship his racers on a steamer, and probably not less than $50,000 in incidental expenses.

Travels 79 Miles an Hour.

Miss America walked off with the race, showing a speed of 79 miles an hour—smashing all records. Miss America had two Liberty motors. They were built for the government to be used in war planes, after the war were bought by Gar Wood and overhauled and equipped for marine racing by Chris Smith, who is as much a wizard with engines as he is with boats. In all the time trials and racing in English waters neither boat was overhauled, and there was not even a valve ground on any of the motors.

The new defender built this spring in Chris Smith's shop carries four Liberty motors in place of two. Gar Wood expects eventually to drive a speedboat at the terrific rate of 100 miles an hour. He has already gone well over 90 miles an hour.

Other Boats Being Built.

In the international race at Detroit each country can enter three boats. Gar Wood has three that can beat 70 miles an hour, steady running. The trials may show that he has all three defenders, although many other racing boats are being built in different parts of the country to compete against him.

What the English will have is unknown. They're as much under cover as Carpentier at Manhasset. But their builders studied the Smith boats when Gar was racing in England, and no doubt they'll adopt some of the speed point developed at Algonac.

Real Test for Engine.

"The Liberty motor," Gar Wood told me, "will revolutionize marine motor building. Beside the Liberty motor, the best foreign marine motors I've ever seen are junk. I don't believe that any foreign motor built during the war was ever better than the Liberty."

ONWENTSIA POLOISTS DEFEAT NORTH SHORE

Onwentsia defeated North Shore at polo at Lake Forest yesterday in the second of a two game series by a score of 11 to 7 after a hard uphill battle during the first half of which the visitors looked like sure winners.

The local team was handicapped four goals to start, and when the visitors added three to this handicap in the third and fourth periods it looked bad for the men led by Capt. Bud H. Rader.

Onwentsia First to Score.

Onwentsia get the first goal in the first period after some hard playing back and forth, Rader scoring a few seconds before the end of the session. Neither team was able to score in the second chukker, but Seaverns sent one through for Onwentsia in the third, and the count was 4 to 2 in favor of North Shore. Then the visitors came with a rush and Byfield scored at the end of the period.

Hayes kept up the work in the fourth session and Capt. Lorber followed with another score, which made the tally 7 to 2 in favor of North Shore.

Goals in Bunches.

Here Campbell got going for Onwentsia and knocked in two goals just before half time, and his team was only three goals behind. The rest of the game was all Onwentsia. Campbell and Capt. Rader scored in the fifth, three shots were sent through in the sixth, and Bud Seaverns scored twice in the seventh, putting Onwentsia in the lead by four goals. There was nothing doing in the eighth for either.

Lineup:

ONWENTSIA [11].		NORTH SHORE [7].
Campbell	No. 1	Byfield
Rader [Capt.]	No. 2	Hayes
Seaverns	No. 3	Bering
Breeze	No. 4	Lorber [Capt.]

Goals—Campbell, 4; Rader, 3; Seaverns, 3; Breeze, 1; Lorber, 1; Hayes, 1; Byfield, 1. Referee—Maj. Hughes, Fort Sherian.

TOM GIBBONS AND DAN O'DOWD SIGN FOR LABOR DAY GO

Tom Gibbons of St. Paul and Dan O'Dowd of New York yesterday signed articles for their ten round bout at South Bend on Labor day. The signatures were obtained by Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor promoter, who is helping stage the show.

According to Eddie Kane, manager of Gibbons, the promoters had some trouble obtaining O'Dowd's signature. The New Yorker wanted a larger guarantee than the promoters could offer, but Fitzsimmons stepped into the breach and clinched the match. Terms offered to Gibbons were satisfactory, according to Manager Kane.

Gibbons will arrive in Chicago tomorrow to complete his training at the Arcade. He will depart for the battleground the latter part of the week. O'Dowd will go direct to South Bend this week to taper off his work.

CHICAGO GRID LEAGUE TO MEET.

The Chicago Football league will hold its first meeting at the Sherman hotel Monday evening Aug. 29. All members of the league are requested to be present.

WHERE DO THE WALL EYES GO?

VERNON L. PHILLEY, Valparaiso, Ind., writes: "Your article about wall eyes, so complimentary to that gentleman, forces me to take up the wall eye situation in Flint lake in Porter county, Ind.

"About twenty years ago fishermen with strong tackle occasionally caught good sized wall eyes, while 'pan' fishermen sometimes hooked one on light tackle which generally broke and the light tackle which generally broke and the light tackle man had left only the story of the 'big one that got away.'

"Back in those days fishermen with lots of time and patience rigged up all sorts of tackle for trolling and still fishing in the deep holes, using all kinds of accepted baits for said wall eyes, but never, to my knowledge, did any one catch the second one in any season, and generally the first one was caught accidentally or without special preparation for the catch.

"The last one I saw I picked up in July, 1915. He had attempted to swallow a blue gill, probably seven inches long. The blue gill became lodged in his mouth and as he could neither swallow or disgorge his early breakfast he drowned or choked to death, whichever one's verdict might be.

"Flint lake was stocked with these fish probably twenty or twenty-five years ago. The Indiana fish and game conservation authorities do not stock lakes with wall eyes, I am informed, although they put them in rivers.

"Why have they apparently disappeared in this lake? Why did they not take the approved wall eye baits?"

We are asked these questions many times every season concerning lakes in various parts of the country. The problem of disappearing wall eyes is puzzling fish culturists as well as anglers because it involves many things that are still to be learned about the fish in question.

In a general way we know that the wall eye prefers cold water, deep holes, rocky ledges, or sand bars in "deepish" places, where there is more or less current. We also know that he is impatient of restraint, that he likes to range far and away, hunting in schools and not hiding under cover, like the pike or pickerel, to pounce out at edible passersby. Hence the folly of calling the wall eye a pike when he is a perch and has no pikelike traits.

We know, further, that the wall eye is among the first of our common fishes to spawn in the spring and that he does not protect his spawn or fry. It is quite likely that this latter trait has much to do with the disappearance of the species in small lakes, especially in waters inhabited by the wall eye's little cousin, the yellow perch, who is a notorious spawn and fry eater. Another thing, young wall eyes are cannibals and literally eat each other up; small lakes to be stocked with these fish should receive from 60 to 100 times more fry than the number of fingerlings desired. Dumping a few cans of wall eye fry haphazardly into a lake is not stocking the lake.

WILSON AND DOWNEY BOUT A SLUGGING GO

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—When Johnny Wilson and Bryan Downey put up their hands at Tex Rickard's park in Jersey City Labor day the talent is likely to be treated to a lively session of old fashioned go-as-you-please slamming.

BRYAN DOWNEY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

John and Bryan got along like a pair of mad dogs, and when they toe the scratch there is bound to be something doing. Neither boy has forgotten the last scrimmage at Cleveland, and both are determined to settle their differences for all time.

Ohio Scrapper Confident.

Downey is here working like a trojan, confident he is Wilson's master. The chunky Columbus youth continued his training stunts at Billy Grupp's gymnasium today, and boxed several spirited rounds with Johnny Papke and Johnny Parr. Papke is a southpaw puncher, and works along the same style as Wilson. It was with this idea in mind that Bryan engaged the lefthander.

Parr stepped out during the training work, and gave the Downey entry plenty to attend to. During one of the scrimmages Downey nailed the sparring mate with a right smash, and for a moment it looked as if there might be a knockout. Jimmy Dunn, manager for the Ohio boy, expressed himself as very well pleased with the work of his charge.

"No Funny Count This Time"—Dunn.

"Bryan will take that fellow this time just as easily as he did the last time, and there will not be any funny count, either," was the way Dunn declared himself.

Wilson, accompanied by his manager, Marty Killilea, and two sparring partners, Paddy Flynn and Ned O'Flanagan, went to Manhasset immediately upon their arrival. The middleweight champion of the world—outside of Cleveland—will occupy the same quarters used by Georges Carpentier while the latter was preparing himself for his battle with Dempsey.

The champion and his manager say Downey will hit the floor about the sixth round and stay there. According to Wilson he was not right when he met Downey at Cleveland, but this time it will be different.

"I was a little off form in my last encounter with Downey," said Wilson today, "but I promise you that I will be in the pinkiest form ever when we put up our dukes at the Jersey City arena Labor day. I'll stop that fellow just as sure as fate. There will be nothing to it this time."

SAM MANDELL TO BOX FARRELL IN LABOR DAY SHOW

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Fistic fans accustomed to seeing boxing shows on Labor day will not miss their treat this year. Jim "Tex" Mullen, matchmaker for Aurora shows, has announced a card with Sammy Mandel of Rockford, Ill., and Young Farrell of San Francisco as the stemwinders for Labor day afternoon. The main event will be supported by an eight round semiwindup and four six round preliminaries.

SAMMY MANDELL. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The excellent showing which Mandell made against Pal Moore in the Aurora ring Friday night has made him an attraction in the middle west. The Rockford boxer is improving with every battle, and as he came out of last week's contest in good shape, he is expected to give another great exhibition on Labor day.

Farrell a Worthy Opponent.

Local fans will remember Farrell as an opponent of Jimmy Kelly in the Aurora ring a short time ago, when honors were about even, but the coast fighter made such a good showing that his services have been in demand. It was Farrell's first fight in months and he did well against Kelly, who has been fighting with regularity. The weight for the bout will be 120 pounds at noon on the day of the show.

Phil Harrison, west side light heavyweight, and Riley's unknown will trade punches in the eight round semiwindup. The unknown is a north sider with pugilistic ambitions, who has been eager to meet Harrison for months.

Smith to Box Schaeffer.

Harold Smith of the stockyards and Herbie Schaeffer will clash in the opening six round bout. They will make weight at 115 pounds. Reb Russell and Jimmy Nikol, local middleweights, will be the principals in the second encounter.

Paddy Clancy and "Battling Sammy" Hess, both of the stockyards, will mix in the third preliminary. They will weigh in at 133 pounds. Jimmy Kelly, west side bantam, and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, will meet in the fourth match at 116 pounds.

It will be a twilight show and popular prices of $2, $3, and $5 will prevail. Tickets will be placed on sale on Tuesday at 129 North Clark street and 153 North Clark street.

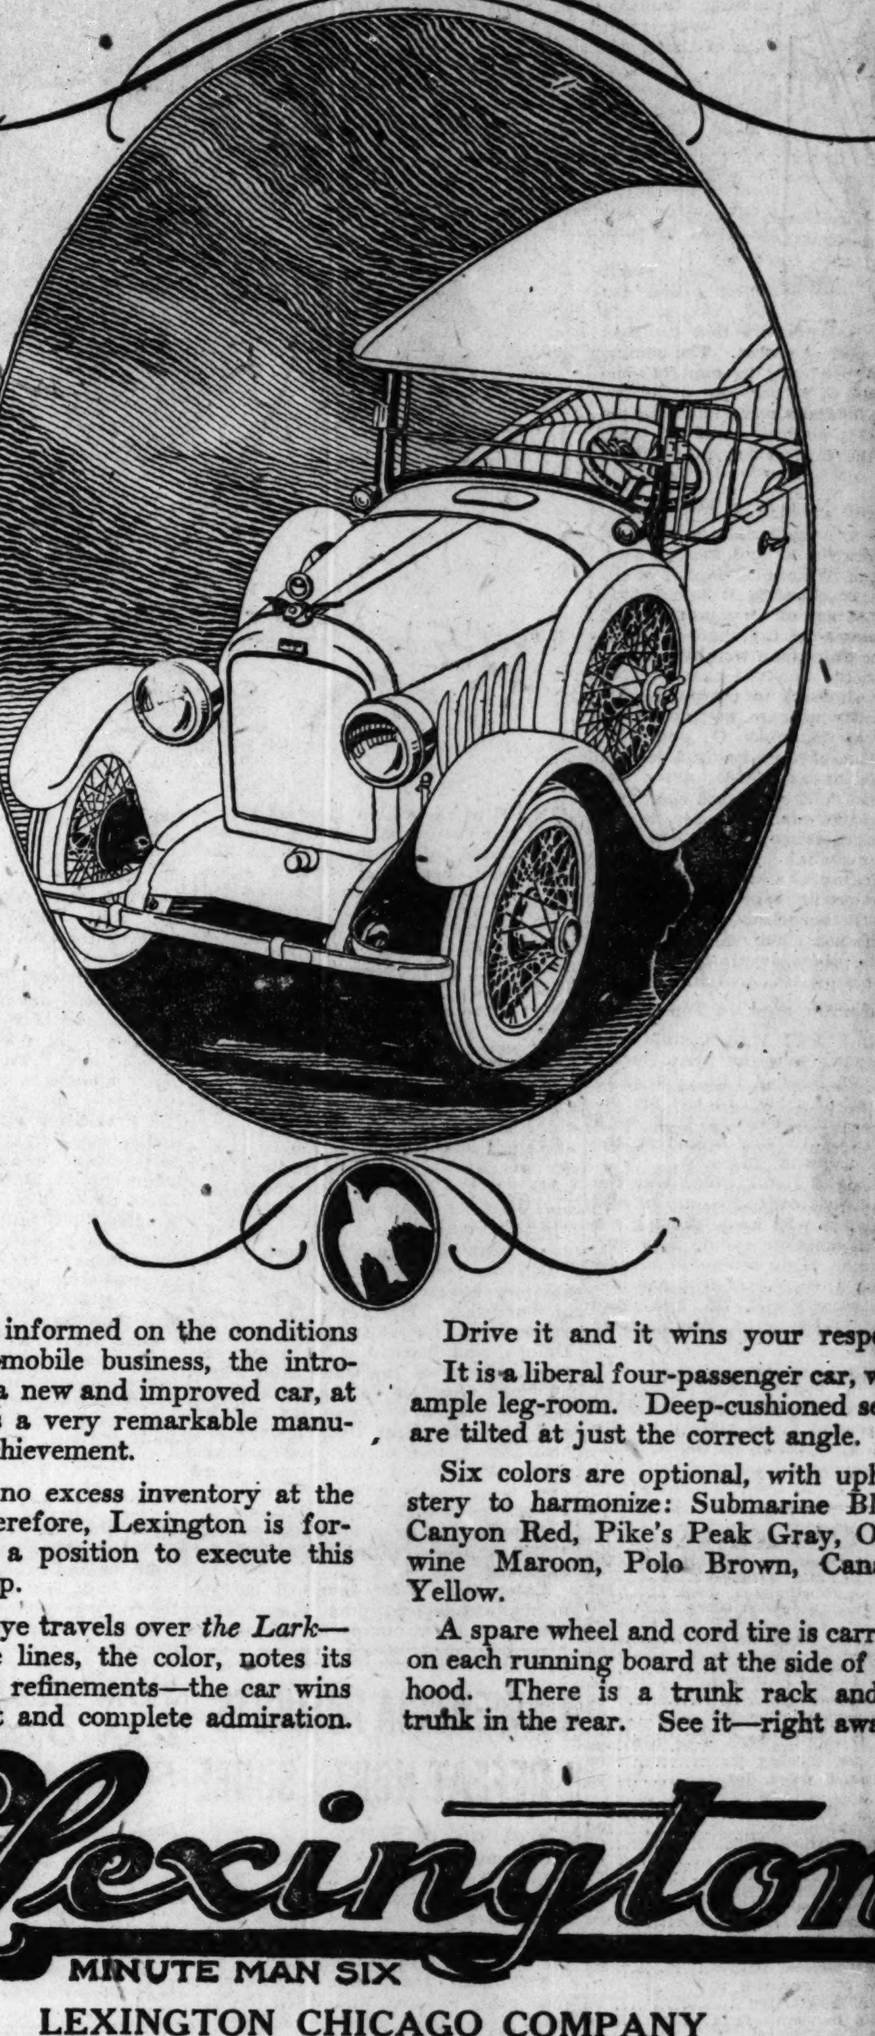
Seagirt, N. J., Aug. 27.—The all around rifle championship at 200, 600, 900, and 1,200 yards was won today by Machine Gunner C. A. Lloyd, United States marine corps, scoring 197 in 200.

The Lark



To those informed on the conditions in the automobile business, the introduction of a new and improved car, at this time, is a very remarkable manufacturing achievement.

There is no excess inventory at the factory—therefore, Lexington is fortunately in a position to execute this business coup.

As your eye travels over the Lark—takes in the lines, the color, notes its innumerable refinements—the car wins your instant and complete admiration.

Drive it and it wins your respect!

It is a liberal four-passenger car, with ample leg-room. Deep-cushioned seats are tilted at just the correct angle.

Six colors are optional, with upholstery to harmonize: Submarine Blue, Canyon Red, Pike's Peak Gray, Oldwine Maroon, Polo Brown, Canary Yellow.

A spare wheel and cord tire is carried on each running board at the side of the hood. There is a trunk rack and a trunk in the rear. See it—right away!

Service—The Backbone of PAIGE Success in Chicago

Paige cars have long since firmly established themselves in Chicago.

From the day, more than a dozen years ago, when we first introduced them to local motorists, their quality has constantly challenged public favor; and, backed by our merchandising methods and our service, it has always commanded that favor to a very large degree.

During those dozen or more years there has been a steady advance in the Paige factory toward greater manufacturing and engineering ideals. Consequently the new Paige line, thanks to its remarkable performing qualities, unmatched on the market today at any price, is more thoroughly entrenched than ever in the hearts of Chicago motorists.

It has been a great satisfaction to present these cars to the public, but in offering Chicago motorists a superlatively good product we have never overlooked this fact:

Good cars must be backed by good service. It is a duty put squarely up to the dealer, and we have never shirked it.

Service—good service—is the backbone of Good Will, and we have accepted that fact as a religion we must live up to or perish.

A sale, so far as we are concerned, by no means closes the transaction. On the contrary, it marks the beginning of a mutual relationship, because our interest in the car is vital so long as it can be kept running on four wheels.

It has always been our aim to realize these ideals as nearly 100 per cent as possible, because our experience has proved that it pays to serve loyally, cheerfully and intelligently.

The best judge of service, however, is the fellow who is testing it out. You will find plenty of Paige owners on the streets of Chicago.

Ask any of them, or we'll give you a list of owners if you desire.

These two questions will give you the whole story:

Are Paige cars good performers?

Are Paige cars well served?

After that it's up to you.

TAX BILL FIRST WHEN CONGRESS MEETS AGAIN

Senate Committee Will Shelve Tariff.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Definite assurance that the tax bill will be reported to the senate on the day it reconvenes, Sept. 21, was given by Senator Penrose, chairman of the finance committee, today, following a conference of Republican members of the committee at which a program was agreed upon.

The committee will begin consideration of the bill in executive session next Thursday, a rearrangement of tariff hearings making it possible to sidetrack the tariff at that time.

To Consult With Mellon.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will meet with the committee on Wednesday, Sept. 7, to suggest such changes as he may desire in the tax bill passed by the house.

The finance committee agreed to the postponement and accordingly witnesses relative to duties on live stock, dairy and other farm products who were to have been heard on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will not appear until later. Witnesses on parts of the agriculture schedule which do not concern the farmers will appear during the coming week.

Senator Penrose announced that a delegation from the Sheffield chamber of commerce of England would be heard on Tuesday at the request of Secretary of State Hughes.

At the request of Senator McCormick of Illinois the committee agreed to hear a delegation from the Chicago Association of Commerce on the question of an American valuation, although this subject already has been definitely disposed of, Republican members of the committee having approved a revised draft of the American valuation provision of the house bill.

Ask Higher Tariff for Magnesite.

Protection for the magnesite industry, which gained a foothold during the war, was urged before the senate finance committee today both by producers and consumers. While the steel industry, as indicated by testimony earlier in the week, is opposed to any duty on magnesite, one of its raw materials, users of caustic magnesite, a different grade, which is used in stucco and flooring, told the committee that they favor protection because their own business is more certain of prosperity if a high standard of quality is maintained.

C. E. Watkins of Chicago, representing the Kellastone company, one of the largest manufacturers of magnesite stucco, was one of the witnesses urging protection for the California producers. F. E. Schundler of Joliet, one of the largest dealers and importers of plaster magnesite, also urged the committee to approve the duty of three-fourths of 1 cent a pound, as contained in the Fordney tariff bill.

C. & N. OFFICIAL OPPOSES SLICE IN GRAIN RATES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—[Special.]—Further testimony to show that the railroads are in no financial condition to make a reduction in rates on grain and grain products and hay, as asked by the western states, was presented today to the interstate commerce commission hearing.

A. F. Cleveland, assistant freight traffic manager of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway company, who Northwestern Railway company, testified such a move at this time would only increase the roads' deficits.

Besides causing an annual loss of more than $4,000,000 to the Chicago and Northwestern, a 25 per cent cut in rates on those commodities would also cause a loss of $1,414,611 annually to the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway company, Mr. Cleveland testified, while the anticipated revenues of the Chicago and Great Western revenues would be reduced by $1,-233,951.

New Tax Cripples Oil Exports from Mexico

Washington, D. C., Aug. 27.—Ocean oil shipments from the Tampico fields decreased by nearly two-thirds in July, the first month the new Mexican petroleum tax was effective, Consul Dawes of Tampico reported today to the department of commerce.

Complete figures have not been compiled for July, the consul said, but sufficient information is at hand to show that the shipments amounted to only slightly more than 6,000,000 barrels.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Cotton continues its advance and closed at the highest on the present upturn with gains of 22@35 points for the day. · FINANCIAL · NOTES ·

Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Aug. 24 by 203 banks in twenty-four leading clearing house cities in the Seventh Federal Reserve district aggregate $844,361,000, compared with $971,287,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by twenty-four clearing houses in the district for the same week amounted to $844,361,000 compared with $1,051,350,000 for the corresponding week of last year.

The board of directors of the Second Northwestern State bank have elected Frank E. Lackowski as vice president. Mr. Lackowski is principal owner of F. E. Lackowski & Co., a director of the Chicago Real Estate board, and has been for some time a member of the board of directors of the bank. Mr. Lackowski takes the place of T. M. Helinski, vice president and cashier, who died recently. At the same meeting W. P. Maciontek was elected cashier.

Application has been made by the Producers' and Refiners' corporation to the New York stock exchange to list $2,961,950 cumulative preferred stock and $18,004,900 common stock.

A decrease of $11,166,090 in the surplus reserve of the New York clearing house banks during the week brings the total of this item down to $5,809,580. There was a decrease of $27,946,000 in loans and discounts and a gain of $57,737,000 in deposits. Reserve deposits of the federal reserve bank decreased $3,748,000.

Acute weakness of United States Rubber was explained at the close of yesterday's market when publication of the company's semi-annual report showed a $4,875,225 deficit. President Segar stated, however, that the company had reserves sufficient to offset this deficit. Common and first preferred dropped to new low records.

Following conferences between Frank Sieberling, former president of the Goodyear Rubber and Tire company, and interests in the Republic Rubber corporation, it was announced that the two sides had failed to agree on terms for the proposed purchase by Mr. Sieberling and his associates of the Republic company's properties here and at Canton.

Private American shipyards on Aug. 1 were building or under contract to build for private interests 147 vessels aggregating 518,863 gross tons, compared with 148 vessels totaling 519,564 tons building on July 1, according to estimates compiled by the department of commerce. These figures, it was said, do not include government ships or tonnage under construction for the shipping board.

DRY GOODS MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Strength of prices is still the feature of the gray goods market. The half day session today was unusually active for a Saturday. Several fractional gains were noted. Retailers from the west are reported more anxious for goods and jobbers are firming up in their price ideas and beginning to place more orders with first hands. Alex Smith Carpet company will hold another auction sale beginning on Sept. 6 and covering 62,000 bales of rugs. Cotton yarns are rising, silk and silk goods markets quiet, and burlaps firm.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—COPPER—11¾c for small lots of electrolytic by some of the smaller producers and dealers. The larger interests, however, have maintained quotations ranging from about 12c for spot or nearby metal and up to 12¼c for forward deliveries. Iron unchanged.

EXPORT BUYING AIDS IN BOOSTING PRICES OF GRAIN

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Depressing news from the northwest and strengthening factors from the east dominated the action of the grain markets. Prices declined early only to advance in the last hour, when early sellers became active buyers and made a fairly strong close with net gains of 1¼@1¾c on wheat, while corn was unchanged to ¼c lower, oats ⅛@⅜c higher, and rye ¼@¾c better than Friday's finish.

In the face of bearish conditions and opinions among the general run of traders the export buying of wheat and corn proved sufficient to carry prices higher. At the last wheat was 6½@7½c, corn 1⅝@2¾c, oats 1⅝@2c, rye 1½@2¼c, and barley 2½c higher. Provisions finished with pork 10c higher, while gains on lard were 42½@67½c and short ribs 22½c higher than a week ago.

Expect Large Movement.

Wheat traders took the increased arrivals at Winnipeg and in the northwest as the forerunner of the large movement that has been expected. They were also encouraged to sell on a report from Minneapolis that one of the largest millers had withdrawn from the cash market, and that the edge was off the demand for flour. Selling that developed among the northwestern, southwestern, and local element created a bearish feeling for a time and prices dropped 1c.

Seaboard exporters and foreigners are taking advantage of all the weak spots to buy both cash and futures and absorbed the offerings.

This resulted in a scrample among the early sellers to cover and made the highest prices at the last. The upturn was assisted by heavy buying for December and May by houses who usually trade for a large eastern operator and prices moved up 2¾@3c and closed at nearly the top, with September $1.21@1.21¼; December, $1.22¾@1.23, and May, $1.26.

Buying of 1,000,000 bu December by a local export house and their sale of 1,000,000 bu for export acted as a bullish factor, in addition to the other influences at the last. It turned local sentiment to the bullish side and they forgot all about the increased receipts.

The week's movement here of 2,579,000 bu was 94,000 bu less than the previous week's and 815,000 bu more than last year. Shipments of 3,880,000 bu suggest another decrease in stocks, as there has been accumulation on track during the week.

September Corn Shows Strength.

September corn showed the most strength and finished at 54⅝c, or within a fraction of the day's top, while other months were easier and practically the same as Friday. Houses with eastern connections took the September and there was less selling pressure from hedgers. Country offerings were liberal, and over 500,000 bu were bought to arrive at 1¼@1½c over September. Shipments were 8,350,000 bu, indicating a gain in stocks for the week. Damage to the crop in Nebraska is claimed from the temperatures of 105 to 108 the last few days with no rains.

The largest trading in oats was at the close, when local operators took hold freely and bid prices at up to the best of the day, with September 34⅞@35c and December 38¼@38⅜c. A fair trade was on in changing from September to December at 3¼c difference. Receipts have decreased sharply and were little above the week's shipments.

Exporters took 500,000 bu rye at the seaboard and 200,000 bu here. Buying of September and selling of December at ½@1c difference was a feature. There was also buying of rye and selling of wheat.

Provisions in Advance.

Provisions advanced and closed at the top, with gains of 25c on the nearby and 10c on January lard, unchanged for ribs. Export sales of lard for the week have been large, and shipments of lard and meats for the week were 34,237,000, or double last year's. Packing here since March 1 aggregated 2,924,000 hogs, or 156,000 more than last year. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Foreign demand for wheat continues fairly active with sales of 1,500,000 bu reported at the seaboard, with 500,000 bu corn and 500,000 bu rye. Friday's sales of wheat in all positions were estimated at 2,000,000 bu. Chicago handlers sold 1,000,000 bu wheat, 750,000 bu corn, and 200,000 bu rye to the seaboard for export, with charters for 375,000 bu wheat and 375,000 bu corn. Domestic shipping sales aggregated 25,000 bu wheat, 25,000 bu corn, 265,000 bu oats, and 10,000 bu barley, with 100,000 bu oats sold to go to store.

Premiums on hard and red winter wheats advanced ½c for the No. 2 grades, with No. 2 red quoted at 3@3½c and No. 2 hard at 2½@3½c over the September. Demand was good and offerings light. No. 3 grades were September to 1½c over.

Demand in the southwest was not as good as of late, although bids from exporters at Kansas City were reported as ½c higher. St. Louis was unchanged to 3c lower, Kansas City unchanged to 2c lower, and Omaha unchanged. At Minneapolis premiums were unchanged for fancy and 5c lower for less desirable kinds.

Basis for cash corn was reduced ¼c in the sample market, with No. 1 and No. 2 yellow selling at 1¼@1½c over September, white at 1¼c, and mixed at 1c over the future, with some sales at slightly better figures. Sample values were ¼@½c lower early, but closed unchanged. Outside markets were ¼c higher to 1c lower.

Demand for cash oats was fair and with light offerings prices showed little change, with No. 2 white 1@1½c over, No. 3 white 1¼@2c under, and No. 4 white 4½@6c under the September.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

Crop expert George M. Le Count, who is out for Stein, Alstrin & Co., in summing up his trip over the corn belt, says that in the central west crop generally is in very good condition. Rains came in time to save most of the crop and now the country has another big crop practically made and safe from everything except a hard freeze. A couple of weeks more of dry and warm weather will ripen the entire crop. He estimes the total yield for the country at 3,000,000,000 bu, compared with 3,232,000,000 bu harvested last year.

Very large stocks of old corn are held in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska and farmers are feeding it liberally. Oats crop disappointing everywhere. Much of it has very little food value and farmers are holding their old and selling the new crop. Kansas and Nebraska have a lot of wheat in stack that will be thrashed later. A lot of it is badly bleached as a result of rains catching it in shock. Thrashing general in the Canadian northwest and receipts should be liberal at Winnipeg for the next six weeks. The American northwest will not be a heavy shipper of wheat this season unless farmers should decide to unload at once, as the crop was very light, many localities securing scarcely enough for next year's seed.

Reports to the Northwestern Miller indicate that around 50 per cent of the wheat in the northwest has been stacked.

Fall plowing in Kansas, as shown by the detailed state report, is 60 to 80 per cent completed. Thrashing results indicate that the estimated yield of 122,000,000 bu wheat was conservative.

·WORLDS·GRAIN·MARKET·NEWS·

There is a mixed sentiment in wheat. With any encouragement in the way of outside buying it would not be difficult to advance prices, as the strong statistical position is expected to be the main factor. There was a new class of buying in the market today that has not been visible of late, one house buying 500,000 bu of December wheat, and the big eastern traders were apparently on the long side. The only factor that keeps a large number of operators from the buying side is the impending movement of spring wheat in the American and Canadian northwest. The spurt of activity in the milling trade appears to have run its course and buyers filled up for a few weeks.

It was noticeable that a large numbes of the big local professionals who were against the market early evened up at the last. The country is selling a fair quantity of wheat and a great deal of corn, with indications of a big movement of the latter, the last week's receipts being the heaviest at this time in over five years.

The run of oats, which was at record level two weeks ago, has dropped to the smallest in five years. The railroads have a good supply of cars available for grains and report some falling off in loading, while others show an increase.

Packers are reporting a large business in lard and meats, especially in lard, as export buying in the last three weeks is estimated at around 50,000,000 lbs.

"Primary receipts of wheat so far this season have been 127,000,000 bu, and gulf ports have received 30,000,000 bu more," said P. S. Goodman, the Clement, Curtis & Co. statistician. "Interior mills have been heavy buyers. I estimate that 60 per cent of the winter wheat, above seed requirements, has left the farms. Exports, Canadian, and United States, are 80,000,000 bu so far, or one-third more than during the same time last year. There were no large invisible holdings as was the case last year, and the trade will soon appreciate a shortage in the supply situation."

A friendly feeling toward the oats market at the present level is expressed by E. W. Wagner & Co. in a statistical circular on oats and barley. "The low average oats price in August is Europe's opportunity to grasp 50,000,000 bu feed on the bargain counter," said E. W. Wagner. "At 35c, Chicago basis, oats are flat with the economic deadline. Below that figure represents farm bankruptcy."

Charles Sincere & Co. call attention to the fact that despite the immense movement of wheat to terminal markets the amount actually available at the leading interior markets is very small. It is regarded as significant that the wheat has been going into consumptive channels almost as rapidly as it comes to market.

The Corn Products company is grinding 65,000 bu at Argo and 25,000 bu corn at Pekin, Ill., a total of 90,000 bu, which is well toward its capacity.

A Kansas City trader sent an order here to sell 50,000 bu wheat yesterday and added: "How can you bull wheat when the people cannot pay their grocery bills?" After the order was filled wheat prices went up 2c.

Houses with northwestern connections are selling wheat and rye here while the eastern cash handlers are picking up September wheat and corn. There have been good buyers of wheat and corn all week.

Lake shipments of wheat from Chicago the past week were 3,568,000 bu, corn 2,998,000 bu, oats 1,195,000 bu, rye 282,000 bu, a total of 8,043,000 bu, while the rail shipments were 1,246,000 bu, the smallest at this time in recent years.

News regarding Russian crops are as conflicting as ever and even the reports of the relief committee are at variance with those of other authorities.

A City-Wide Investment Service

ALTHOUGH intrenched deeply in the confidence of the people of this section of Chicago, to whom a large proportion of the bonds we distribute are sold, the investment business of the Madison & Kedzie State Bank is too big in every sense of the wordto be confined just to this community.

It has overstepped these boundaries and expanded to city-wide and nation-wide scope, with millions of dollars in bonds sold annually, simply because the investments offered by us are so exceptional that investors everywhere come to us for them.

All Chicago Buys These Bonds

IT IS literally true that all Chicago buys MADISON & KEDZIE BONDS. People from the extreme North and South sides and points between, including practically all the suburbs, come to the Madison & Kedzie State Bank for investments. They come because they can obtain here the maximum in safety and income.

If these thousands of investors have found it pays them, why won't it pay you, too? It will pay you.

Come to the bank now and see for yourself whether we can give you the maximum in safety and income. Telephone or write if not convenient to call personally. Get in touch with us NOW!

The New York Times.

New York, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—On the stock exchange a week which had brought about the first substantial recovery from the mid-summer weakness and depression ended today with an uncertain market. Declines and advances fairly balanced one another, and in each direction the changes were in numerous instances a point or more.

The market's action seemed to confirm Wall street's belief that the preceding recovery represented retreat of the speculators for the fall rather than new buying, and that, so far as the general public was concerned, the whole recent movement of prices has meant little more than that this public, in its present mood, is disposed neither to sell nor to buy. That is a familiar enough attitude for this time of year, but it is also a perfectly natural expression of feeling in respect to a situation in which the real trend of things has not yet defined itself.

Interborough's Condition Known.

The application for a receiver for the Interborough company was not known during business, and did not affect the market; it is doubtful if it would have affected it in any case. The position of the company has been fully known to the general public during recent months, and continuance of the existing status has more than once depended, as the company's president states that it now depends, on extension of existing loans.

With the European markets doing practically no business, foreign exchanges were quiet. Sterling yielded a fraction, and marks declined again; both movements doubtless resulting from small speculative sales in the New York market. Next week may be interesting in European exchange from the fact that the final payment on the billion mark reparations installment will have been publicly made by Wednesday.

But recent events have shown that exchange rates are no longer solely dominated, as they were a few weeks ago, by the shifting of credits in the German operation. The week-end summaries of the gold import movement indicate that something like $20,000,000 in all had arrived last week.

$27,000,000 Loan Decrease.

A further decrease of $27,000,000 in the loan and investment account of the New York associated banks, reported in today's weekly statement, brought the total reduction for the month to $108,000,000. Last August the same account increased $56,000,000. Today's total figure showed a decrease since July 1 of $219,000,000; it was smaller by $1,082,000,000 than at the high point of loan expansion, on Oct. 11, 1919, and it is $438,000,000 less than in the armistice week of 1918.

A large increase in actual loans and discounts has almost invariably occurred between the early weeks of September and the climax of autumn business activity in November or December. Last year the expansion was checked with great suddenness by the heavy forced liquidation of credit engagements which began in the middle of October, but even that contracting process left the New York bank loans larger than the end of August total. The course of the loan account this coming autumn will probably reflect the revival or absence of revival in general trade.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

A somewhat easier tone prevailed in the local unlisted security market and trading continued in small volume, according to F. M. Zeisler & Co. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was traded in between 35 and 36. Butler Bros. also sold down half a point to 30⅝. Consumers preferred firmed up to 51 bid, with offerings in scant supply at 58. The common was inactive at 5@7. Chicago Cold Storage, an inactive issue, was offered down to 95 on little trading, while Gossard Corset common sold still lower at 23, and was offered at this price at the close, with buyers at 20. The preferred was also easier at 75@79. Goodyear Tire and Rubber common sold down to 9⅝, while the preferred closed at 27@28½.

The local bond market was less active, with little change in prices. The advances of the previous week were held and slight improvement was noted in a few issues. Northwestern Elevated 5s of 1941, which had been inactive, sold up to a close of 60 bid, 68 asked. The packing house issues were generally unchanged. Swift 7s of 1925, after reacting to sales at 97¼, closed at 97½@97⅝. The 7s of 1931 were firm at 97¾@98. National Leather 8s improved to 95½@96. The only change in the local tractions was the Chicago City Railways series B, which advanced to 31 bid, 31¾ asked.

When Necessity Assures Safety

Human existence in most sections of the Globe is dependent upon clothing. Woolen cloth is a staple in all but the torrid zones.

The essential nature of the woolen fabric industry is undeniable. It was emphasized during the World War by the commandeering of most of the large woolen textile plants by government agencies.

MOST BASIC, after the production of wool, is the spinning of woolen yarns.

NEW JERSEY WORSTED SPINNING CO.
First Mortgage 8% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds

Security—First mortgage upon all property of the Company.
Assets—Back of each $1,000 Bond are $4,805 in Net Tangible Assets; $2,929 in Fixed Assets.
Earnings—For 15 years net profits have been over FIVE TIMES maximum interest charges, and for the last 5 years TEN TIMES the greatest requirement of this issue.
Sinking Fund—Requires substantial reduction in debt and assures future market for the bonds.
Maturity—July 1, 1936. Call price 110.
Amounts—$1,000, $500 and $100.
Yield—8% to the investor.

Before other industries had experienced extreme depression, the woolen industry was hard hit months ago.

Naturally, the revival of business was well under way in this field before other lines started on the upgrade. Now woolen spinning and weaving plants are running on full time. Present earnings have reached the volume and stability of pre-war conditions. The troubles of this industry are in the past.

Our present offering of first mortgage bonds of one of the old, established concerns engaged in spinning woolen yarns is unusually attractive. Not only are these bonds safe beyond question as to technical physical security, but earnings from operation are assuredly ample and permanent.

We recommend these very high grade securities. They will not long be available at the present price.

With Confidence of SAFETY

"A FINANCIAL FEAST" is what many consider the present high prices paid for the use of money and sound reasons are advanced to prove that these high interest yields cannot last, that—if you wish to profit by them—it is

"Now or Never!"

Be this as it may, 7% with carefully selected First Mortgage Security is certainly extremely attractive and will remain so, whether bonds of this yield can be obtained for some time or for only a few months more, as many careful analysts of present conditions predict.

Shrewd, old experienced investors are particularly appreciative of our First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds, secured by the highest grade Chicago buildings and land. It is this strong, unchanging security, the character of this House and the resulting Confidence of Safety which make our 7% offerings so highly desirable.

You may purchase these 7% Bonds on our Systematic Saving-Investment Plan, if you wish, 10% down and 10% a month, in amounts of $100, $500 and $1,000.

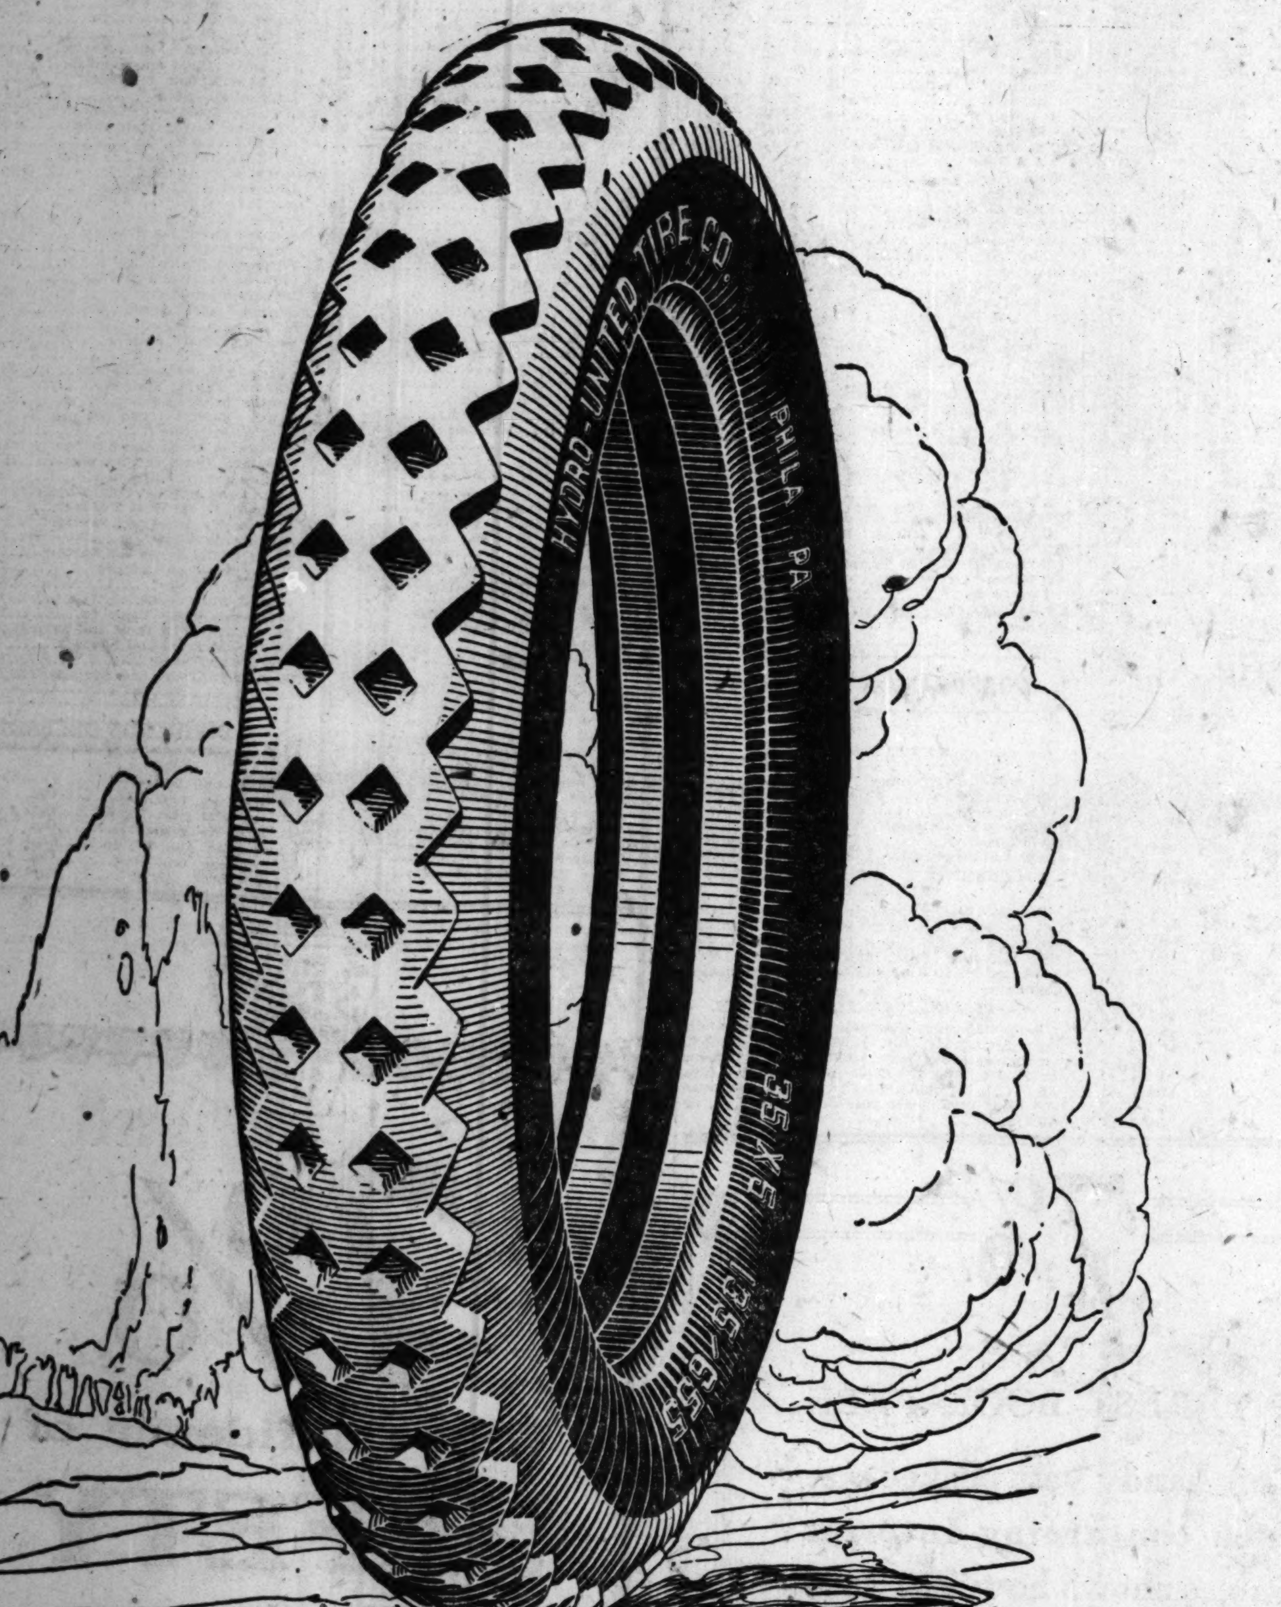
Never Such a Tire; Never Such a Guarantee; Never Such Overwhelming Response to Assurances of More Mileage, at Less Cost, with Less Tire Trouble.



Chicago and its trade territory, representing the greater part of adjacent states, were evidently waiting for Hydro-Toron tires.

The dealer response to our assurances of a more satisfactory business on a better tire was remarkable.

The response of car owners to our pledge of 10,000 miles of service, with every tire guaranteed against stone-bruise, rim-cut, and blow-out, has been unparalleled.

Each week has shown a larger number of dealers who realize what our Internal Hydraulic Expansion process of building tires, and our wonderful Toron (no-rot) chemical treatment of fabric, mean in producing positive, continuous, trouble-free service on the road.

Today a Hydro-Toron dealer can be conveniently found. There is one near you.

And the sooner you join the army of tire buyers now demanding these 10,000 mile tires—as big as cords, better than cords, guaranteed against stone-bruise, rim-cut, and blow-out, yet selling at standard fabric prices—the sooner you will know to your own profit and satisfaction that there is a tire which takes the guesswork out of buying and the mischief out of usage.

Why postpone your first Hydro-Toron purchase any longer? Why not—the very next time you buy a tire—say "Hydro-Toron," and prove to yourself that you have at last been relieved from the common fickleness of tires.

If your dealer cannot supply you, we will ship C. O. D. and, if the tires are not all that you expect, will refund every cent of your money.

Test nine Melba face powders free

SEE FOR YOURSELF THE AMAZING RESULTS OF MELBA'S NEW PROCESS

Millions of women now find in Melba what they always have sought for in a face powder, but never have found before. Melba powders are the first and the only powders to give that pearly, transparent complexion that women want, and that men admire, instead of the coated or kalsomined look that comes from the use of powders made in the old-fashioned way.

Why Melba powders are better

For 2000 years before the Melba process was discovered, face powder was sifted through cloth, much as flour is bolted. What air-floating does for face powder is to make it infinitely finer in texture than ever has been possible before. Face powder must be infinitely fine in order to blend with the skin. And it must be infinitely fine in order to cling to the skin regardless of heat, wind or moisture.

Melba does not enlarge the pores

Because the ingredients of Melba do not expand under heat, and are not soluble in moisture, they will not enlarge the pores. And because we use our own specially refined stearate of zinc as one of the ingredients, Melba soothes the skin while it beautifies. Stearate of zinc is recommended by all specialists for the healing of the skin.

Melba "Lov'me" is our leader, but there is a Melba powder for every personality

We feature Melba "Lov'me" powder because experience proves that it suits the majority of complexions. It sells everywhere at 75 cents for a generous size box. It is perfumed with the famous "Lov'me" fragrance, "The Perfume of Romance." But there are eight other Melba powders which we want you to try at our expense. All are made in the exclusive Melba way—floated on air—and one of them is sure to please you. We want you to find the particular one best suited to your personality.

Mail the coupon today, enclosing four cents in stamps, and the nine sample powders will go to you at once. The powder is free—the stamps are for postage only.

Tear off the coupon now before you forget it, and learn for yourself what air-floating has done for face powder and what Melba powders will do for your complexion.

THE NINE MELBA POWDERS ARE LOV'ME, PINEY WOODS, NEUTRAL, LILAC, BOUQUET, ADOR'ME, GLORY, OPERA, ADOREE

Why The Tribune has the largest morning daily circulation in America

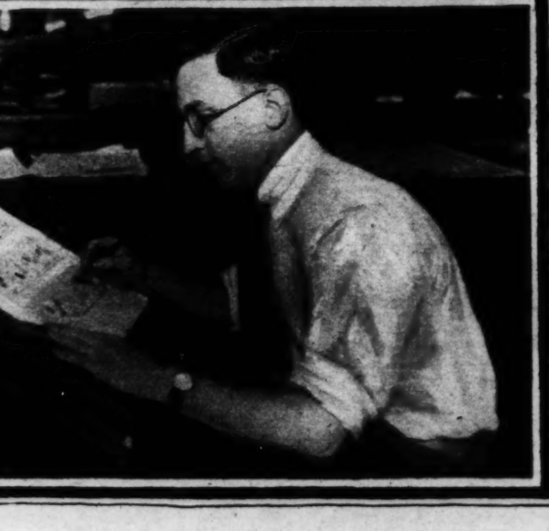
THE NEWSPAPER ART ROOM is the experience school which has developed many an artist who later acquired fame and wealth. It gathers the best young artists of the community. All of the great cartoonists, too, began modestly in the newspaper art room, making sketches and illustrations that showed unusual promise to those trained to look for genius. Briggs and King are among the cartoonists trained in The Tribune art room, and McCutcheon, Smith and Orr sat over drawing boards, at modest salaries, in the art rooms of other newspapers

MAUD MARTIN ELLIS came to Chicago from her home in Watseka, Ill., to study at the Art Institute. She joined The Tribune art staff in 1914. One of her great ambitions is to have temperament—the kind that causes an artist to tear up a criticized drawing in the face of the city editor. But her genial nature and her sense of humor seem to preclude the possibility

WILLIAM H. WISNER is the art director of The Tribune. He took charge of The Tribune art work after his return from France early in 1919. He had previously directed the art work of other newspapers in New York and Chicago. He keeps seventeen artists and eight photographers busy brightening the pages of The Tribune

MARTIN M. BRANNER got much of his knowledge of human nature, which he passes on to Tribune readers in "Winnie Winkle, the Breadwinner," when he toured the country as an actor. Many Chicagoans will remember him in a dancing act in which his wife was his partner. Before coming to The Tribune with the adventures of Miss Winkle, he drew a comic strip called "Louis the Lawyer." Winnie's clothes, which are both beautiful and diversified, are the result of a thorough study of fashions by Mr. Branner



HERBERT MORTON STOOPS is a member of The Tribune art staff known to all who follow his illustrations of Blue Ribbon fiction in The Sunday Tribune. He studied at the University of California and the Art Institute before coming to The Tribune in 1914. His war sketches, most of which were published in The Tribune, brought praise from every part of the country

CARL ED first drew his Harold Teen pictures for The Sunday Tribune. But the adventures in adolescence of the love-sick Harold became so popular that he was given a place in The Daily Tribune. It may surprise many followers of Mr. Ed's comic strip to learn that he pronounces his name to rhyme with "feed" and not with "fed"

READ THE TRIBUNE MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, FRIDAY and SATURDAY as well as SUNDAY!

"G'WAN AND SHOW ME!" Douglas Fairbanks demanded. So Dick Landon, the crack Yale athlete, taught the movie star a few of the get outs and get unders of the jumping game. Mr. Landon bears the distinction of being the world's champion jumper. He won his title at the Olympic games of 1920, held at Antwerp. His record jump was six feet four and two-fifths inches.—Mae Tinee.

BEAUTIES WHO USE THEIR EYES

Some Famous Owners of Famous Glances That Have Won Renown Since the War in the Capitals of Europe.

(Photographs from Keystone View Co.)

"FLIRTATIOUS EYES" has beautiful Mme. Wallewska, and they say she certainly knows how to use them.

"AUDACIOUS EYES," the tantalizing glance which Carmen Cartellieri, film star, uses with great success.

"LAUGHING EYES" and Dora Kaiser are an irresistible combination in the movies of the continent.

"JOLLY EYES," which put you at your ease in a moment, and their charming owner, Mme. von Sergeley.

"DANGEROUS EYES," once seen never forgotten, are the special property of Anita Berber, film star.

"SORROWFUL EYES" are the distinguishing characteristic of Mme. Diamant, an actress now in Paris.

"VIVACIOUS EYES"—Mme. Starkl-Kantor believes their language is more eloquent than any spoken one.

"VAMP EYES," used with telling effect by Beatrice Dart, a favorite principal of the opera at Zurich, Switzerland.

Nips

You'll be delighted to learn that you can now buy any or all of the world-famous extracts listed here in the economical, handy and non-spillable form of NIPS.

You can now carry your favorite perfume with you wherever you go, without danger of breakage, spilling or evaporation. NIPS are little tubes of glass, packed fifteen to a dainty, lavender-tinted, lip-stick size French ivory case, each tube containing a liberal amount of the precious essence.

And how simple and convenient to use! You open the little case, take out a NIP, pinch off both safety-sealed ends and, Presto! out comes the rare extract. Each NIP contains just enough perfume for correct application; there's no danger of overuse; so common when applied from a bottle. The glass you pinch off has the consistency of sand and is absolutely guaranteed not to injure either fingers or fabric in any way.

Before leaving for your summer in the country, drop two or three packages of NIPS into your traveling bag. They're always ready to use on the instant, wherever you may be.

NIPS can be obtained at nearly all perfume, drug and department stores.

DR. HARDING AND HIS BRIDE—First photograph of Dr. George T. Harding, father of the President, and his bride, who was Miss Alice Severns. Dr. Harding is 76 years old and his bride is 52. The new Mrs. Harding was a nurse, who has been associated with him in his practice in Marion, Ohio.

PURSUED BY MOVIE VILLAINS—Here is a daring stunt of a man jumping from the roof of a dwelling after being pursued by villains bent on having his life. The picture shows the pursued just after he had made the leap from the roof, reaching out with his umbrella for the convenient telegraph wires along which he later made his way. It all happened in Berlin, where they are filming a series of detective stories in which the man in the photograph is the hero.

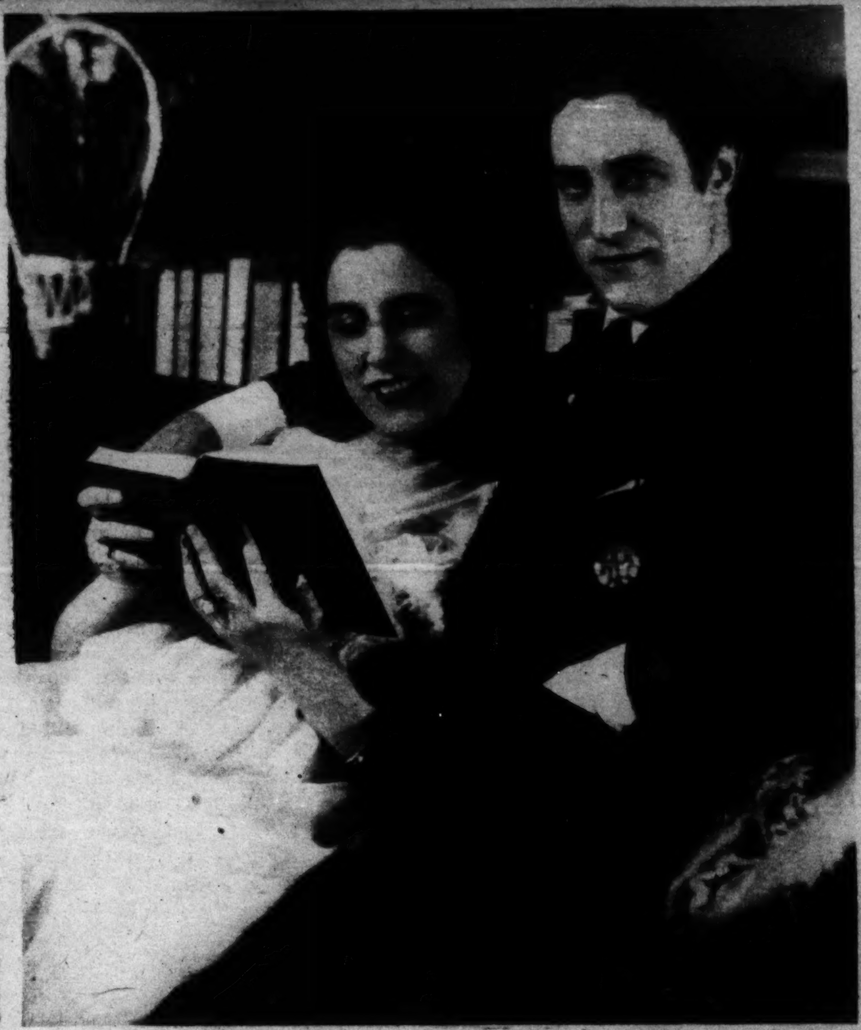
TRAINING FOR LONG SWIM—Henry Elionsky, champion swimmer, trained daily for the 100 mile swim he made recently. Starting from New York, he swam ten miles daily with his hands and feet tied to strengthen his muscles. Two fair bathers are shown doing the tying. (Photograph copyright by Kadel & Herbert.)



"THE HAPPY HOME THAT WAS"—But a short time ago was taken this photograph, which shows Mr. and Mrs. Lou Tellegen (Geraldine Farrar), on the best of terms. Now it's different. Mr. Tellegen has filed papers in White Plains, N. Y., asking legal separation from the prima donna. He claims that she "deserted him" by changing the front door lock while he was away and then refusing to allow him to enter. (Photograph copyright by Underwood & Underwood.)

PEGGY JOYCE AT ATLANTIC CITY—On her meager allowance of $1350 a month, Peggy Hopkins Joyce manages to get to the seaside. Peggy asked a Chicago court for $10,000 a month—$120,000 a year—temporary alimony, and $100,000 for attorneys' fees, but the judge cut her off with the $1350 a month and only $40,000 for expenses. James Stanley Joyce, millionaire lumberman, is suing for an annulment of his marriage to the former stage beauty. Joyce is Peggy's third husband. Everett Archer and S. G. Hopkins, her first husbands, were referred to as millionaires at the alimony hearing, but Peggy says they weren't. (Copyright by Kadel and Herbert.)

GENERAL PERSHING ADDRESSING THE CITIZENS' MILITARY TRAINING CAMP AT CAMP GRANT—The camp has twelve hundred men from Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and three hundred from Chicago. Gen. Pershing told the men that the number of young men with physical defects, as disclosed by examination in the late war, was appalling and unwarranted. He said he desired an organization which would so train the young men and women of the nation that few physically defective would remain. The general stated that it would probably be many years before the next war, but that the country must be prepared now. The camp commander, Col. William P. Jackson, and the men were complimented on the fine showing made after two weeks' training. The camp closed Aug. 20.

THE HOUSE THAT STOOD BACK by C. C. ANDREWS

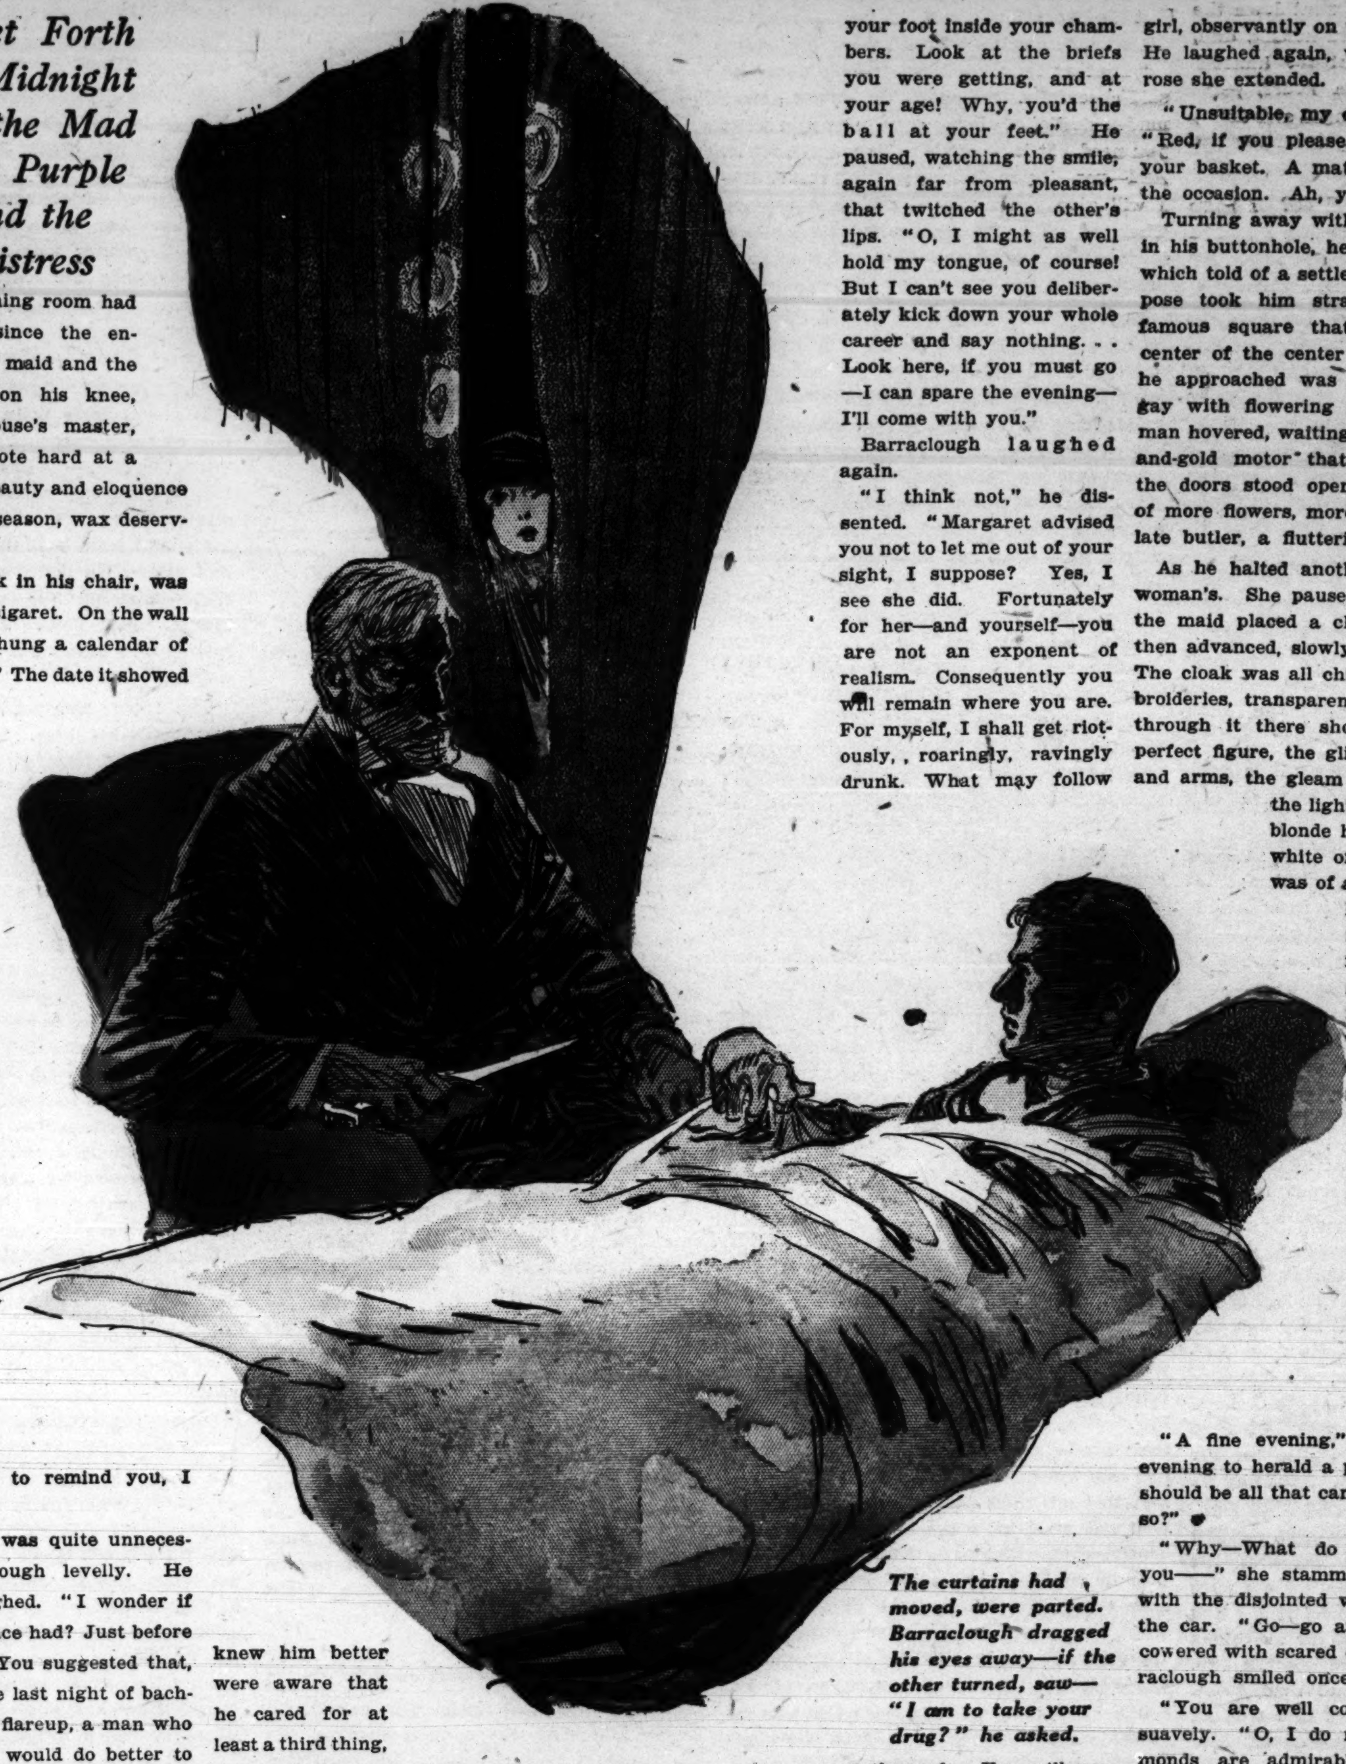
Wherein Is Set Forth the Amazing Midnight Adventure of the Mad Patriarch, the Purple Curtains, and the Beauty in Distress



The curtains had moved, were parted. Barraclough dragged his eyes away—if the other turned, saw— "I am to take your drug?" he asked.

THE silence of the dining room had not been broken since the entrance of the parlor maid and the coffee. With his pad on his knee, happy, absorbed, the house's master, Farrant, the novelist, wrote hard at a last chapter over whose beauty and eloquence the critics would, in due season, wax deservedly enthusiastic.

Barraclough, lying back in his chair, was half way through a third cigaret. On the wall immediately facing him, hung a calendar of the kind known as "block." The date it showed was the 14th of May. His eyes rested upon it. And the smile that now and then twisted his lips was not a pleasant one.

"I conclude"—he spoke without moving—"I conclude you don't, by any chance, happen to remember the date?"

"Eh?" inquired Farrant, half glancing up. He was naturally a person of brevity.

"The 14th of May," proceeded Barraclough smoothly. "You had perhaps overlooked it? Or imagined that I had? Not at all. Or that tomorrow is consequently the 15th. Otherwise, my wedding day."

"You didn't want me to remind you, I suppose?" said Farrant.

"Again, not at all—it was quite unnecessary," returned Barraclough levelly. He turned in his chair, laughed. "I wonder if you recollect a talk we once had? Just before you married Margaret. You suggested that, instead of celebrating the last night of bachelorhood with the usual flareup, a man who saw his heaven opening would do better to spend it in saying his prayers. Don't know whether you carried out your own program——"

"Yes, I did."

"Ah! Well, results have justified you—I don't dispute it. I was about to say that I recollect cordially agreeing. And—privately—deciding that when my time came, if it did, I would do likewise. Which reveals me as having been a particularly crass idiot!" He stood up with a yawn. "To relapse upon the accepted parlance, I am about to make a night of it."

"Don't you"—admonished Farrant of the eloquent pen and the ineloquent tongue—"don't you get making a dashed ass of yourself!"

"The town," went on Barraclough, unheeding, "will be painted exceedingly red. To look upon the wine when of a corresponding hue is, I presume, the shortest road to the desired result? We shall see."

"I wish"—growled Farrant uneasily—"I wish Margaret were here, confound you!"

Those who knew him merely well were wont to declare that he cared for but two things, his wife and his work. The few who knew him better were aware that he cared for at least a third thing, which was his friend. Barraclough laughed.

"I have," he said deliberately, "the highest respect for your wife. If she were here she would probably enter upon expostulations which I should be forced to disregard. Therefore I consider it rather fortunate that she is called out of town. As she may possibly, after tonight, decline my further acquaintance, I should like her to know that your hospitality for the last two months has been perhaps more appreciated than either she or you——"

"Rot!" Farrant rose. "The last two months!" he said bluntly. "I wonder if you realize what you have done for yourself in the last two months? O, I'm not thinking of your losses at cards, and so on, though I happen to know they have been frightful. It's—things in general. Good heaven, you don't suppose people don't know? Why, you've not so much as set your foot inside your chambers. Look at the briefs you were getting, and at your age! Why, you'd the ball at your feet." He paused, watching the smile, again far from pleasant, that twitched the other's lips. "O, I might as well hold my tongue, of course! But I can't see you deliberately kick down your whole career and say nothing. . . Look here, if you must go—I can spare the evening—I'll come with you."

Barraclough laughed again.

"I think not," he dissented. "Margaret advised you not to let me out of your sight, I suppose? Yes, I see she did. Fortunately for her—and yourself—you are not an exponent of realism. Consequently you will remain where you are. For myself, I shall get riotously, , roaringly, ravingly drunk. What may follow is on the knees of the gods. You will probably be called upon to bail me out, supposing that I am bailable. For the present—good-night."

Farrant attempted no answer—the man of few words knew when it was futile to use any; he turned away with a shrug. Barraclough, at the door, stopped and glanced back. Then crossed over quickly and held out his hand. As was sometimes the case, he looked suddenly almost boyishly young.

"Thanks, old man," he said quietly. "Good-night."

Farrant nodded and echoed the goodnight. Barraclough went out, in a few minutes was strolling leisurely through the warm, dry streets. Leisurely, because the night was still young. And before the morning there were many hours. A sudden thought, idea, presently brought him, with a laugh to a standstill at a corner. An adjacent flower-girl, observantly on the watch, accosted him. He laughed again, waving away the white rose she extended.

"Unsuitable, my dear," he said seriously. "Red, if you please. The reddest thing in your basket. A match, if possible, for—for the occasion. Ah, yes, thanks—that'll do!"

Turning away with the offered red flower in his buttonhole, he walked now at a pace which told of a settled purpose. Which purpose took him straightway to a certain famous square that is an acknowledged center of the center of things. The house he approached was brilliantly lighted and gay with flowering window boxes; a footman hovered, waiting, near the great cream-and-gold motor that purred by the curb; the doors stood open; there were glimpses of more flowers, more footmen, an immaculate butler, a fluttering French maid.

As he halted another figure appeared, a woman's. She paused for a moment while the maid placed a cloak on her shoulders, then advanced, slowly descending the steps. The cloak was all chiffon and lace and embroideries, transparent and airy as a cloud; through it there showed the curves of a perfect figure, the glitter of jewels on neck and arms, the gleam of a wonderful frock; the light was bright upon piled blonde hair, upon the rose and white of a beautiful face; she was of a type that, while hardly past girlhood, blooms into a vivid and superb maturity. Barraclough gave a laugh, advancing. He thrust away the hovering footman, as she reached the car stood bareheaded with the door held wide.

"It is a fine evening," he said smiling, and bowed to her. She fell back with caught breath.

"O," she gasped. "O," and stared at him, her rose overwashed with the pallor of fright. He repeated the smile—it was very ugly.

"A fine evening," he said again. "An evening to herald a perfect day. Tomorrow should be all that can be desired. You think so?"

"Why—What do you—How—how dare you——" she stammered, incoherent. And with the disjointed words sprang past into the car. "Go—go away," she panted, and cowered with scared eyes. "I—I——" Barraclough smiled once more.

"You are well content?" he suggested, suavely. "O, I do not doubt it! The diamonds are admirable. And the frock—Paquin, I think? Ah, yes—the touch is inimitable! By the way, my apologies—I once called you worthless. Most unjust! At the present moment you are, incontestably, worth a great deal!"

"This—this is hateful of you! I—I won't be insulted!" she cried, shrinking more and trembling. Barraclough, sweeping a bow that in its depth touched mockery, was aware of another figure descending the steps, a man pompous and portly, bald and florid; knew, as he moved away at a pace studiedly slow, that, after a moment's hurried colloquy, he was followed. His stop and turn were so abruptly sharp that the other started, almost recoiled. And, recovering, burst into speech of agitated bluster, stuttering.

"What—what's the meaning of this, sir?" he demanded. "I—I am——"

"Frightened?" supplied Barraclough, smoothly, smiling.

"Indignant, sir—most indignant! It—it is infamous that you should—I don't know whether you are drunk——"

"Not yet," said Barraclough, more blandly.

"It—it is an outrage, sir! If—if it should occur again I warn you that I shall at once——"

"Go to the devil!" said Barraclough, very pleasantly. His hand on the other's collar swung him about; he laughed and walked

Why You Need IRON

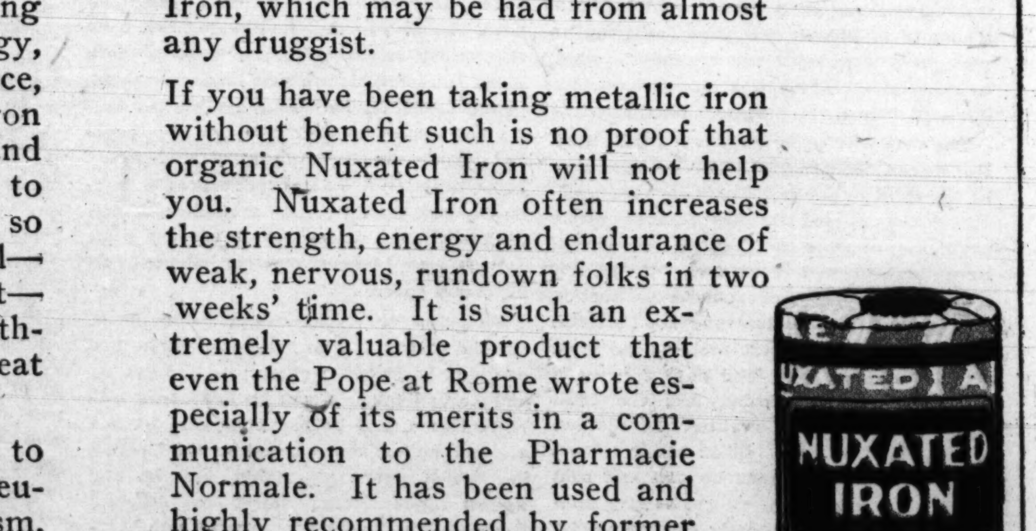
TO make you strong and "brainy" and put the power into your blood to overcome disease germs.

Practical advice on how to develop great energy and endurance

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs, is plenty of good, rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance, and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron, which may be had from almost any druggist.

If you have been taking metallic iron without benefit such is no proof that organic Nuxated Iron will not help you. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, rundown folks in two weeks' time. It is such an extremely valuable product that even the Pope at Rome wrote especially of its merits in a communication to the Pharmacie Normale. It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, physicians and prominent men.



Over 4,000,000 people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Sold by all druggists.

on. In a minute the motor passed him; he had a glimpse of a blonde head, of jewels on a white neck, and opposite a face of flushed rage and perturbation. His sauntering stride took him out of the Square, took him through adjacent squares. He paused presently to glance at his watch, from it to the name of the street. Time was getting on. And near was a certain night club, heard of because unsavorily notorious, but never seen. At the back of his mind there had perhaps been some idea of the night-club? This turning should be on the way—he went down the turning. A street of flat-faced houses, dull, respectable, silent. And, but for himself empty. Odd, how at certain hours, part of this vast London, the thronged and throbbing, could seem more utterly deserted, solitary, than——

"It is gone! What shall I do? I have dropped, lost it! Ah, little imbecile I am! I cannot go! And there is nowhere else. My faith, what shall I do?" moaned a voice.

It spoke in French. A voice, broken, half-sobbing, bewildered, panic-stricken. And certainly feminine. Barraclough, walking in the roadway, swung round. On the pavement, in the shadow, a dark shape stooped, shook its garments, searched, it seemed wildly, with fresh ejaculations of dismay and distress. He advanced, hesitated, spoke.

"I beg your pardon," he began. "I——" The figure, girl or woman, started up.

"No, no!" she cried. "You must not speak to me, monsieur. I—I do not answer. Go—go on!"

"But you are in trouble—have dropped, lost something?" Barraclough persisted. "Your purse perhaps? If so——"

"No, no! It does not matter. It is nothing, monsieur. If you please, leave me and go on."

She had shrunk back against the railings, putting out a defensive ungloved hand; from a bangle encircling the slender wrist a little silver heart hung down. A small slight thing in shabby black, a girl who was almost a child, sixteen or seventeen perhaps. A delicate oval face gleaming like a pearl against dark hair. An extraordinary fine finish in the curve of the cheek, in the lines of nostril and mouth and chin. Dilated black lashed eyes that, as the light of a near lamp caught them, showed a mingling color of violet and green. Barraclough looked at all these—at the little piteous, trembling, repelling hand. And he moved to stand bareheaded under the lamp.

"Mademoiselle," he said in his difficult, slow French, "I have a sister who is, I think, not much older than you. It may one day chance—who can tell?—that she finds herself in a strange land, like you, in a difficulty like yours. If that should happen I hope there may be also a man to speak to her as I venture to speak to you, to offer her his services as I offer mine to you. I can say no more."

He waited. Of the face the girl's upward gaze searched, Farrant and Margaret, his wife, could have pointed to lines about eyes and mouth, to a stubborn setting of jaw and a certain recklessly hardened air as things that had not been there two months ago. Perhaps, seeing, she failed to read them. Perhaps saw only a face at which women, looking once, had usually looked again. Her scrutiny lasted only a moment. She put out her hand with a different gesture.

"I will tell you, monsieur," she said simply.

"That is well. This is your way? We will walk on," said Barraclough. "And now—I was right? You have lost your purse?"

"Yes, monsieur. And I have no more money, not a sou—nothing! But first, if you please, I will explain. I came to England, seven, eight months ago, to my brother, Charles. He had lived here several years and taught the languages, our French and Spanish and Italian—he was, oh, very clever! But he wrote that he was ill, and wanted some one to care for him; he asked me to come. Our mother—our step-mother—had married again, her new husband had also children—there was no home for me, you understand. So I was glad, very glad, to come to Charles. I nursed him, but he did not get better—the doctors said he had worked too hard. In two months he died, monsieur!"

"And since?" asked Barraclough gently.

Since she had worked, she answered—all Charles' money had gone in his illness. She had tried to teach, but she knew so little, had been taught so little, and could not speak the language. She had tried to sew, but did it "oh, so badly!"—people were angry, and the pay so very small; poignantly, unconsciously, she sketched a picture of a frightened child, solitary, shrinking from coming hunger—"there was no home you understand, monsieur."

Now she had obtained a post with a South African family returning to the Cape, partly as maid, partly as nurse. It was not what Charles would have wished, or her father, but to live one must work—was it not so? They had gone on to the port from which the vessel sailed; she was to follow by this night train. Now, on her way to the station, her luggage already gone, she had missed her purse, had somehow dropped it—lost it—Barraclough met the tragic look, the little tragic gesture with a reassuring smile.

"That at least need not trouble you," he said cheerfully. "You will do me the honor, mademoiselle, of allowing me to supply what you need. It is too little to be worth thanks. And—yes—if you desire you shall return it—I will give you my card with my address. Then, at some time in the future, when it is more than easy, you can send it back to me."

Turning back, they were now in the thoroughfare where he had halted to look at the name of the street. He took out his pocketbook, slipping a card into the folded notes he handed her, watching as she carefully placed the packet in an inner pocket of the shabby black coat. A little lower down, posted on a refuge, that most dependable feature of modern London, a policeman, was standing—with a word or two of explanation he led her across.

The young lady did not speak English; she wanted to take a certain train from a certain station; would he whistle a taxi, see her safely into it, make the driver fully understand where he was to go? he asked. The constable accepted the charge and its appropriate accompaniment with cheerful alacrity. Barraclough bowed gravely over a little cold hand from whose slender wrist the silver heart hung down and turned away. Glancing back when he had gone some fifty yards he saw the childish figure standing beside the sturdy form in blue, and knew from the turn of the head that the violet green eyes watched him. Involuntarily the last words of her fervent thanks came to his tongue.

"She will never forget! And le bon Dieu will bless me!" he said half aloud. "Humph! I am not past praying for, it seems! What a child to be alone! I don't think I ever saw quite so exquisite a little face!" He laughed suddenly, cynically. "Bah—a most inappropriate interlude! Now, which way do we go? Down here?"

The turning whose corner he had reached must run about parallel with the other, would suit his purpose equally. Pausing to light a cigaret, his thoughts went back to Farrant, who would probably work himself into a deuce of a stew before morning! A brick, Farrant, straight, clean, honest. But every reason to be, married to a woman who adored him and whom he adored, who would stick to him through thick and thin. A man might well run straight, make good with that incentive—something to do it for! . . . Suppose he chucked up this rot—after all it was rot!—went back—no, hanged if he would! He went down the turning. As badly lighted as the other, as deserted as the other. On the opposite side area railings of what were most likely the backs of offices. On the side he walked some empty shops—a block of evident warehouses—a patch of uneven flag stones—standing back, beyond it, a flat faced house—more warehouses—Barraclough, stopping, swung about.

"Hallo!" he ejaculated loudly.

The lights had flared up with the rapidity of a lightning flash. Had flared up, at the moment that he passed it, in the lower windows of the house that stood back. Flared up behind blinds of a most unusual color, a deep and vivid purple. And, at the same instant, had come the cry. A cry there was no mistaking, for only from a woman's throat could burst that shrilly quavered moan of anguish and fear. It shivered into silence. And rose again piercingly into a wild shriek of terror, while, shadowed on one of the purple blinds—Barraclough caught the man's outline, the arm swung upward menacingly, the clenched hand grasping the knife, and shouted as he dashed across the uneven flags to the door. The door yielded as he touched it, was open—he dashed in. He dashed in and the lights went out. Something caught his foot; in black darkness he stumbled heavily to his knees. Hands were upon him in the darkness, sinewy, powerful, something damp, sweet savored, sickly, was pressed hard over his nostrils and mouth. The darkness spread to his brain, flooding the world. And out of it, far off, came laughter.

Barraclough, opening his eyes, found them stabbed by vivid light. Closing them, he slowly put up a hand to his forehead and felt it wet, was conscious of a sensation in his nostrils of something pungent and stinging. He opened his eyes again. Facing him as he lay—he was lying—a fall of drapery, of curtains. Heavy curtains, almost but not quite meeting. Purple curtains? Yes, purple. A hideous color, purple. A hateful color. Turning his eyes they took in a patch of purple rug, part of a purple chair, a corner—there was a rustle at his head; some one was standing before him, was looking down as he looked up.

"Permit me," said a voice, courteously, gently. "Dr. Casimer La Rue."

Barraclough found himself repeating the name. It was oddly difficult to do this. It had been oddly difficult to raise his head, to turn his eyes. And he looked at Dr. Casimer La Rue. A black clad figure. Tall, lean to gauntness. Remarkable in breadth of shoulder, depth of chest, length of arm. Immensely powerful, probably. Very delicately kept, long fingered hands. White hair, rolled back from a broad forehead; white moustache and beard. A distinctly handsome face; intensely blue eyes. An expression quite extraordinarily serene, benign, benevolent. Yes. Yes. But standing so he blotted out the curtains. The purple curtains. The purple—memory stirred, struggled—Barraclough strove to lift his head.

"The woman!" he exclaimed.

"The woman——?"

"Who was here. I heard her scream."

"Pardon me—no. You heard no woman. Listen," said Dr. La Rue.

At the curtains he parted them, reaching a hand through the opening. The movement showed vaguely a dark room, faintly sketched in the darkness a square window masked by a blind. The room must lie to the front. For shadowed upon the blind—the purple blind—of such a window he had seen—there was a click. And the moan, the terrible shrill quaver of anguish and fear made its shuddering outcry. The doctor moved back. Barraclough met his smile, his gesture.

"A phonograph!" he exclaimed.

"Exactly—a phonograph. You find it realistic? Ah, even in her most trivial moments science is wonderful! But we will not, I think, have the scream. It is attended, necessarily, with more or less risk. Though, at this hour, with very little, very—practically none. Also realistic, was it not? And, combined with this——!"

His turn, his darting arm, were lightning swift. And the caught up knife quivered in his clenched hand with the gesture of the shadow on the blind! Barraclough struggled, memory, complete, flooding, rushed upon him. The sudden darkness—his stumble in the darkness—the suffocating pressure that had stifled his senses—the laugh—the laugh that came now, told everything. Mad! The man was mad! And painted as though upon running water, came a vision of the street, its empty shops and warehouses, its silence, desertion!

"I am bound!" cried Barraclough.

He had struggled again, desperately, futilely. His head was upon a cushion. He could raise it from the neck. His right arm was free. Nothing else was free. From throat to feet, crossing, recrossing, went broad, white bandages, securing him to the bench—it seemed a bench—upon which he lay. They were nowhere painful, nowhere tight, but they held him as helplessly as a caught bird in a closed hand. The other moved to the side of the bench.

"You are bound—yes," he assented. "But not, I trust, uncomfortably. Before explaining—I desire to fully explain—may I suggest that but for ourselves the house is empty? As for passersby—I should so much regret—I have waited so long!—but should there——Ah, no—you will not call!"

From the street, muffled but audible, had come the sound of feet, voices, laughter—Barraclough's lips had parted for a cry. And in a flash the knife point was above his heart. The sounds were close, were passing, were dwindling, were——

"I should so much regret—yet. . . . But you will not call, I think?" repeated Dr. La Rue.

"I shall not call," said Barraclough.

He met the pleading eyes, the kindly eyes, the mad eyes, and felt that he looked into the eyes of death. Death that might be postponed for probable minutes, for possible hours, but, without a miracle, inevitable death. Without a miracle . . . The doctor laid down the knife. He drew forward a chair, seating himself, and bent his white head with a smile.

"I thank you," he said gently. "You lie without discomfort, I hope? Good. And now my explanation. Is it necessary to enter into the details of my little trap—ingenious, I think?—or into what followed your entry? No—you are intelligent—as satisfactory in that respect as in youth and physique. All, in fact, that I desire—I am most fortunate! You understand that I watched at the window? I do so always. It is long since the first time, long since all was ready. Weeks? Months? I do not know—I do not count. But I have patience—much patience. They who serve Science must possess that first of all, as they must follow her beckoning through all and in spite of all. I waited. Men passed—I let them pass—they were not worthy. You came, and the honor falls to you—the honor which you will share with me, Casimer La Rue! Share deservedly, since, understanding, you must rejoice at an opportunity so glorious. For to you it falls to prove the power of my drug!"

"Of your drug?" repeated Barraclough.

His eyes were upon the purple curtains, the curtains that hid the dark room. His brain was clear—he knew his brain was clear. But at the moment when the noise from the street was loudest, at the moment when the knife had been held above his heart, there had seemed to come a sound from beyond them—a sound like a desperately caught breath. And now? Did they move? An inch? Less than an inch? As if touched by a furtive hand But still move? . . .

The doctor was pouring out a torrent of words. Of his drug. The drug was his life work. The drug was the most gigantic contribution to science which the century could show. Which any century could show. The drug would render the now impossible the commonplaces of every day, would open wonders in the future of which no man had dared to dream. There were no bounds or limits to the vast, the marvelous potentialities of the drug. Throughout the ages the world's once martyred peoples would, acclaiming it, acclaim also the name of Casimer La Rue! . . . There was but one drawback, one stumbling block—he was not sure of, had been unable to ascertain with precision the force and manner of its action upon the heart. Animals were useless for experiment—the drug was for man, was—— The curtains had moved, were parted; from beyond, divined rather than seen, was flung a frantic gesture of warning! Barraclough dragged his eyes away—if the other turned, saw——Hope, wild hope, held his voice to steadiness.

"I am to take your drug?" he asked.

"You are to drink it—yes," said Dr. La Rue.

Checked in his rhapsody, it was after a pause that he answered, and rose to his feet. His back was still toward the curtains. The curtains parted again, parted more—Barraclough saw. A miracle? The French girl! Her little figure in the shabby black, desperate terror and horror painted upon her face and in her dilated eyes, passionate encouragement in the movement of the childish hand from whose wrist the little silver heart hung down—so, for a breath's length she was visible before the purple curtains fell soundlessly together and the other spoke again.

"You will drink," he repeated. "You find that you are able to lift your head, observe that your arm is at liberty? With intention. It is my desire that you should drink freely. To the success which must henceforth be so magnificent, to the sacrifice that is so infinitesimally small! You understand? You will drink. And you will sleep."

"I shall sleep," repeated Barraclough, and felt his forehead cold. "I shall sleep. You will observe until I wake? Afterward——?"

"There is no afterward," said Dr. La Rue.

Barraclough kept his eyes upon him. But he knew that the curtains had moved again, that the little face peered fearfully through. How came the child there? Being there, why did she not go? Fetch help? Could she go? Who could answer for what might hold her helpless in this frightful house And if her nerve failed her for a moment——

"There is no afterwards," said Dr. La Rue. "You will sleep. You will wake. For a time you will suffer. Probably acutely. I think, I fear, acutely. Then will come the end. And I shall have seen, shall have made my tests—have grasped the knowledge I lack! Beside which nothing matters. You agree?"

He waited for the assent. Barraclough gave the assent. His ears were straining. Absolute silence in the street. A night—policeman within hearing? The forlornest of hopes, but not impossible. He was to

AND THERE TOMORROW—by—Jack Lait

"Con" Ligo, Carnival Pitchman, Indulges in a Backward Look

THE "gyp" carnival is gradually fading away, like many of the honored institutions of the past. A few "outfits" still travel the county seats, but year after year even the rural public, educated by movies, by newspapers, by magazines, by steam, and by gasoline, "gets next" to itself and to the shabby, papier maché fakes, pierces the cheap grease paint with its awakening eyes, and instructs its village councilmen to bar the "big show" next summer.

The words "carnival" and "carniverous" spring from the same root, and they don't spring far. Most amusement enterprises and entertainment projects are primarily based on the sale of laughter, or joy, or distraction, and from that basis the promoters and operators later radiate out into specialized and refined methods of graft, profiteering, and scalping. But the carnival is in its inception a scheme to pillage, to plunder, and to pilfer, and such attractions only as are necessary to bait the net and save its face as amusement are added as needed impedimenta and incidental expense.

Carnival camps are mostly composed of that great class of demi-criminal riff raff between decent people and highwaymen. Their flocks shade off both ways, some members leaning toward honesty enough to be virtually clean and guilty only of knowingly lending their services and aid to a parcel of crooks whom they know to be crooks, others slanting into crime more flagrant than even most carnival managements encourage as a rule. But in the main the workers and hoodlums and swillbox skimmers, with a contempt for orderly people and an abiding idea that they are wise and the honest world is a school of fish.

Carnival companies take on extravagant titles, and are usually billed as mammoth, or giant, or at least great. They move on wagons and auto trucks, the bodies thereof glaringly painted in red and gold, each bearing the name of its chief inhabitant, such as "Milly, the Wild Girl," "Tarzo, the Human Chimp," "Kyri and Her Oriental Harem Belles," "The Siamese Triplets," "Pyro, the Fire Eating Monarch," "Rosetta, Queen of the Deadly Reptiles," etc.

An "outfit" sends several advance men to arrange for permits on the public squares, to plaster the environs with shrieking and lying posters, to scatter shrieking and lying "heralds," to "slip" the sheriffs, and to clear the roads for the incoming of the pack of thieves and slum rats on the way to mulct the "stand," to insult its girls, to bootleg rotten liquor, to lure rednecks by flashes of mendacious dancing on a "free" platform into a tent to be bilked with tame cavorting, to pick pockets, to sell brass watches for gold, to short change rustics at the wagon windows, to "clean the burg and blow."

The owner of a carnival takes little risk. He lets out "concessions." A concession may be the right to peddle popcorn, to pick pockets, to loot outlying cottages while the whole population and the constable and the sheriff have concentrated downtown, to exhibit freaks, to ballyhoo side shows, to auction fake jewelry, to push browned wood alcohol.

The owner takes a percentage of the gross receipts of everybody, and pays for "salving" officials, advertising, and the band which parades, as for circuses. In addition to his "bit" of every dollar taken in and every article stolen, if he be wise and bold and if he be in prime territory, he may even get subsidies, for frequently the local hotel men, restaurateurs, garageurs, merchants, and dealers will "give up" to a project certain to draw into town the solid population of a circle of thirty miles' radius.

Carnival people usually start young and live their lives in the game. They say it has a fascination that is next to unbreakable.

It is a bitter life, even when circumstances are comparatively smooth. The travel is brutally hard and uncomfortable, the food is touch and go, the society is divided between off color colleagues and bucolic aliens, the toil is egregious in setting up, and taking down, and working the shows and the grifts between, and there is always the danger of arrest or assault. Carnival crews are "tough," and it takes a goodly sized community, mobilized and united, to storm a handful of organized pitch men, crooked gamblers, roustabouts, and pug uglies drilled and practiced in warding off indignant mobs. When danger appears the first man who sees it raises the cry, "Hey, Rube," the call to arms since times immemorial of this tribe, and bristling, armed concentration follows with amazing speed at the storm point.

Fair and carnival companies are numerous, sometimes comprising as many as 500 people. A fair idea of what one of these caravans carries may be had from the herald of one of them, typical of the larger class shows, which promises, in addition to the loaded dice throwers and the purse snatchers, which it does not mention, the following:

Band of forty, complete wild west exhibit, trained horse fair, Hawaiian carnival, musical comedy, wonderland of freaks, colored minstrel revue, a sorceress, a Coney Island, South Sea Islanders, auto maniacs who flirt with death, six dare devil girl motorcycle racers and wonder riders, a series of dozen dips and rides and wheels, army airplanes, fighting lions, sirens of the sea, bowling, candy novelties, a dozen different doll novelties, paddle games, teddy bears, hootchy kootchy dancers, diving belles, leaping gray hounds, Arabian tumblers, armless wonders, and clowns.

This gang sets up a "Midway" for its side shows, an aerodrome amphitheater with a huge wooden saucer track for its motorcycle and auto fakes—with the airplane landing and rising point in its center—and scatters its other movable theaters, tents, menageries, hippodromes, and collapsible buildings over a large area.

Whatever happens to a country town that lets one of these bands in, it is quite fair to say that the town deserves it. Not one of them ever leaves without an aftermath of vice, and crime, and shame, and the community feels hang dog and peeved for months to come. But when spring again rears it head, there is always the keen temptation to repeat, whatever the expense, that gay and giddy period with music and noise, with strangers and gatherings, with lights and miracles, with its spectacular arrival and its triumphant departure, and its cleanup. So, while many centers have long put thumbs down against this horde of freebooters and vandals, many still "fall"—and beg and even pay to be "taken" again and once more.

"Con" Ligo was one of the oldest of the pitchmen. He had started as a child, when he had run away from his uncle's farm, dazzled by the blaze and the blare of a shabby one night, dozen wagon organization. He had worked through as a teamster, as a setter up, as a faker in the band (though he could not play), and in time had become a concessionaire, living from hand to pocket and hand to mouth as the manager of dog faced girls, bathing beauties of the Nile, lady boxers and wrestlers, glass bead eyed fuzzy dogs, salt water taffy, doughnuts fresh from the patent machine, boscos, tarzans, moth eaten lions, toothless tigers, made up zebras, patent medicines containing seventy per cent alcohol, useless fountain pens, surprise packages, condemned peanuts, mind readers, six karat watches, five karat link bracelets, mermaids, two headed giants, mummies, wheels (Ferris, paddle, and roulette), seventh sons, Maoris, glass blowers, shooting galleries, and ice cream cones.

He had toured the byways of the continent. He had fought and he had swindled; he had bled and he had bled others; he had put up and he had taken down; he had come, and he had seen, and he had gone, and he had gone on; he had starved, and he had lived on the fat of temporary riches, and he had known liquor from thirst to delirium tremens, to the water wagon, to prohibition; he had loved and he had deceived; he had been loved and been deceived; he had done his stretch in the calaboose and he had dined with a governor; he had fleeced yokels and been turned inside out by phony stock promoters, he had seen a million wide eyed boobs and he had been them; he was a wise bird and a bleating lambkin; he had won on marked cards and dropped his winnings against doctored dice; he had burned up his youth, and lived out his middle age, and sentenced himself to the precarious, and the penurious, and the pusillanimous but irresistible old age in the grip of the mesmerism of this dirty, dizzy, dazzling trade.

There were times, between the stresses of travel, the presses of making the raucous camps, the feverish business of stringing and singeing saps, the dismantling of the hollow and unholy mirage, the getaway and the "jump," when Con Ligo thought. Thinking is not regarded as necessary with carnivals, except such mental operations as is directly applied to the processes of "the work." But Con, while he would scarcely have bragged about it, did think in flashes and at rare intervals.

Sometimes he thought he was and had been "all wrong"—but he might as well have been a "lifer" behind the steel bars set in concrete, for he was helpless to emancipate himself from it.

Sometimes he thought that he—yes, Con Ligo, the grizzled mountebank, the cheap bunco steerer, the noncommissioned officer in the ranks of the rank guerillas, the scarred veteran of many skirmishes against defenseless lunkheads, the shyster, the renegade ruralist trading on the firm frailties of his own kind, the lying, and cheating, and conniving second rate sneak thief—he might have been a man.

Sometimes he envied the feeble minded but exasperatingly respectable husbandmen who flocked with open mouths and unguarded half dollars to gape at the bedizening carnival counterfeits, to cast eager yet sheepish eyes at the tawdry and scrawny "Dancing Girls of Damascus," to buy with trembling yet resistless hands the varied gold bricks of his commerce.

He would not have yielded that he ever viewed them with less than the fine contempt of the petty pettifogger for the upright taxpayer. It would have cost him caste among his fellows. It would have lost him his own opinion of himself. But sometimes he could not help thinking—sometimes.

He had neither child nor kin, neither home nor house, neither hope of heaven nor hereafter on earth. He was a citizen of nowhere, a resident of the same place, disfranchised, unmissed.

This season he was boss of the "Dancing Girls of Damascus," three chambermaids of long life and luminous lineage in carnivaldom. Their home and workshop was a long, gaudy box on the chassis of a chain driven truck. For road purposes it closed up like an ambulance, with the door in the rear. For exhibition purposes its side opened and made a platform upon which Con Ligo, dressed in soiled white flannels, "spieled," calling attention to the "marvelous aggregation of Hindoo houris, lured from the inner harem of a sheik, transported amid incredible perils to the United States, now offering this shocking series of unbridled native dances never before seen by eyes of Caucasians"—etc.

After his "lecture" the trio of spavined females would come from within to kick up a few significant but slightly restrained gyrations on the platform, when Con would call: "The big show will now commence in the big tent. Step this way—the price is a quarter, twenty-five cents; no one under age admitted under any circumstances." He would then run around the truck and man the "gate" at the opening to the squared canvas enclosure behind and with both hands rake in the coins of men and boys—any ages—deftly miscalling currency, fleetly holding out silver change.

Within, upon the dirty burlap flooring, a smoky Yazoo City deckhand, wearing a greasy turban, sat cross legged and blew discordant breaths into a Hindoo reed and cudgeled a home-made tomtom, to the tortured measure of which the three chromos, now divested of their ragged shawls to the conventional apparel of Midway dancers, threw a few ungraceful contortions and, before the huddled hayseeds had found time to say "B'gosh," Con had his head in the tent, calling: "The performance is now over. Patrons will kindly pass through the rear."

A minute later he was back again on the platform, and three minutes later another parcel of corn shuckers was entering the tent. And so it went.

Saturday nights were the big nights. Every night was busy, but Saturdays were always booked in the more promising towns, for it is a tradition of the business that the scattered business of the week pays expenses and Saturday nights are the "velvet." Rubes will come to carnivals; but rubes also have to get up early, and Sunday is the one day when they can sleep late—until sunrise or so. And they will flock forth better on Saturdays. And the harder they flock the harder the work and the fatter the pickings and the more numerous the "shows" for each wagon.

One of those Saturday nights had just ended. It had rained a bit early in the evening, and the "play" had been late in starting. (The "play" is not the show—it is the patronage.) Con and his Mississippi River Hindoo and his three Damascus divinities had worked like beavers, had rushed the victims through, had garnered the usual Saturday night shekels, and had "doused" the lights at 10, as per agreement with the city council.

Even before the last of the pop eyed sightseers had turned toward their homes, leaving only the handful of older boys and busy bodies to watch the dismantling of the show and the start off out of town, the process of taking down the tents, packing up the portables, collecting the banners and streamers and lights and cables into the transport trucks, and the regular routine of heaving anchors was on. As a rule, the shows do not travel on Saturday nights, because Sundays are "open" and they pack in the early mornings and have the full daylight for the "movement." But in this instance the next stand was far away, and it would take all of Saturday night and Sunday and Sunday night to make possible a Monday set-up in time for the next herd of goofs.

The truck, with the tent lashed on its roof, was soon loaded. The three weary dancing damosels crawled into their bunks within and stretched their aching limbs, smoked a cigaret apiece, and were asleep before the near-Hindoo, who was the driver of the vehicle when it was a vehicle, had it cranked.

Con, worn out though he was, still was not ready to turn in. Clad in the overalls which had replaced his flashy flannels the moment the last patron had gone through, he clambered on the seat beside the Negro and lit his pipe.

The entourage started off. It began again to rain. Con did not go in. He wanted air. The trucks wound their way through the principal business street, which faded in a block or two to the principal residence street. One of the trucks ahead got mired in a deep hole, and the caravan stopped.

Con saw a light and looked in through the window of a snug cottage, standing some yards back on a green lawn with rose bushes and whitewashed stones around them.

At the table in the living room sat a bald headed villager. One child, a boy, jiggled on one knee, excitedly trying to make a mechanical jumping jack jump. Con knew that jumping jack—it had come out of the Japanese Novelties Concession. He knew it wouldn't jump long. But he hoped it would just this time, even if that were the final kick-off. It jumped. So did the boy, and so did the father. They jumped and they laughed, and the man hugged the youngster and chuckled.

On his other knee sat a little girl, pouring idolatrous adoration upon a fuzzy dog with glass eyes. Con recognized that dog—it was a prize from the cane ring concession, and had probably cost 9 cents, wholesale, to the pitch man, and 75 cents, retail, to the rummy. In her other hand was a gob of taffy on a stick. She passed it to her little brother, then to her father, then reached it over her shoulder to where a rolly-polly little woman with serene eyes and quietly happy face kissed it, too, then kissed the girl, then kissed the boy, then kissed the man, then put her arms around the three of them from behind, and they all giggled and crooned, having no better sense than to be so in love with one another, though they were mugs, and to be so exhilarated over a tin can carnival designed to plunder and hornswoggle them.

The rain grew heavier and beat down in solid sheets, but they looked and looked.

The truck ahead battled its way out of the hole, and the march was on again. The Negro slipped his lever into "first," and the heavy truck groaned and started. Con angled his head back for just another peep through that window. The man had stood up and was holding both the children in his arms as they laughingly struggled with him and playfully clawed at him, while mother was beckoning them to come ahead. Evidently it was bedtime. The father kissed both the tots and gave them over to his wife. Then he kissed her and watched them through the door, his simple face glowing with joy and thanksgiving.

The truck pulled on.

"Them people," said Con, pointing with his thumb over his shoulder, "them people, Bozo, is what we call suckers."

drink. When the drink was brought glass and contents should be dashed in the madman's face; all the force that was in him go out in one desperate cry. . . The doctor had moved to a cabinet against the opposite wall, taken out a glass and put it down on a little stand with a marble top, was, from a carefully-stoppered phial, pouring some tiny tablets into his hand. The drug, he explained, was easily dissolved in wine, was colorless, odorless, tasteless. He dropped the tablets into the glass and turned back to the cabinet. Between the parted curtain Barraclough met the girl's eyes. She gave a look wildly earnest and eager, at the unconscious figure, made a gesture towards the stand, the glass, another gesture—The gesture of drinking? Of raising a glass and drinking? . . .The doctor was filling the glass. Barraclough watched the red shine of the wine—his brain groped, wondering, struggling—The doctor was putting down the bottle—

"You will drink with me, doctor?" asked Barraclough, dry-lipped.

"With you? You wish it? Request it? Then, most certainly," said Dr. La Rue very courteously, smiling.

He brought out a second glass. He filled the second glass. The two stood at opposite ends of the stand. He took up the drugged glass. Barraclough made a movement with his free hand.

"My name!" he cried. "My name that is to be remembered, to be immortal with yours! You do not know it."

"It it true—I had forgotten. A thousand pardons! If you will give it to me——"

"No. I will write it. I can do so easily if you will bring pen and paper, hold them. In the future it may have some value."

"Value? You are too modest. It will be a treasure, a treasure to posterity! In a moment," said the doctor.

He put down the drugged glass. In the same spot? Carefully in the same spot. He approached the bench. He drew out a pocket-book, a stylo pen. Between the inch-parted curtains Barraclough caught a swift little nod. And a smile—yes, a smile! He had interpreted her aright—had understood! With a step forward, an extended hand, she could reach the stand, could shift, reverse the glasses——

Barraclough took the offered stylo. The doctor opened the pocket-book, stooped, held it, steadied it. Over his shoulder Barraclough's eyes were on the curtains. On the girl's face, the girl's hand. If it trembled, blundered, that little frail hand! It moved steadily; the glasses were reversed; the curtains fell together. Barraclough wrote his name. The doctor bent his white head in courteous acknowledgement and laid the book down. He crossed to the stand by the curtains. He took up the undrugged glass. He brought it over. The undrugged glass was in Barraclough's hand. He took up the drugged glass. He stood beside the bench and raised it high.

"Drink!" he cried exultantly. "Drink, my friend! Drink with me. To Science, the pale goddess of my worship, in whose honor it is permitted that you die!"

"To Science!" echoed Barraclough.

He drained the glass. And the doctor's glass was drained. Would he suspect—would ——He put the glass down gently. He put the other glass down gently. He walked the length of the room and came back. He sat down, with his kindly, benignant smile, waiting. Minutes passed. With every muscle of his bound body tense, Barraclough watched under lowered lids. There lay the knife. If, before the drug got him—How long would the drug be? . . . The doctor's head was drooping. He raised it, looked about him, passed a hand over his forehead. . . . His eyes were glazing, closing. . . . He started up, moved a pace, staggered down into the chair again. . . . His body relaxed inertly; his head fell back. The drug held and conquered him; he moved no more.

And the girl, peering, waiting, ran and caught up the knife. In a minute or two, Barraclough, free, got on his feet. To drop back helplessly, overcome with a horrible faintness and nausea. He mastered the qualm, and she spoke her first word.

"He is mad, monsieur," she said in a breaking, shaking voice—"quite mad?"

"Quite mad, my child." He waited. "How was it that you came?"

"It was the card, monsieur. I wished to see your name, and between the two little notes found the other. I did not think it was a mistake, no—I understood. But how, if I kept it, could I hope to repay so much? I ran after you. I was almost near enough to call when I saw you stop. It was very dark—I caught my foot and fell—in the moment that I did not see you were gone. I ran on, ran past, ran back—I was puzzled. In a moment all the windows were lighted—I saw the door was open. And lying before it the red flower from your coat. I was afraid to go in, afraid to go away—it was so strange, and I was sure you were here. But presently I ventured and listened—I could hear nothing. The door of the next room was open—I crept in. There were sounds behind the curtains—I looked through—he was binding you! I think the good God did not let me scream! What could I do, alone, so little, so weak? And where you had left me there were many people. I went back to the door. It was shut, monsieur!"

All the terror with which she had made the discovery was in her face and eyes.

"Monsieur, it was shut! There is no lock, no handle—nothing. And the lights went out—everywhere but here. I crept back and looked again. He had finished and sat watching you—I waited—I did not know at all what I should do. Once he took up the knife and tried its edge with his finger. I thought if he went near you then I would scream—I had heard him laugh, you understand, and knew that he was mad. . . . When he sat down with his back to the curtains I let you see me so that you should know you were not alone. It was only when he put the drugged glass so near that I saw I might save you, if you said he must drink too, kept his attention while I changed the glasses. If you would but understand! You did understand. I did it. That is all."

"All!" Barraclough echoed. And stopped because many words were beyond him, and few——! "You were by the curtains. Then when he started the phonograph——"

"Monsieur, his sleeve touched me. I almost died with fear! Oh, if you can stand let us go! He may recover——"

"No, no, he is safe. Did—did you understand——" began Barraclough involuntarily. A violent shudder shook her.

"He is, I think, French, monsieur. While he watched you he talked to himself in French. I understood."

"Forget it. Remember only that he is quite mad. Come," said Barraclough.

He rose on unsteady feet. In the doorway they looked back at the unconscious figure upon which the light was bright—the picture of a sleeping saint might have shown such a face as that of Dr. Casimer La Rue. Beside the heavy purple portiere that fell behind them a thick wire appeared, running along the wall, vanishing by the lintel of the lockless, handleless door. Barraclough pulled at this, slowly, velvet, noiseless, it glided open and stood wide. They passed out. On the uneven flags the faded red flower was lying—it showed vivid as a stain of blood. All the gray street lay hushed in the colorless chill pallor of dawn, but pale streaks of green and saffron in the eastern sky spoke of coming day. A constable passing on the opposite pavement paused and stared at the two swaying figures, staggering, holding to each other. Barraclough, as they reached the curb, heard his name in a tone of loud astonishment, found himself confronting a face he knew. He pointed with a shaking hand.

"Over there!" he said and laughed weakly. "The house with the purple blinds! The house that stands back!" And then stumbled through a few disjointed sentences which, after his hasty whistle for a comrade, who was as hastily dispatched for a taxi, sent the man hurrying across to the open door. The girl spoke faintly. She was whiter than the dawn.

"He will be taken away," she said, and shuddered—"will be kept safe, monsieur?"

"He will be kept quite safe," said Barraclough gently, and repressed his own shudder. Try not to think of it, my child. Can you walk to the corner? We shall be out of sight of the horrible place."

They walked to the corner and waited until the taxi came. Barraclough helped her in, gave a direction, and got in beside her. Her eyes turned to him questioningly as it started.

"We are going, monsieur——?" she interrogated.

"A little way into the country. To a lady who was once a school friend of my mother. She is good enough to say that she regards me as a son. May I know whom I shall present to her? Your name——?"

"It is Yvonne Dugarre, monseiur."

"I think, Mademoiselle Yvonne, that we are neither of us fit to talk any more," said Barraclough.

So there had been silence when, as the sun rose, they reached a large gray house standing in staid old gardens among the Surrey orchards. Into the room where they waited there presently came hurrying a stately black robed lady whose handsome benign face was crowned by a nun's white coif and veil, to whom, with all formality, he presented Mademoiselle Yvonne Dugarre. Then there followed a colloquy apart in a great window, from which the lady, turning agitated and tearful, took the girl in her arms and kissed her before she went out. Barraclough met the question in the violet green eyes.

"This is a convent, a school," he explained. "There are twenty pupils, young girls like yourself. It is arranged that you are supplied with all that you wish for or need, as they are—that you share their studies and their lives as one of them, are made, I hope, as happy. You accept—and will remain, my child?"

"Accept? To live here? To learn? To be safe? Oh," she cried, flushing, paling, trembling; "but it is too wonderful, too good to be real! For me, who am alone, have only my hands to work! How shall I thank you? But—but I fear——" She broke off, hesitating. "You are, perhaps, very rich, monsieur?" she hazarded timidly.

"Very rich?" He read the meaning that was so plain in her lifted eyes. "No, but if I were very much poorer I should still ask leave to do so small a service—the debt, the gratitude are mine. With your courage, your marvelous courage, you have saved my life, which this morning I find as precious as a sane man should. Though last night, when we met——" He stopped.

"Yes? Last night?" She waited.

"I was ready to fling it away, or do worse, as only a fool would. You wonder? Today was to have been my wedding day."

"Today?" she cried. "Oh, but how strange! It is also——" In her quick break-off, in her gesture towards him of little impulsive hands there was the sweetest compassion. "Was to have been? Ah, but indeed I understand! She died, monsieur?"

"Not at all," said Barraclough, smiling. "I am without that justification of my folly, mademoiselle. You will hear? Briefly, then. You ask, am I rich? Compared with some, yes. Compared with many more, contemptibly poor. She chose to jilt me for one of them. Why not? With the money and all that it means he has also given her a coronet, brand new. And is, I believe, barely three years older than her father!"

"O!" she cried again. "And you loved her?"

"As I was so much a fool, it would seem so. But there was at least the excuse that she is beautiful. You see."

She took the offered photograph. The photograph of a superb figure of royal curves, a face that suggested a sumptuous beauty of glowing blondness well. But Barraclough looked only at the small face bent over it, with the pearllike purity of color, the finished fineness of lip and cheek and chin, the length of black lashes hiding the violet-green eyes. She glanced up with a flash of them.

"She is beautiful—yes." She gave a little gasp, fiercely. "And I hate her!" she cried.

"You hate her——"

"Should I not? She is selfish and false and a fool and a liar! She sells herself—bah! —willingly. For that—all!—one has only disdain. But she has betrayed you, robbed you, made you suffer, and I hate her—yes! . . . Ah, now you will not forgive me, monsieur!"

The photograph, impetuously torn in two, dropped down. Barraclough stooped and picked up the pieces. He tore them in two again.

"You do but forestall me," he said quietly. "Therefore there is no question of forgiveness." He tossed the fragments into the grate. "She is gone! And now—you will be happy here, my child?"

"O, most happy!" she hesitated, doubtfully, wistfully. "And sometimes, perhaps, I shall see you?" she faltered.

"Very often. Whenever my good friend allows it, I will come. I spoke of my sister. She, too, shall come. You will like to know her?"

"O, if she permits, yes. But I am so stupid! If she does not speak French, like you——"

"I hope, for the credit of her teachers, that she speaks it much better."

"It will not matter. I shall so soon speak your English. O, I will work very hard, monsieur!"

"You must also dance and play. And I, too, will work very hard," said Barraclough gravely. "A period of probation, apprentice-

Barraclough bowed gravely over a little cold hand from whose slender wrist the silver heart hung down, and turned away.

dozen men had thus far failed to discover?

And now, suddenly for the first time since Halsey had called upon her on last Tuesday, she felt calm, reconciled. This was the end; she had tried to avoid it, and it was unavoidable. It was too late for regrets. Had she defied Halsey last Tuesday; had she told her husband what in all frankness she should have told him, the Halsey lies would have been exposed. The man would not have dared, in the face of Spenser's righteous wrath, to have held to his statement that he had been legally married to her.

But she hadn't done it. Her cowardice, her unwillingness to meet a situation because it was dreadful, had led to—this! Thinly, as through a telephone instrument yards away from the ear, she heard Jenkins saying:

"So, you can see, Bourke, that there is absolutely only that one chance of finding her. I've been over the situation a hundred times; I've reviewed it from every angle. If that letter is never delivered to me we'll never catch the woman. I'm positive of that."

"Well, frankly, old top, I hope you never get it then," said Bourke. "I'm for the woman. Oh, I know that it's wrong; women ought to suffer for the penalty of their crimes as well as men, but—I'm for them. And, anyway, it doesn't seem to me that you've proved that there were two women in that room. Oh, I know all about your conflicting testimony as to time, and I know that there were a woman's footprints outside, but—a footprint a day old may be a week old. The ground has been soft for weeks; how can you be sure that the footprints below the balcony weren't made before the rainstorm? You know that you can't.

"And," he went on, warming to his subject, "if the woman who was killed in the taxi accident wasn't the dead man's wife, she at least lived with him. Why, isn't it plausible that she, in a fit of jealous fury, killed him?"

"Because of the other woman?" asked Jenkins slyly.

"Not at all! You haven't proved there was any other woman."

"One—the wife—came in a taxi. The other in a private car," said Jenkins.

Bourke's brows wrinkled. "That's right; you have me there," he conceded.

"Not that it matters a bit, though," said Jenkins. "All that other woman has to do is keep her mouth closed. Unless the man Carver's letter to me is found—well, we'll never get her."

And now Allayne had come to her decision. But she wanted to tell Spenser alone. The first shock must not be witnessed by any one else.

"Once you wanted to see my collection of Japanese ivory statuettes," she said to Jenkins. "Have you time now?"

"I'd be delighted," he told her.

"Then I'll get them," said Allayne. She rose and left the room. She went to her own room and waited there five minutes. Then from the head of the stairs, she called to her husband.

"I can't find the key, Spense," she said. "Will you come up and help me?"

Bourke murmured a word of apology to Jenkins and went upstairs. In the middle of her room he found Allayne.

"I'll say you're not looking very hard," he smiled.

Then something in her face drove the smile from his lips. He advanced toward her, his arms outstretched.

"Allayne—what's wrong?"

She gave him her hands and faced him.

"Spenser," she said slowly, "I'm the woman that the police are looking for."

"You're the—what's the joke, Allayne?" he blurted.

But, incredible as her statement was, somehow he knew that it was true. And, because he was the sort of man who can meet a great emergency in a great way, he did not stammer incoherent things.

"Tell me, Allayne," he said.

Slowly, yet with her voice controlled, she told him all that had happened since the arrival at the house of Halsey. Then, having finished, she waited, now trembling with fear, for some word of condemnation from him. The law—she no longer feared that. Fate had been too much for her. But Spense—what he would say. . . . Yet she might have known.

His arms went around her, and he drew her to him; the mere pressure of his strong muscles buoyed her, gave her strength.

"You listen to me, Allayne," he said. "There's nothing to this thing. Any jury in the world will take your word."

"But the scandal, Spense!"

If his smile was wry the tears in her eyes prevented her from analysis.

"I guess we can outlive any scandal that's based on untruth," he told her.

"Then we'll go down and—tell him?" she breathed.

"Don't you be afraid," he said.

"I'm not," she told him.

And, amazingly, it was true. Now that the crisis was at hand, now that nothing in the world could prevent the world from knowing that she had been in the Cresthill Inn, had witnessed the murder, she was unafraid. Because she had done no wrong. True, she had helped Rosa escape, but there was no moral wrong, she felt, in that.

Oh, if she had had courage before! Courage to face a scandal that, in the light of what confronted her now, had been nothing at all; courage that would have made her receive and believe Bourke's explanation of that long-ago party at "Summertime." She would never have married Halsey . . . But, no! She had been so afraid of being smirched, ever so slightly, that she had sent the man that she loved from her.

Once, she had had courage; when she sent Halsey from her. But it had been the courage of desperation, and she had been, oh, so glad, that scandal had been spared her. Courage! It was all that was necessary to have sent Halsey whining away from her house last Tuesday.

Courage! It was all that she needed now. And she had it! Thank God she had learned, even at the great price that she must pay, the price of notoriety, of scandal, of a trial, perhaps, that only that which we fear can hurt us. Unafraid, conscious of our own honesty, nothing can harm us.

At last she knew this. She smiled as she took her husband's arm.

"Spense," she said softly, "can you ever forgive me—for dragging you into this—dreadful affair?"

He laughed at her. Though he himself was sick at heart, it was for her, not even in any faint measure for himself.

"Forgive you? Why bless your sweet heart, there's nothing to forgive. You were trying to keep me out of something unpleasant—you know," he went on, and his voice was suddenly grim, as she had guessed that it might be, "if you had told me before I went to Chicago, the result would have been the same. Halsey would have been killed."

She shuddered. For another moment she lay in his arms; then, gently, she released herself. She needed no support from her husband's arm now. She was strong, confident, fearless.

Together they entered the living room.

"Where are the statuettes?" demanded Jenkins. He looked from one to the other. Mrs. Bourke was a beautiful woman, one of the most beautiful, with her black hair, olive skin, and gray eyes, that Jenkins had ever seen. There was only one flaw in an otherwise almost perfect specimen of femininity; she was cold. Her eyes always seemed a bit too appraising, as though she were forming judgments that would not be expressed, as though she might have reservations which one would never know.

But now, beside her husband, there was warmth in her eyes; her color came and went. He knew how natural it was, now. She had been a statue before, to the eyes of Jenkins; a rarely lovely statue, it was true, but not more than that. But now she was a woman, alive, warm. . . . He felt envy for Bourke. If a girl like that would look his way. . . . Well, some day . . .

"Where are the statuettes?" he demanded again.

And now he seemed to sense something tense, something strange, in the atmosphere. He felt suddenly embarrassed. Had he, in some way, offended either or both of them? Why did they stare at him so oddly?

"Allayne has something to say to you," said Bourke. His voice was strained. Jenkins felt the color burning his cheeks, even his throat. If Mrs. Bourke had something to say to him, why make such an event of it? Had he—he racked his memory. Had he said something incautious about some friend? Had he been offensive in one of those unwitting ways against which we cannot guard? He tried to make his voice as light as it should be, as he replied,

"I shall be delighted to have Mrs. Bourke say anything to me."

And then Ifuku, that Jap of all trades, who could buttle, or cook, or answer the bell, or wash automobiles, and who would, doubtless, in the course of time command the navy or army of Nippon, entered the room.

Motor car engines fascinated the young Jap. He was studying, in spare moments, hampered by an amazing lack of knowledge of the English language, a book on the gasoline engine. As a matter of fact, about all that he could comprehend were the drawings that illustrated the text. But whenever he had opportunity to compare the drawings with an engine itself, he did so.

So, this afternoon, having washed the car, with that rapidity of which only the Jap seems capable, he lifted the hood on one side to look at the mysterious source of power underneath. And there, lying against the cylinder, in exactly the place where, driven by the wind, it had slipped through a long ventilating slit in the engine cover, was an envelope.

Ifuku picked it up and looked at it. He knew the printed alphabet, and a few words. But long-hand writing was as yet incomprehensible to him. So he put the envelope, somewhat stained by oil, into his pocket. Then, closing the hood, after a long affectionate stare at the engine, he went into the house.

Long after Allayne would wonder whether or not chance directed Ifuku's eyes to the engine, whether blind luck was responsible for his entrance into the living room just as confession trembled on her lips. And she decided that neither chance, nor fate, nor luck—call it what you will—had anything to do with it. She decided that the spirit is ruled by laws as absolute, as inevitable, as the laws that govern the changing seasons, the movements of the tides, the growth of the grass. Courage and fear: the two great qualities of humankind. Who fears, suffers; who does not, cannot suffer.

No longer did she fear; courage had come to her; and so, because she no longer feared, the danger that she had dreaded vanished. For Ifuku bowing, said:

"Letter for lady. In car."

She glanced swiftly down at it. Her brain seemed to swell until she thought that her skull could no longer confine it. Then, with a smile, she handed the letter to Spenser.

He looked at it. Their eyes met; from one to the other, as clearly as though they had spoken the words, flashed the message, "The only proof!" For the envelope was addressed to the Chief of Police of Hillstown!

Each glanced at Jenkins; he was still staring at them, puzzled. They could tell that he had not heard the Jap's words.

"Another darned catalogue," said Bourke. Allayne's eyes dropped to his fingers. With apparent impatience he tore the envelope in half. Then he walked to the open fire, burning merrily, and dropped the pieces of paper into the blaze. Almost instantly they were consumed.

"Well, what has Mrs. Bourke to say to me?" demanded Jenkins.

Over Allayne's face swept a smile such as Jenkins had never seen before. It was, though he did not know it, the smile of a soul released from torment.

"To say to you—why—why—Mr. Jenkins—Spense and I—upstairs—we decided—we forgot all about the statuettes."

She blushed divinely. And Rannie Jenkins there and then decided that he wouldn't wait to run across a girl like Mrs. Spenser Bourke. He'd go looking for one. Marriage was a darned nice thing!

ship, is clearly called for. But one would prefer to know its necessary duration. It is a question." His smile as he met her eyes was touched with whimsicality. "I fear, Mademoiselle Yvonne, that you are younger than I wish you!"

"Wish me?" She shook her head with a puzzled laugh. "I do not understand. But, no—I am not so young. It is because I am so little—so little!—that you think it. Today—it is strange—you think so, too?—is also my birthday. I am nineteen."

"Nineteen? So much? The question is answered," said Barraclough. He took the childish hands and kissed them, kissed the slender wrist and the bangle from which the little silver heart hung. "For the present, mademoiselle, I am content to reflect with much satisfaction that in two years—no more!—you will be twenty-one."

Farrant, seated at breakfast, turned his head at sound of the opening door.

"Well," he growled with a gruffness that masked extreme relief, "so I shan't have to bail you out, it seems! Better luck than I looked for. All the same, you blessed ass, if you have dodged the bobbies I suppose the painting——"

And stopped because the figure that paused before him was so glaringly, indubitably, absolutely sober.

"The town," said Barraclough gravely, "remains of its normal tint. There are, do you know, some remarkably fine color effects to be got about daybreak—never observed them before. No—your services as bailee are not required. Nevertheless, I have made a night of it. Also"—he shuddered and laughed unsteadily—"I have looked upon the wine when it was red."

"Humph!" So long as you didn't drink——" began Farrant.

"O, I drank," corrected Barraclough. "Decidedly I drank! To the lees—there were no heel taps." He turned to the wall. "Ah, the calendar! I said something last night, I think, about this being my wedding day. A mistake—it is put off."

"Eh?" Farrant ejaculated.

"Postponed," explained Barraclough, still gravely. "Thanks—I have had one breakfast, but I don't mind another cup of tea. The Lady Superior, by the way, drinks China. Not quite so much sugar. And let me advise you never to go in for a phonograph or have purple blinds to your windows. Presently I'll tell you a story that will make that last old yarn of yours read like—like 'Little Elsie's School Days.'"

Farrant, staring, puzzled, poured out and passed the tea.

"I shall be married," concluded Barraclough, "this day two years—time enough, with perseverance, to kick myself into decent shape. Before the event I shall unquestionably say my prayers! By the way, I hope shortly to introduce her to Margaret—they should know each other. Which is as high a compliment as could be paid to either. The date, it happens, will also be her twenty-first birthday."

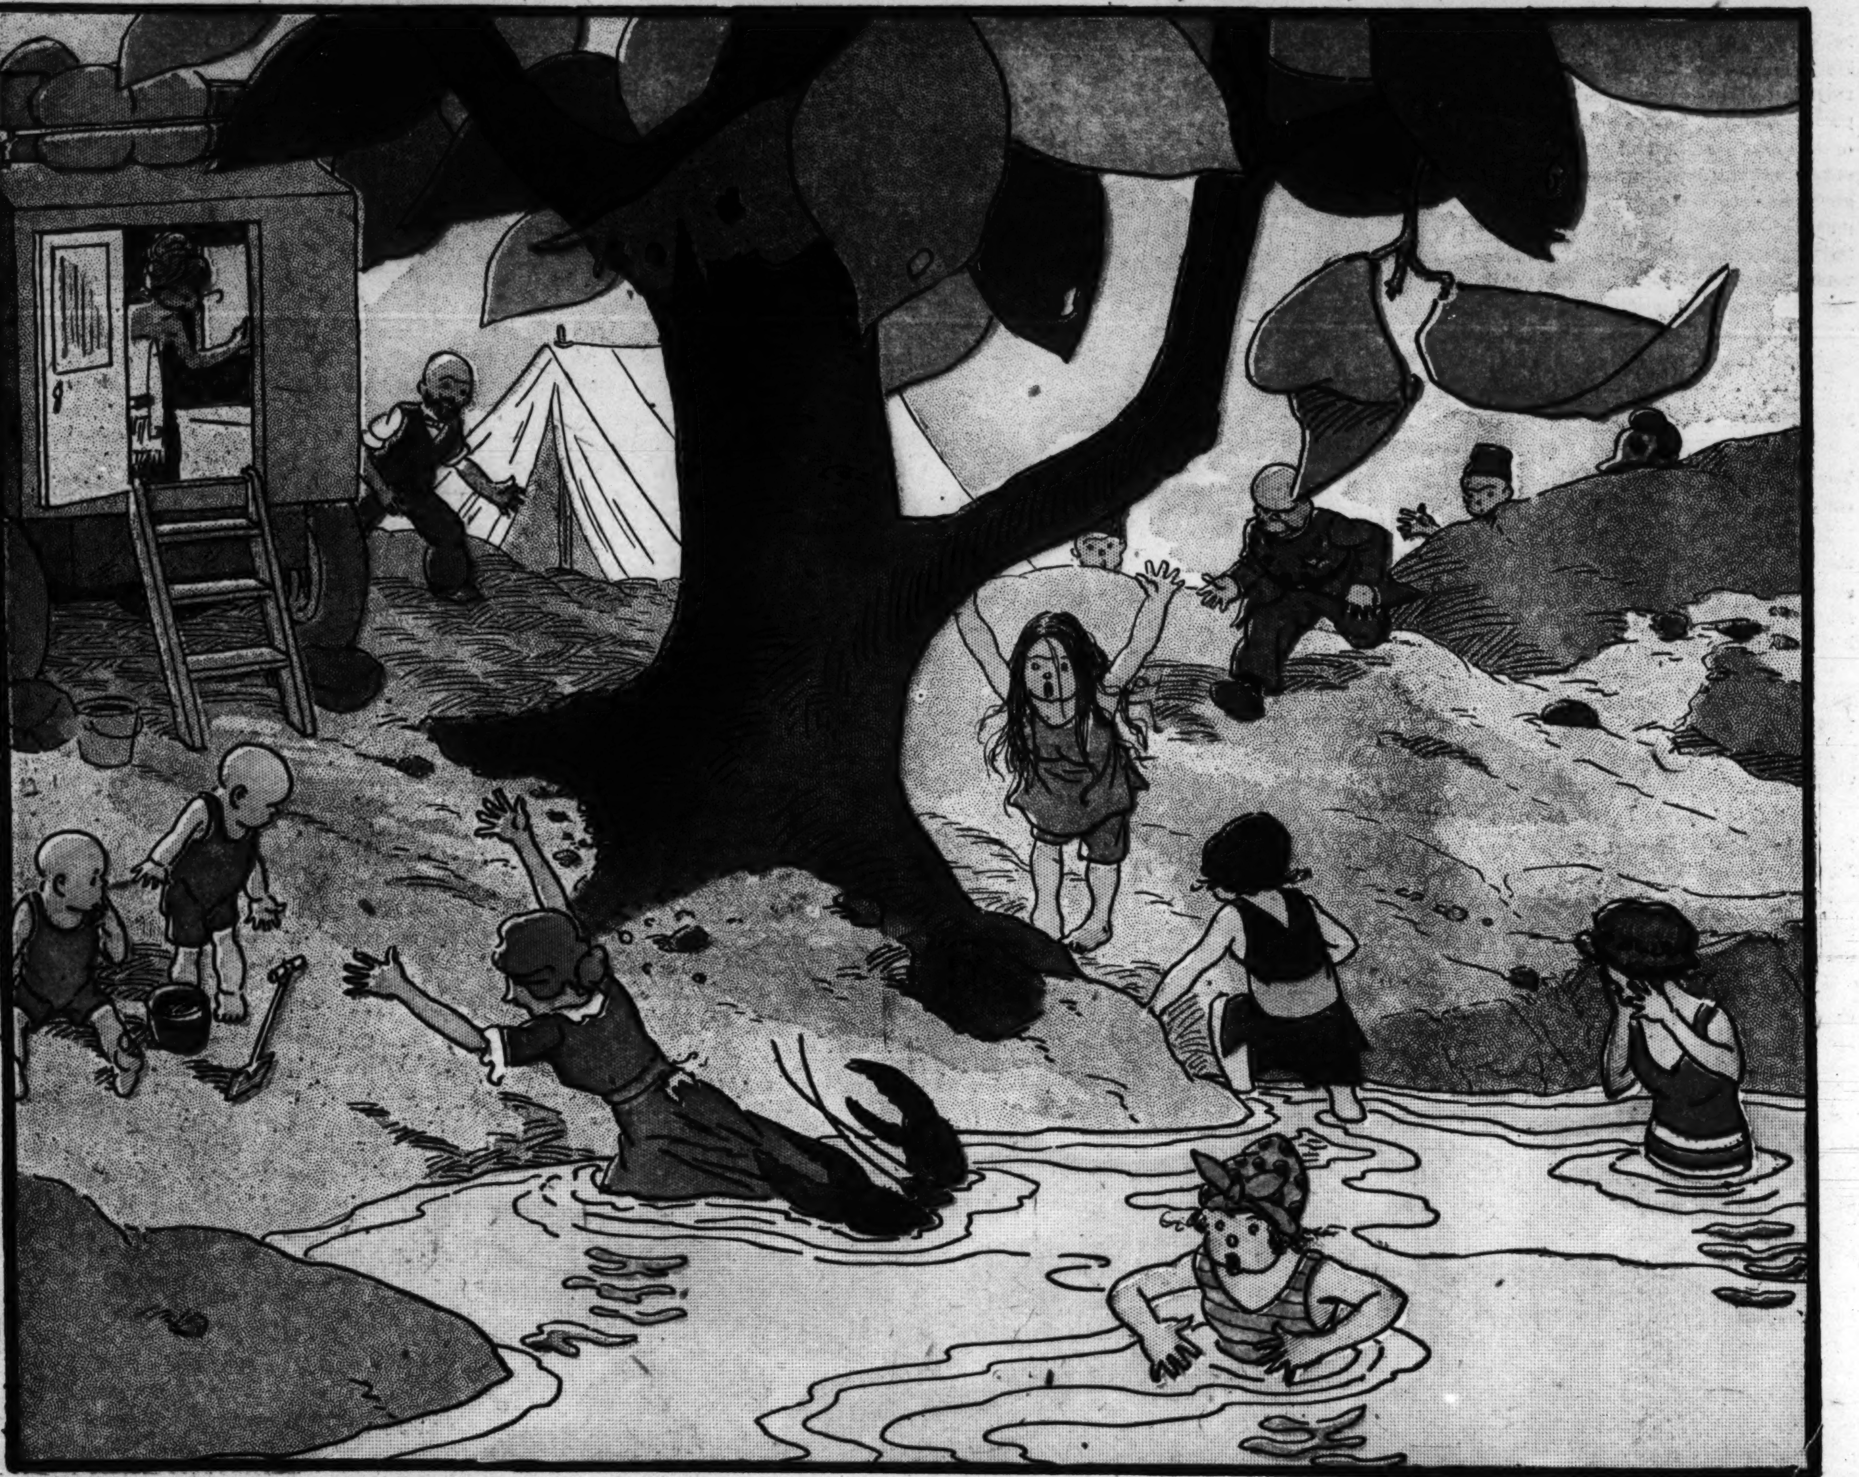
THE TEENIE WEENIES.

MISS GUFF WOULD RATHER GO SWIMMING WITH MEN THAN CRAW-FISH. BY WM. DONAHEY.



AS the weather was extremely hot the Teenie Weenies found it most uncomfortable riding in the tiny automobiles, so the General ordered the little folks to go into camp until the hot spell passed.

The Cowboy found a lovely camping place under some bushes, and in a short time the little men put up the tents and made the place most homelike.

There was a cool, clear stream of water which ran under the bushes, and on the bank of this stream the little camp was made.

The truck, which had been used for the ladies of the party, was parked near the creek, while the Cook's tent was pitched nearby, and the men put up their tents farther along the stream.

For several days the little women washed their dresses and underwear, which ladies always like to have white and clean, and when that work was done they spent their time lying in the cool shade.

"Say, girls!" cried Sally Guff, running up to several of the little women who were sitting on the bank of the creek. "The boys are going swimming, and I think it would be fun if we went in too."

"I'm not going in where the men go," cried Miss Guff, stiffly. "They're always splashing and trying to duck us girls, and I'm not going in when they are around."

"Let's ask the General to keep the boys away," suggested Joe Bone.

"That's a good idea," cried the Lady of Fashion. "I'll speak to him." And the little lady set off to the General's tent, where she soon made her wants known.

The General promised that the girls would be left quite alone, and the little ladies quickly got into their tiny bathing suits.

Mrs. Lover dressed the twins in their little suits and while the women splashed about in the cool water the twins played in the fine sand along the bank.

For some time the little ladies had a wonderful time swimming about in the clear water, and they would have had lots more fun if something dreadful had not happened.

Miss Guff, who was standing in the water near the shore, felt a tug at her skirts, and looking around she saw that a crawfish had caught her skirt in one of his big claws.

The little lady let out a great howl and tried to pull away, but the crawfish held the skirt tight in his pincers.

The rest of the little women set up a loud shout for help, and presently several of the Teenie Weenie men came running to the place with all their might.

The Policeman and the Doctor caught Miss Guff by the arms and gave a great tug. There was a mighty ripping and the little woman's skirt parted at the waist, while the Doctor, the Policeman and Miss Guff sprawled in safety onto the shore.

Poor Miss Guff made several skirtless leaps, and disappeared into the truck nearby, while the Teenie Weenie men quickly killed the crawfish.

That evening the Cook served the crawfish for supper, and the meat from his big claws was delicious.

Everybody ate all he or she could hold, but Miss Guff would not touch a bit.

"Why, I could no more eat that monster than I could fly," cried the little lady when a portion of the meat was offered to her.

"Well, you came mighty near flying when you dashed into the truck this afternoon," giggled the Dunce.

"That will do, Dunce," frowned the General, and the smile on the poor Dunce's face quickly disappeared at the nasty look Miss Guff threw at him.

Miss Guff, being rather stiff and prim, heard little of the affair with the crawfish, but the rest of the Teenie Weenies laughed about it a great deal when Miss Guff was not about.

It was some time before the Teenie Weenie ladies would go into the water, but when they finally did go, Miss Guff was quite contented to have some of the men along.

"You never can tell when one of those awful crawfish might be around," said the little lady.

"So it's wise to have a few men about?" suggested the Lady of Fashion.

"Quite so," answered Miss Guff stiffly.

The BOGIE of FEAR by Arthur Somers Roche

NINTH INSTALLMENT.

The Letter.

ALLAYNE could read his thoughts. His sigh of relief was audible. She felt triumphant, victorious. For no one else would have seen her; the streets through which she had passed that tragic Wednesday had been almost deserted. Even when she had taken Rosa almost into town the storm had swept the streets of pedestrians. It was sheer accident that Miss Harrington had observed. There would not be two such accidents. And the road on which she lived was on the outskirts of the town. She could swear to it that none of her distant neighbors or their servants had been abroad to see her motor car go in or out.

She was safe! And then Ifuku entered the room. Her two Jap boys were a source of constant amusement to her and her friends. Equally capable, they changed positions without consulting their mistress. Today Tsuro was acting as butler and Ifuku was chef and footman both.

"Lady call," he announced.

"Who is it?" asked Allayne.

"Mrs. Guiterman." The Jap pronounced the name with difficulty. "She say—call Wednesday—you out. Want see you."

Allayne saw the gleam in the eye of Jenkins. But not by a quiver of a muscle did she show her tension.

"Bother!" she declared. She smiled quizzically at Jenkins. "You know, she's dear, but she is a bore. I'm out again today, Ifuku."

The Jap bowed and left the room. The gleam died out of Jenkins' eyes. Of course! "Out" was a polite phrase indicating that one did not wish to receive a person.

"She rang and rang and rang," said Allayne carelessly. "But—when one has a headache——"

"Of course," said Jenkins. His whole manner seemed to change. Allayne felt it. She knew that if he had in any way suspected her, her manner and her story had banished his suspicions. He suddenly smiled at her, that warm, friendly grin of his that helped his popularity.

It even broadened as he heard her husband enter the hall outside and cry:

"Allayne!"

They were a darned nice couple, and he ought to be kicked around the block for entertaining for the fractional part of a second the insane idea that Mrs. Bourke knew anything about the Cresthill mystery.

A sudden thought assailed Allayne even as she responded to her husband's kiss. It had rained only one day in the last week—Wednesday. She had not had the car cleaned. Last night, when she and Spenser had dined with Jenkins, it had been dark; the mud on the car had not been observable. But, lest by accident Jenkins see it, and dead suspicion be revived, that mud should be removed.

"Mr. Jenkins is having tea with me," she told her husband.

"Fine!" exclaimed Bourke. He walked into the living room. Allayne, lingering behind, gave an order to Ifuku.

"We're not expecting any one else—Tsuro can answer the bell if any one should come. Will you wash the car?"

Ifuku bowed. They were very fond, these two Jap boys, of the household which they served. Ifuku was ambitious to learn how to drive a car. Allayne had promised that she would pay for lessons and that when he was competent she would permit him to call for her husband occasionally at the office. Ifuku had no objection to cleaning a car which he expected some day to drive. And, if he had, his liking for Allayne would have made him swallow his objection.

Allayne entered the room where her husband and Jenkins sat. The two men were chatting pleasantly, and she took her seat again at the tea table.

"How's the search for the mysterious woman coming along?" asked Bourke. "I've read the papers, but it doesn't seem to me that you're any nearer to her than you were yesterday."

Allayne's smile, though neither of the men knew it, held a trace of grimness.

"O, we're coming along," rejoined Jenkins.

Bourke jeered at him amicably. "Huh! That's what the police always say. They're coming along. They have reason to believe—something or other. Tell the truth, Rannie, old top. You're in the house of your friends. Have you one single, solitary, lonesome ray of hope that you'll ever locate her? Aren't you just waiting for the hue and cry to die away to forget all about her and turn your attention to other matters? On-the-level stuff, now!"

Beneath his quizzical, incredulous glance Jenkins colored slightly. His round chin took on an expression of stubbornness.

"O, it's not as bad as that," he declared.

"Well—why isn't it?" challenged Bourke. "Confidentially, aren't you stalling? Have you got any idea at all that you'll locate her?"

These were his friends. Spense Bourke had done a bit of campaigning for Jenkins' party in the last election. And he, Randolph Jenkins, had done Mrs. Bourke the grave wrong of suspecting her of a hideous crime. Of course no one else in the world knew of his suspicions. Nevertheless he had held them. In a measure he owed her something. So he felt. at any rate

Also, Bourke had a keen mind—an exceptionally keen one, Jenkins believed. If he had been theorizing absurdly, Bourke would point out the absurdity. If he had been correct, Bourke would probably recognize that fact. A sudden impulse to confidences opened his usually guarded lips.

"Well, I'll tell you, Spense," he said. "So nearly as I can figure it, I've one chance in the world to land the woman. Yesterday the chance looked brighter—in fact, I was certain. Today—well, I'm doubtful."

Allayne's face was a mask of polite interest as she asked:

"Only one chance? What do you mean, Mr. Jenkins?"

He stared at her; then he looked at her husband. He lighted, accepting Allayne's nod as permission, a cigar.

"Well, Spense, suppose that you knew that this dead man, Carver, had, just before the woman came to see him in the private dining room, written a letter? What would you think of it?"

Bourke was puzzled. "Well," he replied slowly, "I'm not sure that I'd think anything of it. It would depend, I take it, on whom the letter was written to."

"Exactly!" exclaimed Jenkins. "And if that letter had been addressed to the Chief of Police of Hillstown—what would you think were its contents?"

Bourke whistled incredulously. Allayne felt her heart sinking down into depths where no well regulated heart should go. So, then, all her quick wit, all her caution—these went for nothing! She felt an almost mastering impulse to scream, but fought it down. The figures of the two men, sitting so close to her, seemed to recede, then to come close; they were blurred; then every feature was sharply defined . . . Clearly, incisively, seeming to spell her doom, she heard her husband speak.

"Why, there's nothing to it at all, Rannie. There were two guns found there in the room, weren't there? A fair assumption would be that the man carried one of them. Certainly the woman didn't carry them both. Of course, if there were two women they might have carried one apiece. But still, assuming—fairly enough, I think—that the man Carver owned one of the weapons . . . Men don't carry revolvers to luncheons with women unless they expect trouble. Why," he went on more slowly, more carefully, "I'd say that this man expected trouble, thought that he was going into danger, perhaps might be killed . . . I'd say," he finished confidently, "that he told in that letter whom he expected to lunch with him and what he feared from that person. And, most probably, why he feared whatever he did fear."

"Well, that's exactly what I think," said Jenkins.

"Think!" ejaculated Allayne. "Don't you know?" And desperately as she strived to keep her voice calm, normal, she heard it rise thinly as she emphasized the last word.

"That's the trouble; I haven't received the letter." Then, as they both stared at him in bewilderment, he explained.

"And the men are still looking for it in the woods?" asked Allayne.

"Hardly at this minute," said Jenkins. "It's dark. I've found that flashlights aren't much use; but they'll be at it again in the morning. You see," he addressed his words to Bourke, "how certain I was yesterday afternoon. But now that today has gone without discovery of the note—it might, you know, be years before it was found. But some day, some time, unless the rain has rotted it out of all existence, that letter will be found. Nothing is ever lost, although it may be destroyed."

Nothing is ever lost! As a felon might feel upon hearing the judge's sentence, so Allayne felt at Jenkins' words. All through life, though she might live to be ninety, would be with her the ever-present fear that some one would stumble upon that letter.

What was it that Halsey had said to her in that room of tragedy? As if she could ever forget it!

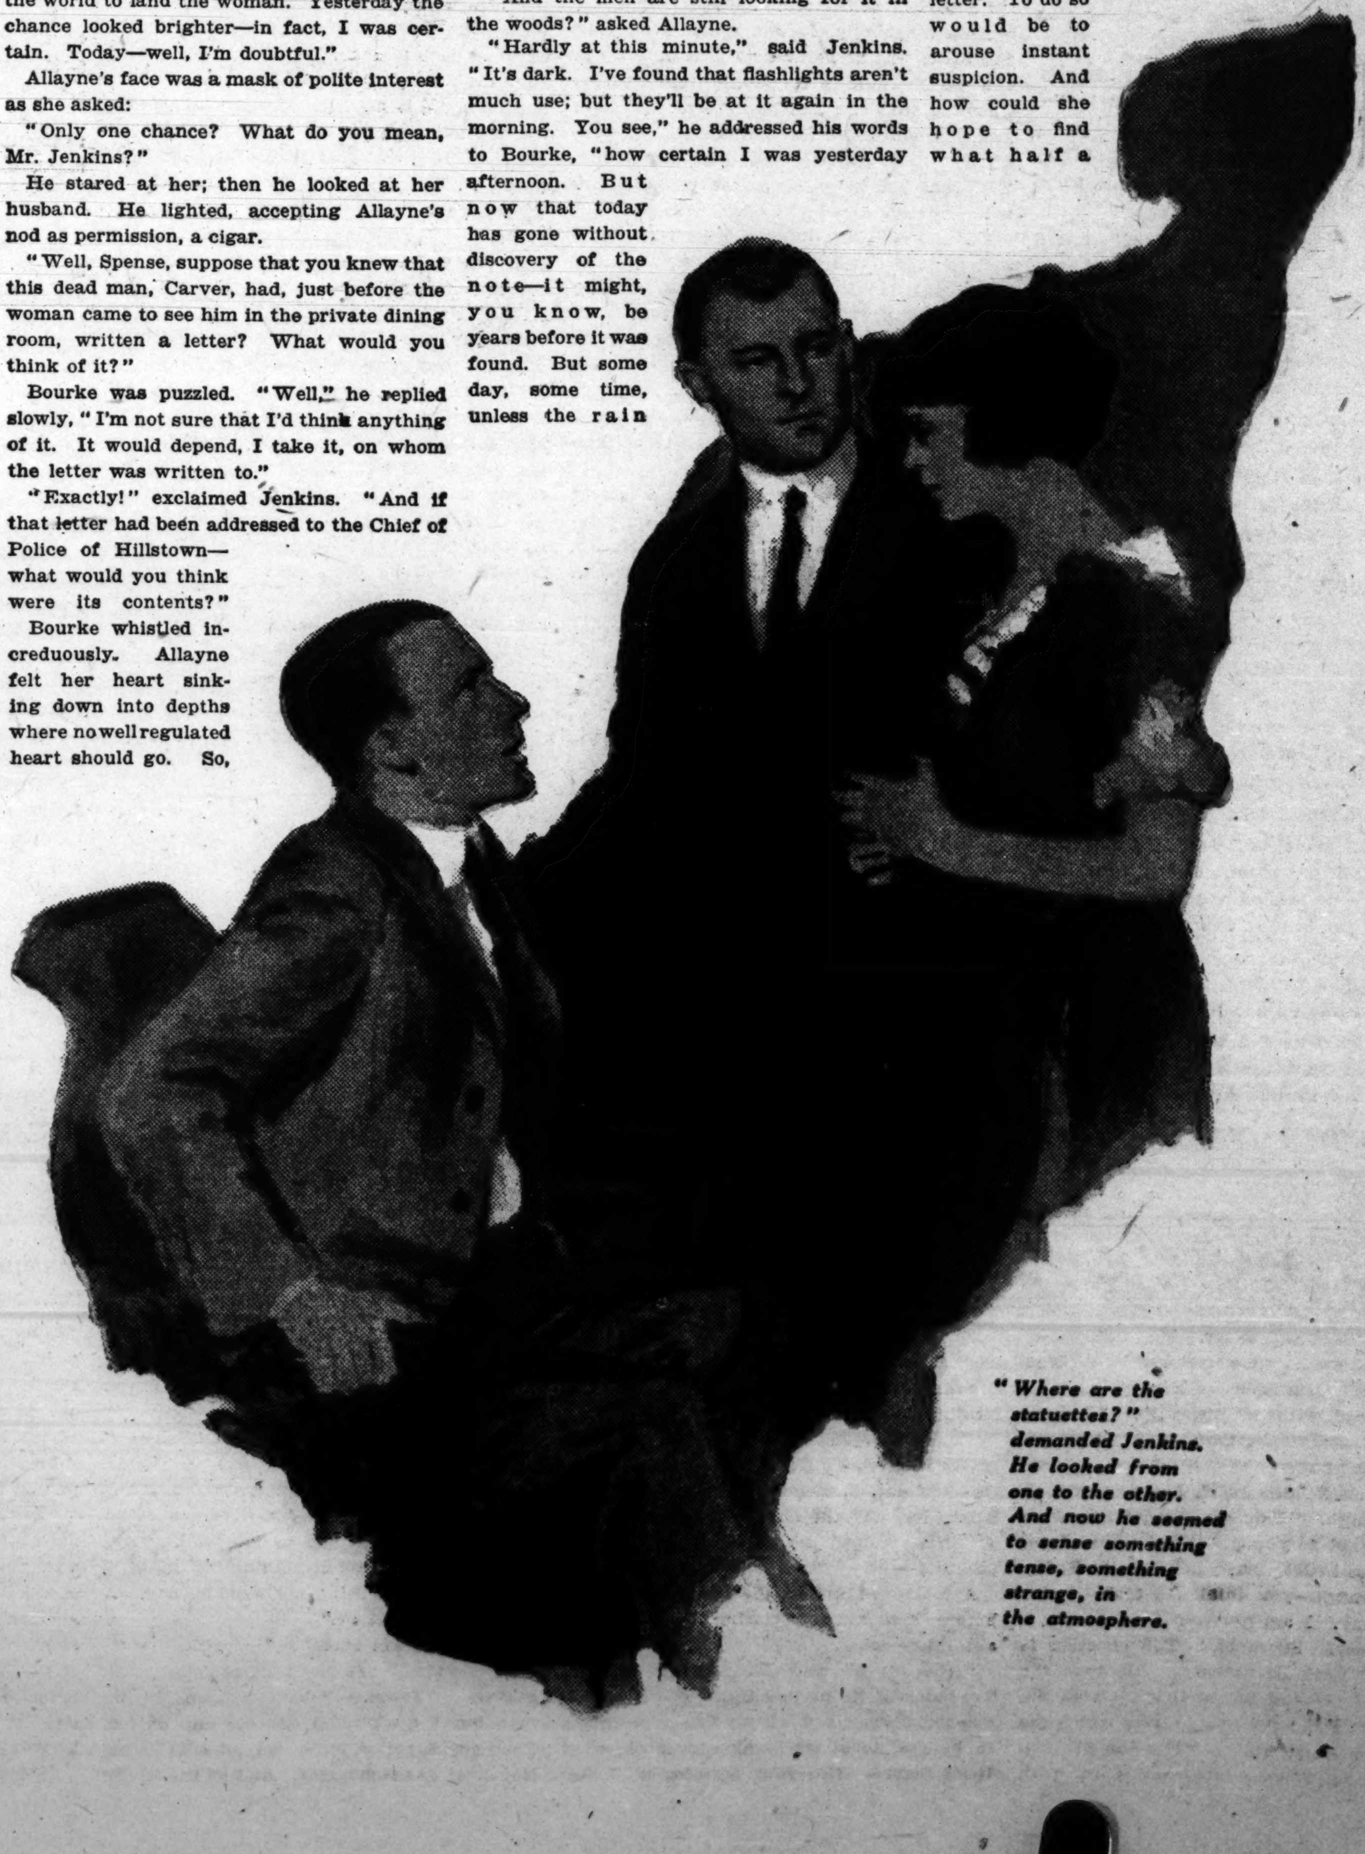
". . . you'll not convince them that I killed myself. I've taken care of that."

She had not known then what he meant. Since then she had supposed it to be based upon his expectation that she would be found beside his dead body. But now she understood the devilish cunning of the man. He had guarded against her possible escape from the room. He had written to the Chief of Police!

She could imagine what he had written, the half-truths, the downright lies. No wonder that Jenkins had felt confident of her apprehension.

Nothing is ever lost, although it may be destroyed! Her only reliance could be that the elements would destroy this letter. But the elements would treat her no more kindly than Fate had done. Sooner or later, tomorrow or the next day. . . .

To tamely yield, to surrender while there was a fighting chance. . . . But she could not go to the woods near by the Cresthill Inn and herself search for the missing letter. To do so would be to arouse instant suspicion. And how could she hope to find what half a



"Where are the statuettes?" demanded Jenkins. He looked from one to the other. And now he seemed to sense something tense, something strange, in the atmosphere.

AUTUMN PROMISES LITTLE CHANGE IN THE SILHOUETTE

by CORINNE LOWE

CLOSE application to books may follow the application of brown grosgrain ribbon to the little frock of brown wool at the left. After this model comes a dressy one for her who is going to "speak a piece." The first is for the girl of from 8 to 14, while the second is designed for her of from 6 to 10. Large wooden beads in pill box red form the only trimming of the following blue serge for the girl of from 14 to 18, and also for high school days is the next model—a navy Poiret twill with scalloped bodice and band of self-material to produce that modish drooping shoulder line.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The silhouette should be called the stillouette. In spite of all the propaganda for the wide, full skirt it was noted at the Paris races that most of the women of fashion retained their narrow petties. It was left to the manikins to exploit the newer mode. Here in New York it is the same. Autumn comes in with the straight up and down things we have been seeing for the past seasons. Only at dances can the American woman be teased into the Victorian modes so enthusiastically sponsored by Lanvin and Poiret.

One might think we women would be tired of these studies in still life, these bolster slipons, these frocks with no more plot than a musical comedy. Not so. We have standardized slimness in this country, and the idea of putting on clothes to make us look fat appeals to us as being no more logical than the efforts of the famous Lewis Carroll here, who "was thinking of a plan to dye his whiskers green and always use so large a fan that they could not be seen." Why put on big, bustling petties to hide the thinness we have so carefully acquired?

Just the same, there are sly, furtive currents in the fashion world which cannot be gainsaid. Perhaps after years and years of these attempts to work on our better natures the adult size skirt may win us over. It is doubtful if this coming year will witness the change, however. Full tunics are here, and often the tunic is circular. Indeed, the circular movement launched last spring is prevailing more and more. Circular flounces are slipped over on us, and in wraps the influence of this cut is particularly manifest.

Some of the newest evening wraps that have emigrated from Paris mold the shoulders to the elbow, from which point they begin the business of flaring. Here, indeed, is a perfectly new silhouette quite startling after the long, straight capes and the dolman modes of the last few seasons. The yoke is frequently utilized in these new evening wraps to contribute the look of shoulder emaciation. In fact, yokes are a feature of many of the late frocks.

The one thing that has not remained still in the silhouette of the frock is the sleeve. Here fashion, always temperamental as an opera singer, has flown from one extreme to the other. From being a lonely wayfarer with no lodging it could call its own—save perhaps that tiny tent pitched just below the shoulders—the arm has waked up to find itself in one of those Jenny sleeve palaces. This huge sleeve with its accompanying deep armhole will probably be worn all through the autumn, but even more persuasive is the bell shaped affair widening from the elbow down. This is encountered constantly on suits, dresses, and coats.

Yet against it are to be numbered the bishop's sleeve, the slit sleeve, and the narrowing from the elbow downward. Also long gauntlets leaving a space between themselves and the short sleeves above have been tried out by Paris. Indeed, if there is any branch of sleeve lore which has been neglected by the designers this year it is impossible to name it. The sleeve is the battlefield of the new modes.

The draped skirt was a feature of the Paris races and has wakened quite a response in the American heart. It will probably be found all through the winter in the afternoon and evening gowns. Another feature to be reckoned with is the sash. This accessory has been deprived of its original independence of spirit, inasmuch as it is frequently incorporated with the frock itself. Forming part of the bodice, it does nothing toward waist legislation. The straight line of the gown flows on as freely as if there were no such nominal restraint. This modern ingrown sash is useful, in fact, only in the matter of side drapery. Frequently the bodice sash is looped at both sides to give the desired hip fullness. At other times it forms a panel dipping down below the hem of the frock.

Another sash of which we see much this year is the one twisted as industriously as a sheik's turban. This is smart either used alone or in combination with the flowing ends of an untortured sash. Another girdle seen frequently on the frocks is one formed of rows of beads. Often these are ranged close together so as to form an armored effect. At other times the strands are widely separated. These beaded girdles are extremely effective when of the fashionable gun metal, and colored ones such as coral add a stunning touch to the lace trimmed frock of crepe or satin.

These lace trimmed affairs for afternoon and evening are more in evidence than ever. Many of the new laces are varnished, and a few of the black satin dresses with their panels and wide flowing sleeves of cire lace look as if they were fresh from the bootblack's attentions. Nor are the glazed black laces the only representatives of the cire family. Some of the newest laces are carried out in the brilliant tints of Chinese lacquer. The fact of it is that there are evidences on every side of cheerful winter evenings ahead. Although black and white are still the favorites, many of the French designers are bringing out brilliantly tinted evening apparel.

There is mauve, for example. Although it can hardly qualify for that famous reportorial phrase, "a riot of color," it is a departure from our magpie and blackbird plumage. And mauve has been worn a great deal this summer by the Parisienne, especially in evening dresses. On this side mauve is being practiced more and more. In fact, some of the most stunning of recent models in crepe and chiffon are carried out in this tone.

But there are even more radical colors that have been unleashed by the foreign custodians of style. Frocks in the violet and red tones, frocks of velvets and rich fabrics that recalled the magnificen of the doges—these were a feature of one of the Paris festivities which spurred the sluggish imagination of the designers and made them finally admit the existence of a prism. There are clothes prophets in New York who predict that the season will come in with a blare of color.

Certainly the violet and red tones—they are known as the fuchsia shades—have been influential in the millinery for early fall. These tend chiefly to red purple and pink purple, but the trust does not by any means exclude that most sumptuous of tints, royal purple. All these are used, not as the basis but as the trimming for the new hat. And, wisely enough, they are placed on the black background. For example, Maria Guy sets off a cuff shape of black hatter's plush with a huge chou of fuchsia velvet.

The cuff shapes are much to the fore in a millinery season which has provided us, so far, with but few thrills. More arresting than this is the Chinese hat peaked high at the crown and often set off with the lace portieres of which I have spoken in previous letetrs. Whether the American woman will have the courage to consent to this elaborate curtaining of herself is doubtful. Be that as it may, the hat with the lace scarf, frequently going under the chin from ear to ear and then permitting one end to drop to the waistline, is a feature of late French millinery.

Among these millinery fireworks one hat stands out for its distinctive charm. This is the English riding hat shape which, with its narrow brim rolled up at both sides and its long front pulled down in a manner to correspond with the back, is favorite soil for the popular ostrich trimming. Usually one plume is laid at the side from the front and hangs down picturesquely over the ear. Very, very dashing—this! And at the risk of prejudicing you, we add that it is becoming to most women under 30.

The page today illustrates some frocks for the schoolgirl. At the right are found two blue serge models for the girl of from 14 to 18, and at the left two for the younger sister. Be it mentioned that even for the latter young lady the wide sleeves are gaining ground. Also she may alternate her serge or her corduroy with the knitted frock of grownupdom.

The Last Week of
OUR GREAT AUGUST FUR SALE

THERE are just a few more days of this extraordinary value-giving event in furs.

If you have been one of the few who have not benefited by these special prices, don't fail to take advantage of this final opportunity. After this week prices will be advanced to their normal level.

Advanced Fur Styles

The fur modes we are showing are what the Chicago women are buying. They are the styles that will be worn this year. The most beautiful furs are developed in new styles which are instantly appealing. The tuxedo front wrap, the flare sleeve and the turnback cuffs receive charming interpretations. Especially noteworthy are the smaller furs. Neck pieces are shown in Tan Karakul, Sable, Black Marten, Stone Marten, Fisher, Baum Marten, Natural Gray Squirrel and Fox Skins in all the natural blue, brown and taupe shades, $20 and up.

After a close comparison of prices and a careful scrutiny of quality you will be assured that a Stevens fur coat, or fur piece, is eminently desirable.

OUR
MILLINERY

Our collection, which is most complete, consists of New York and Paris models as well as our own original conceptions.

Model Illustrated

Nowhere is the Spanish influence more in evidence than in the new Millinery. This lovely model is typically Spanish. The shape of the hat itself is that of the toreadors—none of the daring is lost in the copying. The fringe only enhances the charm of the fair wearer—while the high back Spanish comb is reminiscent of the romance of that land.

Carrying on Vacation Benefits

Take a Day Off Now and Then and Relax in the Way You Like Best.

MEMBER all the resolutions you made while you were hitting the trail of the lonesome pines? 'Member how good you said you felt after your plunge in the lake? How about them now? Forgotten them already and gone back to the street cars for locomotion entirely?

What's the use of spending good money going off hundreds of miles to gather a healthy coat of tan and revive the old color in the cheeks, if you come back and forget all about how you came by them?

Of course, you may not have the woods and the lake, but there are some excellent substitutes, not just as good, but quite sufficient to carry on the good work well started on your vacation.

You probably went to bed earlier on an average during the two weeks than you do on an average two weeks back home, and you took life easy and found on your return things ran surprisingly well during your absence. Which reminds me of a philosophical remark heard recently: "If a person who thinks the whole world swings upon his shoulders could just get an idea of the small receptacle it takes to hold his ashes when he is gone, he'd realize the worry wasn't worth it."

That's one of the greatest good effects of a vacation, or should be—the knowledge that one can take time off for a pleasure jaunt now and then without disrupting the household or the place of business to any appreciable extent. Some women never give themselves up to an hour's rest excepting when they retire for the night, and when vacation time presents itself give over a couple of weeks to relearning the art and learning it well.

Relaxation and Fresh Air.

Item one, then, in carrying on vacation work, is to take a day off now and then, a day for complete and total relaxation—a whole day in bed, if you will, a favorite recipe I am told by actresses who have prolonged their youth away beyond their calendar ages. A day when you refuse to be bothered with any cares, when you will lie in bed to your heart's content, or if you prefer it as an outing day, quite good, too, providing the outing is away from the heart of the city, not toward it.

Item two is to get more fresh air in your system. That was what did the better part of the rejuvenating work on your trip. You walked—miles undoubtedly—got out and played golf, or just sat on the hotel veranda. While city air is not a perfect substitute for the pine and balsam scented oxygen, still it is the best we have, and outdoor air in a city is better than the best of ventilated places. Because you have to go out to get it.

Exercise and Morning Plunge.

Item three may include your favorite form of exercise, and walking added to that; brisk, snappy walks will keep the roses from fading out of your cheeks if they are indulged in sufficiently often. Just shambling along is little help. You have to get your circulation up, and that requires the muscular activity of the quick, swinging stride.

Item four is substituting the dip in the lake with the morning plunge. You found you could stand the cold water better than you ever imagined. You found how mighty well it made you feel after a few days of it, what a much better appetite you had, and a lot of other commendable results. Now, with the cold plunge habit in the morning, you get the day started right. You get the circulation up and you feel peppy and ambitious, don't you?

Benefit of Diversion.

Item five is putting new interests in your life, another noticeable feature of vacationing. When you came back you were happier for having a new line of thought to dwell upon, new people's ideas, a better understanding of how other people live, all contributing something to the world's progress. From the stick in the mud and stay at home point of view, you reached out and discovered that the humblest person has something to give of value to his brothers.

If you have no interest or diversion other than your ordinary day's work and your limited social life, how about cultivating some interest? There's nothing like monotony to age and dull a person. The young people of advanced years are those who are alive with human interests, up and doing on things that are new and bracing, even to the latest dance step. The old people of limited years are the plodders and the people who prefer to stay at home and keep on doing the same thing day after day, evening after evening, month after month, and year after year. It's better to have a senseless fad than no fad at all.

The mind should be given a vacation oftener than once a year. It can be sent off on jaunts quite frequently and with comparatively little expense. A change does not rest the body half as much as it rests the mind.

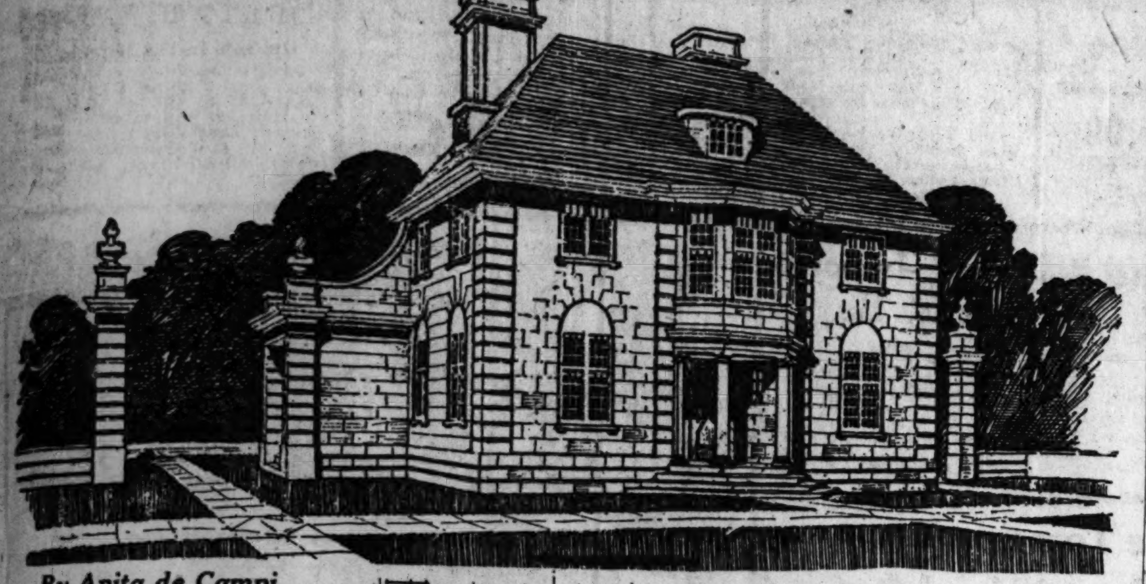
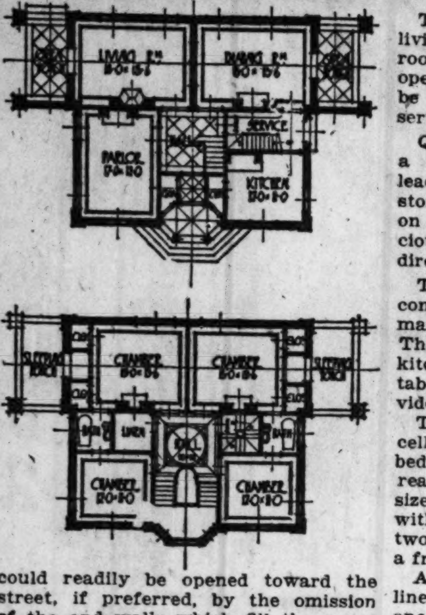
Permitting Modest Hospitality and Not Too Large for the Small Family



By Anita de Campi.



Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

I HAVE illustrated many different styled houses in these columns in order to offer the readers as great a variety of suggestions as possible and to best serve all requirements and tastes. In line with this policy a house of unusual design is being illustrated this week.

This house may, offhand, appear somewhat foreign to many sections of this country, but it possesses extremely interesting features of plan and design.

While illustrated on a rather spacious suburban lot, it is a house that could be built on a restricted and somewhat shallow city lot, such as are to be found in many sections of midwestern cities. The front of this house could be built quite close to the sidewalk line, and it is especially suited for a triangular lot or a site in which the rear would overlook a boulevard, or city park, or for a shallot lot on the lake front.

There is a certain formality about the design that stamps it essentially as a city house planned to accommodate some entertaining, having the parlor, living room and dining rooms and foyer hall "en suite" like an apartment. The overall size of this house, not including the porch extensions at rear, is about 34 by 38 feet.

The walls are built of gray Indiana limestone with the trim around the windows of the buff limestone. The rusticated stone base and stone quoins at corners have a tooled finish and the balance of the wall facing a rough sawed finish, excepting that the window trim and central entrance feature have a smooth finish.

This house looks a trifle bare in the illustration and would be greatly improved in homelike appearance by the planting of shrubbery around the foundation.

The roof is of brownish red shingle tile or asbestos shingles of blended brown, red, and plum shades, contrasting with the symmetrically placed massive gray stone chimney.

All windows are metal casements fitted with leaded glass, giving the house a most interesting appearance.

The end of each porch facing toward the front is shown enclosed for the sake of privacy, but these porches could readily be opened toward the street, if preferred, by the omission of the end walls which fill the space between the house and piers at the corner of the porch. These porches are treated more as loggias, but could readily be made wider and thus be enlarged considerably without detriment to the design, providing the width of the lot would permit of this enlargement.

The space under the bay window in the second story is effectively utilized as an entrance porch which with bay window forms an unusually beautiful central feature on the front elevation. The centrally located hall is entered from this porch through a vestibule. On the left of the vestibule is placed a coat closet lighted by a small window on the entrance porch. The space under the stairs on the opposite of the vestibule is utilized as a cold closet or a storage pantry off the kitchen.

The hall connects with all the rooms, the parlor or drawing room being so arranged that it can be shut off and serve as a library or for other private purposes. The vestibule and hall are paved with large square slabs of dark bluish gray limestone, laid in a diagonal pattern.

There are fireplaces in all three first story rooms and in two bedrooms on the second story. The fireplace mantel and hearth in the living and dining rooms are of a silvery light gray Italian limestone.

The wide sliding doors between the living and dining room permit these rooms to be thrown into one, and the open porch off the dining room could be inclosed or be changed to a conservatory.

Quite a pretentious stairway with a landing over the entrance porch leads to a square hall in the second story, the arrangement of bay window on the stair landing giving both a spacious effect to the second story and direct sunlight to the lower hall.

The kitchen and serving pantry are conveniently arranged with a tradesman entrance at the side of the house. There is ample wall space in the kitchen for a sink, cupboards, work table, etc., and a hooded alcove is provided for a range.

The plan of the second story is excellent. There are two good sized bedrooms with ample closets facing the rear or garden side and two fair sized bedrooms facing the front, all with cross ventilation; and there are two bathrooms, each connecting with a front and rear bedroom.

A slight reduction in the size of the linen room would provide a closet for one of the front bedrooms.

The two main bedrooms at the rear open on to two balconies or sleeping porches.

There is a large unfinished attic over the entire main portion of the house reached by the enclosed service stairs, and the roof is of a sufficiently steep pitch to permit the placing of a maid's bedroom and bath, or even two moderately sized bedrooms and bath in this attic, leaving sufficient attic storage space for trunks; or the entire left half of the attic could be finished as a large playroom for children.

By a little rearrangement of the plan, grading the lot for a sunken driveway along the kitchen side of the house, a garage for a small car could be located at the basement level under the porch off the dining room.

This house presents a substantial and strikingly handsome appearance and, while distinctively foreign in type, it is one of those types that tends to grow in one's favor upon closer acquisitionship, and is a house that may be depended upon to serve as an ideal semi-suburban home, large enough for modest entertaining, but not too large for everyday use by the small American family.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Tribune, Chicago.

AVOID PUBLIC GOSSIP.

MARION was the last to arrive for lunch yesterday, and as she was pulling her chair up to the table she looked across at Dorothy with a quizzical expression in her eye, three-quarters amusement and the rest exasperation. It was the sort of look one couldn't escape, and Dorothy—returning it with surprise at first—finally began to fidget.

Marion didn't say a word, however, until Dorothy, unable to sustain the look any longer, demanded to know what the matter was. Then she exclaimed: "Dorothy, I do wish you'd learn to be more discreet. The entire conversation you had with your friend on the street car coming downtown this morning was just repeated to me, word for word, including an account of a controversy I got into last week with one of our men."

Dorothy was too dumfounded for a few moments to reply, but when she did there was consternation as well as a hint of apology in her voice. "I had no idea, Marion, that I could be overheard, even by the person sitting on the other side of me. And, to tell you the truth, although I did repeat that story you told me the other day, I wasn't aware of having mentioned your name. I even took care to avoid it, and thought I'd succeeded. Tell me, how did you hear about it?"

Dorothy looked downcast and a little bit frightened, I thought. When Marion perceived that she was taking the incident to heart she relented and said: "It wasn't as bad as all that, Dorothy. I just thought I'd see if I could scare you. One of the boys in the office happened to be sitting next to you this morning and, while he did hear you tell a part of that story on me, it was your friend who mentioned my name and so identified me with it. He described you pretty accurately, but, of course, I didn't know who the other girl was."

"It doesn't matter who she was," Dorothy said nervously. "What else did he tell you I said?"

"That was all he heard, honestly," she added, as Dorothy's look expressed a slight doubt of the truth of her assurance. [I couldn't help wondering what else Dorothy had gossiped about on her way downtown this morning.] Marion went on: "He was absorbed in his paper all the way down, and it wasn't until he heard your friend mention my name that he pricked up his ears. By that time you were in the midst of your story about me. But he wouldn't have heard any of it if she hadn't given you away. You know it's hearing a name that usually attracts people's attention, and when it's a familiar one they can't help eavesdropping on the conversation. It's a dangerous business—mentioning people's names in public places."

"I can't tell you, Marion, how terribly sorry I am, and I'm sure I'll be most careful after this. I've had a lesson like this before, and I thought I'd profited by it. But you may count on me hereafter. From now on I'm the soul of discretion. I'll talk about the weather, politics, O, any old thing, but I'll never make any personal remarks in a street car again."

Dorothy's repentance was real. And although I felt sorry for her, in her discomfiture over the incident, I was glad that Marion had tried to bring the danger of talking indiscreetly about people in public places home to her. People are continually getting into trouble on this score. Women, particularly, seem to have little sense of discretion, and will talk not only of their own intimate affairs in street cars, restaurants, theaters, etc., but will discuss critically those of their friends and associates.

It's vitally important for women in business to learn to be discreet in the matter of their employers' affairs, and while it's inconceivable that they should refrain altogether from discussing them, they can and should be prudent in the matter of their audience.

For a Rose Tint Complexion

Bring It Out by Ridding the Face of Pimples Through the Use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

If all those who have acquired the loveliest complexion by using Stuart's Calcium Wafers were to meet together what an army it would be.

These wonderful wafers are to be had in almost every drug store in the U. S.

Their mild but wonderful laxative action cleanses the blood by stimulating the bowels and liver, overcoming constipation, bad breath, the stupid, lazy feeling and such evils of a clogged system.

Muddy complexion, sallowness and blemishes, due to constipation, disappear. You need not smear your delicate skin with grease, ointment and tallow, that clog the pores, make hair grow and rob you of your beauty.

A fair, delicate, rose-tint complexion comes only from good care and a thorough laxative action. And with the remarkable influence of Calcium Sulphide your skin fairly revels in its freedom from accumulated impurities. A more beautiful skin results. Avoid harsh cathartics. Get a 60-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers of any druggist. They are safe, harmless, and oh! how effective.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

"I am an invalid, suffering from leakage of the heart, and am forced to stay in bed. I would like to know if any of your kind readers have any silk pieces of silk neckties, which they would like to give me. I am lonesome, and want some easy thing to do.

"MRS. C. C."

May I ask readers who have old ties and silk pieces, that may be utilized to advantage by Mrs. C. C., to send to me for her address?

"Some months ago I appealed to your corner for help for a needy family; and the comforts and enjoyment that they received from cornerites were a pleasure to behold. Once more I have taken under my wing a family with two girls, aged 8 and 4 years, and a new baby on the way. Perhaps some one has some baby clothes packed away—no longer in use, that she would be glad to donate to this needy mother. Also any little winter garments for the little girls, or anything that can be made over for them, will be greatly appreciated. And if some one wishes to sort over their own wardrobe in search of an old coat or dress for the mother, I am sure she would be more than thankful. She is quite a large woman—wears about 42 or 44 size. I will gladly do repairing on anything offered and send it on. MRS. G."

I hope, kind friend, that your request will meet with the ready response it deserves.

"Please send me the address of a poor invalid boy or girl, a shut-in. I have an interesting scrap book, also some post card views, which I will be glad to send them and will pay postage on same. Do you know of any one who would like a lot of fruit jars and jelly glasses? Those would have to be called for. MRS. W. L.

Thank you, Mrs. L. I know the scrap books you have to give will prove enjoyable to some shut-in.

"I am recuperating from a severe illness and greatly desire some books which I cannot afford to buy. The library will not send books to where I am. Please send any that may be offered to my friend in Chicago, address enclosed, who will forward them to me. Thank you for your kindness.

IDELLE.

"Idelle's request comes from out of town, but her friend here will be only too happy to forward any books offered to her.

"Have two pairs of arch supports that I would be glad to give to those who need them. Am leaving town in about ten days, so wish to dispose of them before that. A. C. L."

Thi sis an opportunity for some one in need of an arch support. Please make application at once.

"I am taking the liberty of asking some one to help me. I am a widow with four children, the oldest of which is 11 years. I am working for the last five years, but now I find it difficult to support the children and myself. I would be much pleased if some one could send a winter coat for my oldest daughter and a few dresses which they can't use for my younger children. I have three girls and one boy. The boy is 9 years old. MRS. J. G."

As brave a fight as this mother is putting up—caring for her four little children—deserves encouragement and help. I hope to be asked for her address.

"I wonder if in your big list of readers there would be any who would have pieces of material for quilts—cotton, wool or silk—to keep a woman over 70 years old busy during the winter months. She dreads the winter because she has nothing to do. I hope some dressmaker will be glad to give some scraps to her. MRS. J. B."

"I am wondering if some one has some medium gray wool army socks—not too heavy weight. I need them to piece down a bathing suit, the trunks of which seem to be ever shortening. Will have some silk quilt pieces to offer to some shut-in when I return home. S. B. H."

"I am a girl of 13, and have two sets of cardboard furniture for a doll's house. One set—for five rooms—has twenty-six pieces of furniture; also four table lamps and two oilcloth kitchen rugs. The other set—for three rooms—has sixteen pieces, including two beds. The beds in the larger set, one double and one single, have two sets of pillows, mattresses, sheets, pillow cases, and quilt. With furnished postage, I shall be glad to gladden the hearts of one or two little girls by sending this furniture. As I am going away soon, I cannot hold this offer open for more than two weeks.

"M. S."

Some little girl will be delighted to have the cardboard furniture for her dolly's house. Thank you, Margaret.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

PASTRIES.

It requires generalship to make puff paste. You get your materials together, then let them stand and cool their toes. You mass them, and you string them out, and then you repeat, while sometimes they march [are rolled] away from you so that you observe their profiles.

Is it easy for men to keep step, and in a perfectly straight line? Perfectly easy, after they are trained to it, but watch them before they are. They skew off and skew in, and are now ragged at the edges, and now hooped in the middle. That is what happens to pastry when the amateur tries to roll it, and keep it at the same time a perfect square. To keep it so is what is necessary in making puff paste, and there are six rollings to be made if you would have a pastry that will make a fine deep hole of a shallow one, as it is baked for patty shells (pâtés).

Working Pastes.

The slight but perfect working is the greatest business in making any pastry, whether it is a simple one for pie crusts, tarts, cookies, ornamental cuts for garnishing meat pies or plain meat, or what not. The penalty, or one of them, for imperfect work is an uneven surface, a patty with a slanting top, a pie top with humps, and so forth.

Baking Puff Paste.

The cook books, nearly all, tell us that the baking of puff paste is as important as the rolling. Mary Ronald says: "The oven must be very hot, with the greatest heat at the bottom, so that the paste may rise before it begins to brown; therefore, put it in the bottom of the oven and lay a paper on the shelf for a few minutes. Do not open the door for the first five minutes. It is essential to have the oven extremely hot. It must not, however, scorch the paste."

Miss Farmer says that while it is rising it is often necessary to decrease the heat of the hot oven and to turn the pan. Then she says: "When it has risen its full height, slip a pan under the sheet on which paste is baking to prevent burning on the bottom. Puff paste should be baked on a tin sheet covered with a double thickness of brown paper, or a dripping pan can be used lined with brown paper."

Formulas.

Miss Farmer's formula for puff paste reads: "One pound butter, one pound pastry flour or fourteen ounces of bread flour, cold water." For her recipe, headed "quick puff pastry," the formula reads: "One cup bread flour, one tablespoon lard, seven-eighths cup butter, cold water."

Item No. 1, in the great Escoffier's recipe, reads: "Sift one pound of flour on to the mixing board. Make a hollow in it, and put therein one-third ounce of table salt and about one-half pint of cold water, and mix without kneading. Mass the paste together, and let it rest for twenty minutes, that it may lose its elasticity, which will be all the more pronounced for its having been very much worked. It is to avoid this elasticity, therefore, that the mixing of the puff paste should be effected with the smallest amount of kneading possible."

Condition of the Ingredients.

After his description of how to manipulate puff paste, for which operation we may make long preparation, in order to know what we are really about when we get to work, Escoffier has:

"Remarks relative to puff paste: Good puff paste should be buttered to the extent of one pound per one and a half pounds—that is, one pound of butter for every one pound of flour mixed with one-half pint of water. The consistence of the paste and the butter should be exactly the same, if they are to be evenly mixed; the butter ought, therefore, to be softened—more particularly in winter.

"In preparing puff paste, remember to put it in a cool place while it is resting; but never directly upon ice, for though the ice would not affect the paste it might seriously affect the butter.

"It would harden it to the extent of preventing its perfect mixture with the mass, and lumps would form. Puff paste should be rolled out regularly, with the view of thoroughly distributing the butter throughout the preparation, and thus insuring its uniform rising.

"Puff paste should not be worked too speedily, for, if it be so worked, it will be found to acquire an elasticity which not only makes it difficult to cut up but also tends to make it shrink in the baking."

Escoffier's Method.

From my own experience I should say that slightly softening the butter was a good plan, but Mary Ronald works the butter, then puts it on ice, uses ice water, chills paste, and so forth, as do many other makers of puff paste. On the making of pastes Mrs. Rorer says: "Have everything, including yourself, cool." If there is any secret to success outside of skill perhaps that is what it is, an unflurried approach to what I consider far from an easy bit of work.

Spread the prepared paste on a flour dusted board, in the shape of an even galette [cake]. Spread thereon one pound of softened butter, without completely covering the paste; draw the edges of the paste toward the center, in such wise as to inclose the butter completely and to form a square thickness of paste.

Leave to rest for a further ten minutes, and then begin the working of the paste, rolling it out to the length of one and one-half feet and keeping it one inch thick. Fold this layer over thrice, and press upon it with the roller so as to join the superimposed layers. The whole of this operation constitutes one turn.

"Begin another turn immediately, turning the paste the reverse way, and folding it as before. Set it to rest in the cool for eight or ten minutes, and then effect two more turns.

"Ten minutes after the last two turns—there should be six in all—the puff paste is ready to be cut up and used."

Mary Ronald's Third Point.

In her second point Mary Ronald says that it is impossible to tell how much water to use. She also gives a direction that might lead the amateur to work the paste too much. And here is her point three: "Sprinkle the slab lightly with flour. Roll the cold paste into a square piece; place the cold butter in the center, and fold the paste over it, first from the sides, and then the ends, keeping the shape square, and folding so that the butter is completely incased, and cannot escape from the folds when rolled. This must be absolutely guarded against at all times, and can be prevented if the paste is rolled evenly and folded properly."

Turn the folded side down, and with the rolling pin roll it lightly away from you into a long, narrow strip, keeping it as even as possible. Fold it over, making three even layers of paste. This is called "giving it one turn"; then roll the folded strip again and fold as before.

This must be repeated until it has had six turns, which is as many as it should receive to give it its greatest lightness. After each turn, if it shows signs of softening, otherwise after each two turns, wrap the paste in a napkin, and place it in a pan, which should be placed between two other pans containing cracked ice, and let it remain there twenty or thirty minutes.

Great care must be used in rolling the paste to keep the edges even, so that the layers will be even, and to roll lightly and away from you, so as not to break the air bubbles which give the lightness to the paste. The rolling is made easier by lightly pounding as well as rolling the paste. After each folding press the edges gently with the rolling pin to shut in the air, and turn the paste so as to roll it in a different direction.

The paste should slip on the slab. If it does not, it sticks, and must be put on the ice at once. When it has had six turns, cut it into the desired forms, and place it again on the ice for twenty to thirty minutes before putting it in the oven. The trimmings, put together and rolled, make a good bottom crust for tart bands, or a top crust for mince pie.

Every little while I get requests for a recipe. It is expensive. It is unwholesome, even at its best, when it melts on the tongue. The obese, who seem to like it best, might as well sign a Faustlike death warrant as to eat it, a warrant which will be presented before they have seen a reasonable number of years of life, though, as in all eating wrongs, the influence is insidious.

Perhaps it is because puff paste represents the fanciest cooking of its kind that people want to make it. Or there may be no definable reason. They just do. But a conscientious person, I believe, who is not in constant practice in making this fancy thing would naturally like to escape the responsibility as well as the work of telling anybody very often how to do it, as I have escaped above.

A Simple Sour Cream Paste.

One-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of thick sour cream or home made cream cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup or a little more of flour, in which sift one-half (scant) teaspoon of soda, and flavor. Beat the cream and blend it thoroughly with the sugar and salt, and then work the flour, sifted two or three times, into it, a part at a time. When stiff enough to roll pour out on to a floured board, gather together quickly into a compact ball, flatten and lengthen a bit, divide into three parts, and roll out each part into as thin a sheet as possible before cutting it into forms. While one part is being rolled put the rest to chill. This simple paste may be manipulated so as to give the cook much experience helpful in harder tasks.

One part of this may be cut into little rounds, sprinkled with sugar, and baked for twelve minutes in a medium hot oven. Always be careful not to allow these wafers to stay in after they begin to brown; for, being so thin, they darken all through too quickly. Use a spatula to lift, and place them on the bottom of an inverted tin. Remove the trimmings before lifting each piece. Notice how much more likely the first part rolled out and cooked without chilling is to have little folds than is the rest.

One part of this may be cut out in little rounds and pressed on to the bottom of little individual pie tins and baked. These, when baked, may be used for various desserts. For instance, a peach may be cut fine into the shell and sugared, then whipped cream mounted on it. This makes a pretty dessert, and the crust will taste something like, yet better than, an ice cream cone, or a "gauffre," and, if rolled out thin enough, will look like these as well. That is the task, the rolling it thin! You may try to grind it into the board. Wrong!

DRY CLEANING AT HOME

by Alma Harding

ALPHABETICAL TABLE OF SPOT REMOVERS.

This is the eighteenth article of a series giving instructions in dry cleaning, fine laundry work, bleaching, and dyeing.

It is a common belief that shine on woolen garments is the result of wear. Often it is only the result of rubbing particles of dirt into the fiber and polishing it. To remove, mix one-eighth ounce of alum into one quart of water and brush the coat with a stiff brush dipped in the mixture.

Shoes.

If shoes seem to give no satisfaction when cleaned with ordinary polish, clean again and again with carbontetrachloride or benzine until every bit of dirt has been removed. When quite dry from the benzine, apply a good polish several times, rubbing well after each application. The shoes will be like new, but polish will have to be applied at least five times.

Suede Shoes.

They may be brightened by rubbing gently with pumice or sand paper.

White Kid Shoes.

Brush with a benzine soap solution, taking care not to touch the soles; rinse with a sponge dipped in benzine and sprinkle with plaster of paris or flour to absorb all the moisture. Rub with a white cloth from time to time in drying and dry in a cool place. Many people have equal success with wet cleaning kid shoes, using water instead of benzine in the directions given above.

White Buckskin Shoes.

If they are exceedingly dirty or if grease spots show obstinately through the white paste you apply, take a small brush and scrub the shoes thoroughly with soap and cold water, rinsing from time to time with fresh water on the brush. Try not to let the leather get any wetter than necessary, so the color of the lining won't come through. When quite clean, dry as much as possible with soft cloths, apply your regular whiting, and put in a moderate temperature to dry with shoe trees in, to keep them in shape.

Infants' Colored Kid Shoes.

Soak a cloth in sweet milk slightly warmed, then soap it on pure white soap, and sponge on the slippers. Wipe off with a dampened flannel and dry carefully. They will have nearly their original polish.

Shoe Polish.

Shoe polish is usually made up of color plus a soluble oil. So, first take out the oil with carbontetrachloride, and if the stain remains it may be bleached with eau de Javelle or peroxide on cotton—and with permanganate of potassium on wool.

Silks.

Silks, such as rep, satin, damask, velvet, brocade, etc., are hurt by the action of even dilute potash or soda lye. They are also hurt by boiling in soap solutions. Warm dilute acids also hurt silks, but cold dilute acids may be used, and acetic acid, far from hurting silk, brightens the luster. No acid of any kind should be used on black silk, as it will rust it. To clean silk use only a sponge or soft brush, as a dull spot results from rubbing. Spots in dark colored silks usually yield to plain distilled water. Light colored silks are difficult, since rings form and the silk loses luster where the spot has been attacked. In using water on these silks work from the wrong side.

Silk Dresses.

These are usually not dirty enough to need a benzine soap solution. When the individual spots have been removed, a benzine rinse is enough.

Soot.

Carbontetrachloride will remove soot stains. To take them from a rug, sprinkle liberally with salt and sweep thoroughly. This usually removes most of the stains.

Soup.

Soup stains in which there is much grease may be sponged with hot water to which soda, borax, or ammonia has been added. This for cotton goods. Use benzine on silks and wool.

Sponges.

To sweeten and bleach sponges, squeeze over them the juice of a lemon. Then cut the rind in small pieces and pour over the whole boiling water. Leave twenty-four hours and then rinse thoroughly.

BRIGHT SAYINGS of the CHILDREN

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Isabel had been promised a party on her sixth birthday if she was a good girl. Every day she asked how many more days she had to wait, and when she was finally told it was the next day she exclaimed, "O, goody, only one more day to be good."

W. R. McE.

Jack and the man across the street were good friends, but lately Jack has not been going to see him, due to the fact that he was busy playing all day. However, one evening he saw a freezer of ice cream go in over there, and leaving his friends, said, "you kids stay here. The man over there is my pal, and I suppose he is wondering what has become of me."

J. W.

One morning, before school, the teacher of a first grade class was talking with a visiting mother. One lad came up and interrupted the conversation by calling the teacher's name in a loud tone. She took no notice of him at the time, and he went away without saying another word. Later, when she was explaining to him that it was rude to interrupt a conversation in such a way, he interrupted once more with: "Yes, yes, but didn't you hear me shut up when you didn't answer me?"

E. B.

Leila wanted to tell her mother something and interrupted her while talking several times. She was reprimanded for this. After waiting some time she began tugging at mother's skirt, and said in a soft voice, "Mother, dear, do you think I will ever get a chance to tell you what I have to say?"

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

By Mary Brush Williams.

SLEEVES FEATURE FALL OFFERINGS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—Special Corresondence.]—I am in the happy position, temporary though it is, of not wanting any clothes. In my dreams I see passing before me a mannikin with scrambled hair, ascending into a peak on her head, like Mme. Madeleine's, wearing a costume which is a composite of all the queer dresses that have come out in Paris in the last ten days.

At Madeleine's opening I saw Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Mrs. Cyril Hatch, and they were in just about the same condition of mind regarding a fall wardrobe. Whatever else we might be yearning for, from a Rolls-Royce to some decent silk stockings, a dress was not in the list.

But the offerings are lovely, and they are new, although not one costume now in any of our wardrobes will have to be thrown away au cause du (as the French would say it) change in styles. I was going to report that they were longer and fuller until I saw Chanel's collection, which seemed, if possible, to be higher and tighter. But this is a subject as old and perennial of agitation as the servant question.

For the moment let me concern myself with tendencies a little new. We seem to be going in for the barbaric, as expressed largely in belts. Wear them low and studded and dangerous looking—as if you were a thoroughly unprincipled person. For the rest, the main center of interest is the sleeve. Skirts are circular and not often more than six inches above the ground. Some of them try to cover any turn which capricious fashion may fancy by being short in front and supplemented with a straight overskirt in the back, which is longer.

This is the line of Jean Patou. And his things are indeed pretty. Some of the big dealers maintain that he is by way of arriving on a magnificent scale, this handsome young Frenchman, whose financial backer is said to be a beautiful lady of title. Of all the openings thus far, I think that, before becoming insensible, I wished to possess more things out of his than any other. They are lovely looking things, insolently sure of themselves in line and coloring. He is the author of that low, dangerous looking belt, which in many cases is the only feature of the costume is decorates and in some instances is of chased metal.

Madeleine and Madeleine are featuring points—not the handkerchief pointed draperies, but lines that come from stitching bias pieces of the material into acute angles from underarm seams to a point exaggeratedly low for a waist line in the middle of the back. They run them sometimes from the hips diagonally down the skirt in the back to a point at the hem. It makes one look tall and graceful.

The Madeleines also have a lot of tenor's capes that you wrap round you, throwing the right end over the left shoulder. The collection abounds in costumes of a lovely color which I called sage green (with fur dyed to match) until my vendesue said that I mistook the shade, which is called Madeleine blue. It has been created and dyed for the house.

The first of the accompanying sketches is from the house of Jenny. You will observe that it has sleeve trouble. You know what I have been telling you about sleeves—well, they are getting worse. Either there aren't any at all or they are surely a feature. Some are tight, with transparent winged draperies over them. There are, again, tight ones with bell shaped flaps sewed on separately, thus giving a variation on the bell shaped sleeve of the summer.

As for the manteau depicted, it is a little skimpy and anemic, looking as if all other parts had been underfed and sacrificed to the luxuriant growth of sleeve. It is of brown cashmere, which, in one variation and another, is the material of the season. The sleeves are banded in fur dyed brown, and one of the features making for the chic of the costume is the audacious lack of proportion between the enormous sleeves and the tiny collar. The last note in daring comes in coupling that little knob of a black satin hat with those scholastic sleeves. It is really a most dashing costume.

The second offering is already appearing out of the fall collection. It showed at the tea dance in the Casino at Deauville and was a hit. It was made for this summering place in heavy white crêpe with heavy black lace sleeves and a transparent lace hem. The original model, I believe, is in beige wool, with sleeves in brown. The belt in the Deauville creation was in black squares of jet.

The hat shows the new flare which all headgear has suddenly taken. Observe the shape, if convenient; if not, you will have many another opportunity throughout the season.

Molyneux is the author of the third offering. It is a tailored suit in fur and consists of stripes of moleskin, the natural color and black alternating. The bodice is of gray velour, with metal belt of silver coloring. The border of the blouse is edged with metal studdings. The hat is of black velvet, close fitting, and has loops of white cord as trimming.

The fourth costume is by Jean Patou. It is called "At the Hour of the Promenade." The collar looks like the autumn meadow with the hoar frost upon it. It is a long haired material, maroon in color, with a white frosting on the surface. The mantle itself is of beige cashmere, with "incrustations," as the French would call it, or designs, of the material sewed in patterns on the front. The tan colored wrap with the deeper brown collar makes a loud color ensemble.

An Explanation Followed.

When I was a messenger boy for a telegraph company another messenger decided to run things in the waiting room. The rest of us dubbed him "the boss," and before doing anything we would ask his permission.

One day, after being out on a long trip, I knocked at the door of the waiting room and asked, "May I come in, boss?"

"Why, yes, you may come in, but why the familiar title?" replied my employer, who was sitting in the waiting room reading the paper.

The Chair Rose, Too.

When I finished eighth grade in our school, we had public commencement exercises, consisting of a program of recitations and music by the members of the graduating class. I was the smallest and youngest member of the class, and as the stage was small I was seated in a child's rocking chair.

When my number came and I arose to deliver my speech, the chair stuck to me and rose too. This caused much merriment and laughter in the audience, and by the time the girl next to me had presence of mind enough to detach the chair I was so embarrassed I could not think of a single line of that long practiced recitation.

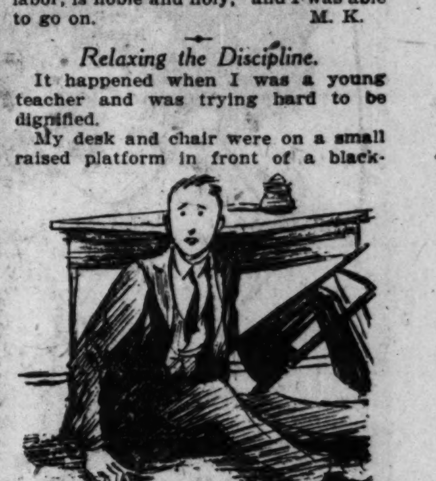
After hours, so it seemed to me, the laughing ceased and I heard my favorite teacher in one of the wings of the stage prompting me, "Labor, all labor, is noble and holy," and I was able to go on.

M. K.

Relaxing the Discipline.

It happened when I was a young teacher and was trying hard to be dignified.

My desk and chair were on a small raised platform in front of a blackboard. I was sitting before the class one day and turned suddenly in my chair to illustrate a point on the blackboard, when the leg of the chair slipped off the edge of the platform, and over I went, helplessly sprawling on the floor.



I wasn't hurt, but embarrassed does not express what I felt! There was a tense silence as I sat up and looked at the children. They were trying hard to be polite, but they were almost bursting. Then I began to laugh and the storm broke. We all laughed until we were weak. I blushed for many days after whenever I thought of it, but the children and I were better friends.

Z. A.

Give Him a Chance.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm in love with a young man two years my senior and I know he is interested in me. But a few months ago I introduced a young lady to him, and he has grown fond of her. Now he is turning to me again. Do you think he will return to her or keep his attentions towards me?

"PEGGY."

It might have been just a temporary flareup. If he came back to you of his own free will it proves you are the winner of the two. Give him another trial.

What Eyes Tell

by Doris Blake

[Concluded from last Sunday.]

IF A PERSON winks rapidly, it is a sign of a bad temper; if slowly, an even temper.

A wild expression of the eye, with the whole pupil exposed, is a sign of insanity.

Projecting, rolling eyes belong to people destitue of genuine veneration.

The eye that is large, full, prominent, and clean denotes an ingenuous and candid disposition, void of deceit, an agreeable and affable disposition, modesty and self-depreciation in love, but by no means objecting to its gratifications. Such persons will be firm though not obstinate, of a good understanding, endowed with an agreeable but not brilliant wit, clear and just in argument, inclined to extravagance and easily imposed upon.

The eye that is small but advanced in the head shows a quick wit, sound constitution, lively genius, agreeable company and conversation, godo morals, inclination to be jealous, attentive to business, fond of frequent changing his or her place, punctual about engagements, warm in love, prosperous in his or her undertakings, and generally fortunate in most things.

The person whose eyes are sunk in the head is of jealous, distrustful, envious, malicious nature, deceitful in words and actions, never to be depended upon, cunning, vainglorious, preferring to associate with bad company.

Large eyes in a small face are a sign of innocence.

If the eyes are close together near the bridge of the nose, the person is stingy and untrustworthy.

A shifting eye denotes dishonesty.

Unusually soft, languid eyes are an indication of a voluptuous nature.

When it does not mean sensuality, fullness beneath the eyes means power of language.

Blue lines around the eye are a sign one is in love.

Never trust one who keeps his eyes half closed.

Half shut eyes show great natural shrewdness, together with a lack of sincerity.

Among the southern Negroes, one who has his eyes blotched with red, or bloodshot, is feared for possessing the evil eye.

The squinting eye denotes penuriousness but honesty.

Oblique eyes are said to be a sign of cunning and deceit.

Pop eyed persons are always good natured.

If one's eyes have a different expression or are unlike in color, such a person is apt to be double minded.

The white of the eye shows above the lower lid in religious fanatics. It shows more of the upper eye in haughty people.

A wall eye denotes the person to be of a hasty, passionate, and ungovernable temper, subject to sudden and violent anger, haughty to equals and inferiors but affable and cringing to superiors.

An eye that wanders hither and thither when the person is talking indicates deceit.

Extremely quiet eyes which embarrass by their great repose signify self-command.

If a person you are speaking with looks steadily into your eyes, with a quiet, unquestioning gaze, you can give them your confidence.

If your eye twitches three times in a month, unusual and great things will happen to you.

If you have the habit of looking down, your mind dwells on the past; if you look up, your thoughts dwell in the future. If you look straight ahead, you are constantly living in the present.

If your right eye keeps twitching, it signifies news; your left eye misfortune.

If your eyes both twitch at the same time, you are going to hear news from a long absent friend.

A cinder in the eye is a sign of unexpected leisure:

Get a cinder in your eye while traveling, you will have a safe journey.

Take something out of a woman's eye, and you will gain the next thing you set your heart upon. Not so if you take cinders out of male eyes.

A good sight is generally enjoyed by those who have black, thick, straight eyelashes, large busy eyebrows, concave eyes, contracted, as it were, inwards.

Short sighted people have a stern, earnest look, small short eyebrows, large pupils, and prominent eyes.

An old saying is to "wipe the eyes toward the nose and you will never have to wear glasses."

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $5 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

THREE GIRLS IN ONE.

MOST Dear Princess Caprice: I have spent the whole day—in spite of my work—wondering which is the real you—the little domestic thing with flour on her adorable nose that I glimpsed on that morning call; the small white saint that I beheld kneeling in the light of the stained glass windows on Sunday; or the wild sweet little devil that danced in my arms, looking up at me provocatively through curly lashes, only last night?

But you have the charm of all women—the allurement of them all—my hands tremble as I think of that dimple at the base of your ivory throat; my breath stops as I see in memory the red temptation of your lips. O, I love you, Caprice, madly, humbly, fiercely, and tenderly. I could crush and kill you.

Caprice, answer my letter at once and tell me that you, too, care. Take pity on my agony of adoration and say the little word that means so much to me. Your devoted lover, SIDNEY.

Thinks They're Scarce.

"Dear Miss Blake: In answer to query made by Curious, I rise to make known my idea of a real girl—one who likes a good time without spending 110 per cent of my bank roll. Sorta scarce in this city but you find 'em now and then. A little flirtation—not too much—adds a little sauce to the game.

"Looks don't count. It's the heart that tells the truth.

"So you tell Curious this, and then some other fellow can add more. I didn't mention anything about dancing, for that doesn't enter my line. Doesn't interest me in the least, but the average fellow likes a girl who can dance. Ain't it the truth? A. G."

He Will Not Save.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going about with a fellow three years my senior for the last six years. Last Christmas we were engaged and we decided to wait a year before getting married so that we could save some money. He makes a medium salary on which he could easily put aside a small amount each week, but he is extravagant and doesn't seem a bit concerned that we will have barely enough to start a home. I have tried to make him understand all this but he refuses to worry.

"Now I am at a loss to know what to do. I never realized this bad fault of his because I was too young to understand. I was only 14 when I first met him. I'm beginning to feel pretty discouraged. At times I feel as though I would just like to end this affair.

"Can you give me any advice on this matter, as I am anxious to know what to do. Thanking you for any information you may give me.

"M. A. F."

That is a rather serious fault, M. A. F. Is he spending his money on your entertainment, or what? Of course, you cannot start or run a home on nothing a week, and be happy. However, you might try to persuade him into another try at saving money.

He Was Astonished.

"Dear Miss Blake: While at a dance a few nights ago I was with a crowd of boys, and in our midst was a young girl a few years my junior. She appeared to be a great favorite with the boys. It was my fortune to escort her home. When we reached home I asked her for a good night kiss. To my astonishment she told me that she has never yet given boys a good night kiss. She asked how I would like a fellow to ask my sister for a good night kiss. I apologized. But the thing is I am now ashamed to call on this girl. WORRIED."

What was the idea, Worried? Did you think that part of your duty as host for the evening? I am awfully glad to hear of a nice girl putting you right on the subject of kissing. However, now that you got your lesson, and apologized, call the young lady up and take her out again just to prove to her she has your admiration and respect.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

VIOLIN BRINGS HER LOVE.

IMMEDIATELY after the outbreak of war, when all classes of people were thrown together in all conditions of life and travel, a young Belgian girl, with relatives in America, left her invaded country at their solicitation to come and make her home with them. She was an only child. Her destination was a small town in Nebraska.

The steamers during this mad rush for American shores found women of wealth and luxury in modest accommodations. And so it was that little Marie found herself in a cabin with a charming, sympathetic, and wealthy Boston woman. Marie had been brought up to respect her elders and superiors, and in her polite and kindly way did everything to please and assist her cabin companion.

Before the end of the voyage this charming woman had become so accustomed to the attentions of this sweet young girl that she was not prone to let her be on her way so hastily and begged her to remain a while with her in New York.

On finding herself surrounded by this great and glorious city all the ambitions of her young heart broke forth, and with the ripening of this friendship she confided her desire to become a great musician. The woman listened kindly and straightway ordered a piano sent to her hotel room. Her talent proved to be out of the ordinary. Arrangements were made to have her study under a prominent teacher, and so quickly did she develop that it was decided to keep her in New York, where she could go on with her studies.

Just at the height, when everything seemed so bright for her future, word came to Marie of the death of her father. Her mother, enfeebled by the ravages of war, could not be left alone, nor would she come to America; so back to Belgium Marie had to go. Her benefactor was not satisfied after Marie's departure, and wrote to her to say she was coming to talk things over with her, her husband having to make a business trip over there anyway.

She had in her possession for many years a fine violin which she had hoped some day to give to some great and worthy artist. Now she wished to give it to Marie, that the latter might sell it and complete her musical career.

On the way over the woman was stricken with a violent fever, and before they reached port she died. The husband, a seemingly cold American business man, at first forgot about Marie. A year later he had to make a return trip to the town in which Marie lived. Remembering suddenly his wife's wishes for the girl she was so fond of, he carried along the violin to give her. When he arrived in their modest home, instead of the simple student girl he found a beautiful young woman who won his admiration instantly. Interest in the winsome girl ripened into love, and his visit lengthened from day to day. To make the story short, he took her back his bride. G. A. N.

VARIED ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Divorce is unknown to women of the isle of Jersey.

Miss Bernice C. Shidelsky is making a tour of the United States for the purpose of studying divorce.

The smallest species of women is found in Lapland. They average four feet nine inches in height.

Milliners in the United States plan changing the styles of hats every month instead of twice a year.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

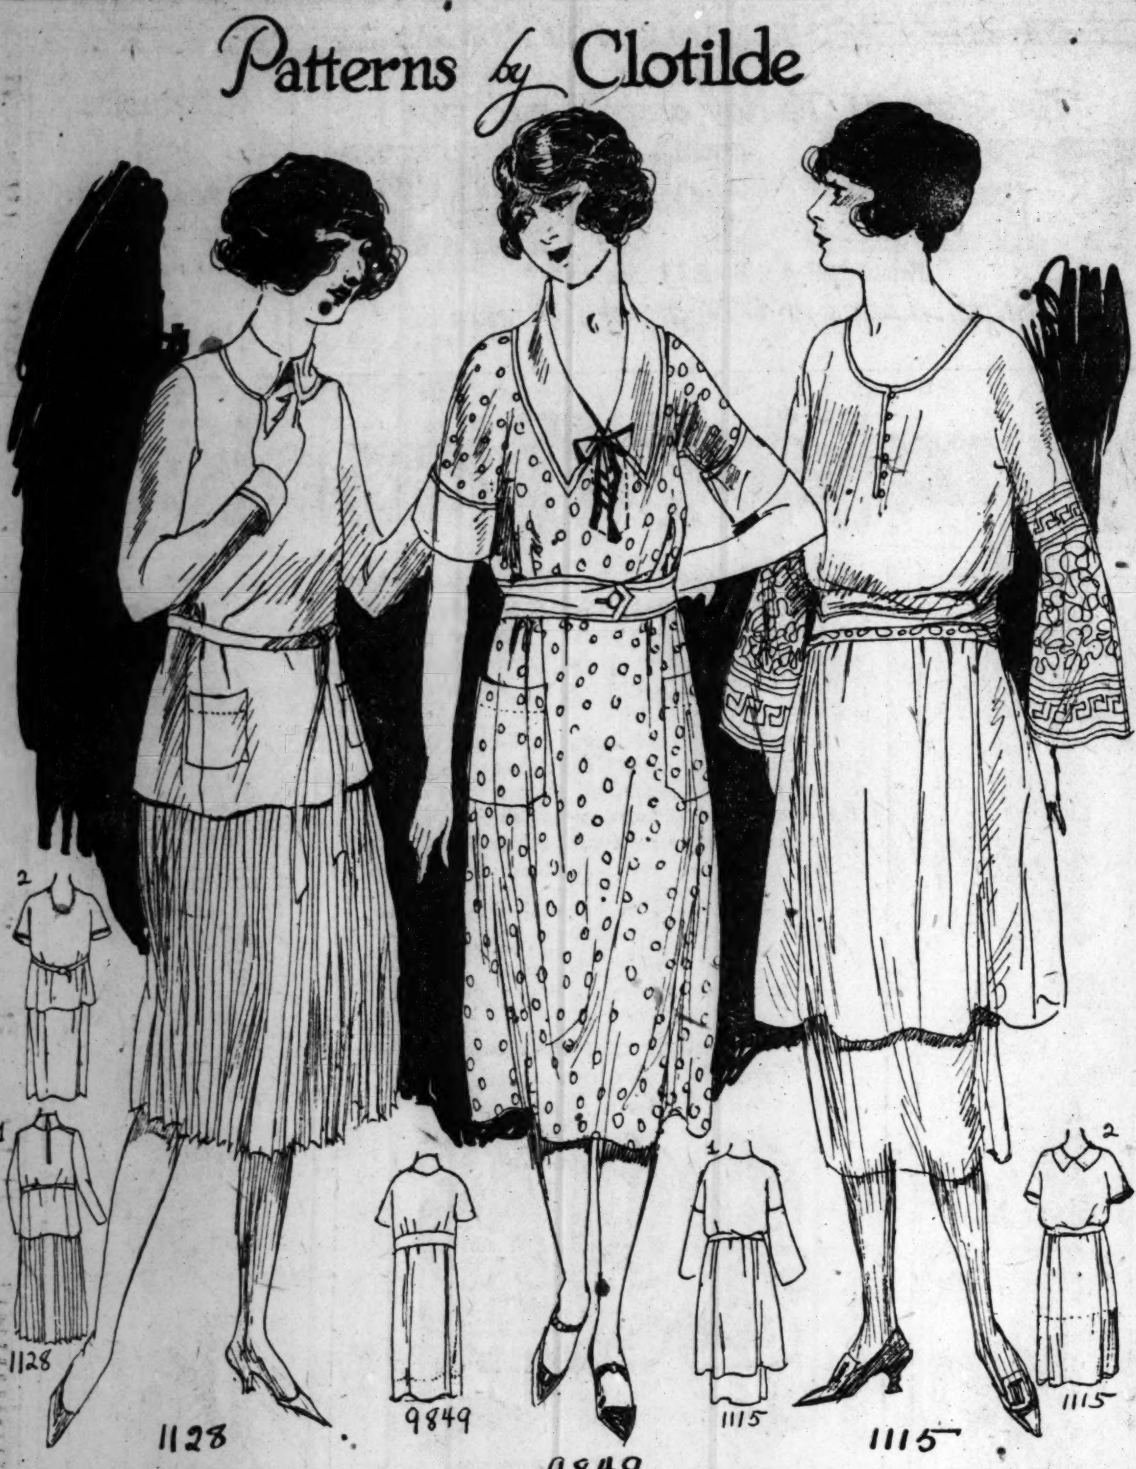
Patterns by Clotilde



1128—Miss and small woman's dress. Sizes 14 to 20 years. Size 16 requires 5 yards of 36 inch material.

9849—Woman's apron. Sizes 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 32 inch material with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting and 5 yards of binding.

1115—Woman's dress. Sizes 36 to 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 36 inch material, 1⅜ yards of 32 inch lining, and 1 yard of binding.

How to Use Patterns.

THE slip-on blouse and separate one piece skirt of pattern No. 1128 are well suited to two materials. The skirt may be gathered or plaited into the band. It measures 2¾ yards around the bottom for size 16 years, if the skirt is plaited, and 2¼ yards if it is gathered at the top.

It is an excellent pattern for a smart looking school dress, and should not be hard to make, especially if the gathered skirt is used. The main thing, if the skirt is to be plaited, is not to try to hold the work in your lap. Lay it on a large table where you will have ample room to lay it out.

Begin in the middle of the front to lay the plaits, a box plait being formed there; from there on the plaits are side ones, going towards the back. Of course, the seams and placket are first finished and the hem put in around the bottom.

In laying plaits in a skirt that is straight around the lower edge, begin laying each plait at the bottom, and fold towards the top. Run your fingers under each plait before basting down, to see that the inside or under fold is smooth. This is essential to a successful plait. The bastings are left in until the skirt is finished.

The blouse will be more appropriate for school wear if long sleeves are used. These are not difficult to handle. The pattern is a one piece sleeve, with fullness at the elbow, which is always necessary in a close fitting sleeve. Baste one sleeve together, putting the gathers in small stitches, and distributing the fullness evenly; try on, being careful to pull it well up on the arm just as it would go if it were sewed into the armhole. Now bend your arm, and see if the fullness is where it should be. If not, make the needed alteration before you go any further.

A narrow strap is stitched in at each under arm at the waistline to slip the belt or narrow sash through.

No. 9849 is a good design for an apron which will serve the purpose of any other sort of a dress to wear mornings.

It is cut kimono fashion, and is in one piece from the bottom of the front to the bottom of the bck. The sleeves are short, which is desirable for housework. There are two good sized pockets and a belt, which should be made really loose fitting.

The material should be well shrunken before being cut into—it will save lots of annoyance afterwards, for there are few wash materials that do not shrink.

Don't forget to hem some bias binding over the under arm seams where the curve is greatest. It should prevent its tearing there.

No. 1115 will make up beautifully in any one of a number of materials—any one of the crêpes, taffeta, or satin would be fine. The drop skirt can have its upper half made of lining if one likes, and the entire dress may be of one material. Black crêpe de chine would look well, with the embroidery done in black or colors. Sleeves just now are receiving a good deal of attention when it comes to trimming, and the sleeves shown with this dress are the most fashionable for the early fall wear.

White crêpe de chine would make a lovely gown, and the embroidery could be done in green—jade green is seen a great deal. Embroider the lower parts of the sleeve and the girdle, and bind the neck with the green, in taffeta or satin if you choose.

Skirt and waist are set into the same band, and for size 36 the bottom of the skirt measures 1½ yards.

Tabloid Book Review

By Fanny Butcher

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"Main Street" [Harcourt], by Sinclair Lewis.
"The Sheik" [Small, Maynard], by E. M. Hull.
"Her Father's Daughter" [Doubleday], by Gene Stratton Porter.
"Galusha the Magnificent" [Appleton], by Joseph C. Lincoln.
"Real Life" [Bobbs Merrill], by Henry Kitchell Webster.
"The Flaming Forest" [Cosmopolitan], by James Oliver Curwood.

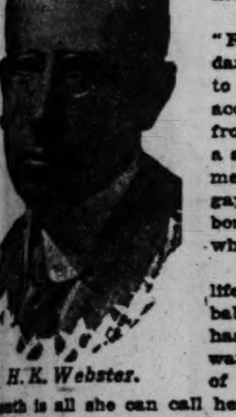
NONFICTION.

"A Journal of the Great War" [Houghton Mifflin], by Charles G. Dawes.
"Mirrors of Washington" [Putnam], Anonymous.
"Queen Victoria" [Harcourt], by Lytton Strachey.

The six best circulators at the public library last week were:

"Main Street," by Sinclair Lewis.
"Dust," by Mr. and Mrs. E. Haldeman-Julius.
"Alice Adams," by Booth Tarkington.
"Queen Victoria," by Lytton Strachey.
"Back to Methuselah," by Bernard Shaw.

"REAL LIFE" is the title of Henry Kitchell Webster's newest novel. Unfortunately one remembers that other novel of his with a similar title, "The Real Adventure," which was one of the few books whose memory remains as gold in the sifting process which is called—heaven knows why—criticism. "The Real Adventure" was a great book, greater than the passing reader knew when he was reading it. And now, as I said before, unfortunately the memory of that book links itself with this new one by the mere mechanical trick of the titles being similar.



H. K. Webster.

If one can forget that connection and read "Real Life" for what it is, a jaunty satire on the dangers and complications of real life as compared to the established romances of reel life; if one can accept it as a literary jaunt, as a bit of pleasantry from the pen of a man who has usually before mixed a sterner brew (said she, getting all mixed up in her metaphors), the book will seem just what it is—a gay tale for a summer day, for a dusty trip, for a boring evening which cannot make up its mind whether it is labeled August or November.

"Real Life" concerns the adventures into real life of one Leda Swan, movie princess who, from her babyhood, has lived in front of the camera, who has never spent a moment away from the eye of her watchful parent, and who is so innocent of the ways of the world that she thinks her allowance of $16 a month is all she can call her own. It concerns a fantastic string of events which almost knot themselves into matrimony at Crown Point. It moves, like a movie melodrama, against a shifting background of Michigan avenue, Jackson park, the dunes, and points adjacent. It is gay, debonair, and, underneath, pleasantly satirical. It makes fun out of a situation without making fun of it.

It is a new thing for Mr. Webster to do, and he obviously enjoyed doing it. It is not, however, the kind of book which glistens in the pan, free gold, after the clogging scraps have been slushed out.

"The Star Child and Other Plays" is a volume of proved and workable plays for children by Miss Rita Benton of our village. Miss Benton wrote the plays for production by groups of settlement children, and they proved so popular that this volume is the result. They are so simple to perform that she has needed on an average only eight rehearsals for each play. The stage directions are clear enough to make it possible for the children to do most of their own producing. For those who have been begging for plays for children, this volume should be a gift from on high.

G. L. T. wants me to "tell the world" how to pronounce the last name of Queen Victoria's author. Does this make it clear? Stray-chee, with the accent—slight—on the first syllable.

A statistic for you, fresh from the Cosmopolitan Press. The first edition of James Oliver Curwood's "The Flaming Forest" consisted of more than a hundred thousand copies—enough books to reach about twelve miles, end to end.

"Tired Radicals" is the provocative title of a volume of papers by Walter Weyl which appeared in the New Republic, Harper's, Asia, and the National Post. Walter Weyl was, from the beginning of that dashing young magazine's existence, an editor of the New Republic, a sort of ballast, I imagine, for that lightly ship in the sometimes stormy seas. His articles were the ham joints in that feast of reason. His death was one of those brushings aside by which fate proves to a too comfortable world that man is but a flick of dust upon her sleeve.

Eager readers want to know who E. M. Hull is who wrote that thesaurus of joy for the tired shop girl, "The Sheik." E. M. Hull is Mrs. Edith M. Hull, an Englishwoman, and "The Sheik" is her first novel. Surprised?

Vicente Blasco Ibanez is certainly appreciated by his native town of Valencia. Not long ago they had a fête lasting a week in honor of the world-wide success of their native son. A triumph arch was built in his honor and inscribed "To the Novelist of Genius." The fillip was given to the celebration when he was given the freedom of the city (whatever that means) and presented with its coat of arms by the city officials while the world stood in doorways and jammed streets. I suppose the next thing that Valencia will suggest is that their "novelist of genius" be presented with the Nobel prize for literature. In the meantime, a dramatization of "Blood and Sand" is in rehearsal, and will open on Sept. 20 with Otis Skinner in the—as it were—title rôle, being a toreador used to one and with plenty of the other.

The John Lane company has just issued new editions of "More" and "Works," by Max Beerbohm, and of Robert Ross' monograph on "Aubrey Beardsley," all of them books which are a joy to the cognoscenti and which have been out of print for many years. If you miss the delights of Max Beerbohm, ye friends and fellow citizens, let it be upon your own heads. The Tabloid has trumpeted his virtues until its conductor feels like a ballyhoo man at a side show.

"Sex for Parents and Teachers," by William Leland Stowell, M. D., is the sort of book that libraries and booksellers are always being asked for—a book which explains simply to the grownup natural phenomena, which may in turn be explained simply to the child. Most books on the subject are either so complicated and so psychological as to have to be completely translated for retelling to children, or they are so heavy with sentimentality and vague references to the beauties of nature as to be completely uninformative. Dr. Stowell has stated normal scientific facts of nature's system of reproduction from plant life, bird life, fish life, insect life, and animal life to human life.

"The Mirrors of Washington" continue to excite that portion of our census which is lumped under the caption, "the reading public." And the mystery of their authorship is still intact. Edward G. Lowry was accused of writing it by the Philadelphia Public Ledger. The accusation made him extremely indignant because at the moment of the appearance of "The Mirrors of Washington" he was finishing a volume of "Washington Close-Ups," which will be published by the Houghton Mifflin company, a book which he says will be signed and for which he will assume open responsibility. One suspicion which I share with you—it came from a man high in journalistic affairs—is that The Mirrors is the work of John Callan O'Laughlin.

Kenneth L. Roberts, author of the only amusing book on Europe after the war, "Europe's Morning After," is in Kennebunkport, Maine, for the summer. The other day he collided with a horse drawn vehicle and spilled a few of the assorted citizens, and as a result was haled into court. He wrote about it to the publicity department of his publishers this way: "We aim to please. On receipt of your letter asking for news, I at once arranged to kill a few local residents so that your wants might be satisfied."

David R. Francis, United States ambassador to Russia from April, 1915, to November, 1918, ends his exhaustive volume on "Russia from the American Embassy" with this appeal: "Russia was the chief victim of the world war. We owe her a duty which gratitude should prompt us to discharge. But beyond that, if we could but realize it, we owe it to ourselves, if we would preserve our institutions, to eradicate this foul monster—bolshevism—branch, trunk, and root. We owe it to society, we owe it to humanity, if we would save society from barbarism and humanity from slaughter. America saved civilization and thus became the moral leader of the world. Let us retain this leadership by saving Russia, because we are the only government on the face of the earth that can do it. The league of nations is in active operation, and forty-eight or forty-nine governments have joined it. Let us join also. By that course we can save Russia and put an end to bolshevism."

"Ernest Renan," by Lewis Freeman Mott, is a book which is of great interest and importance to any one interested in the author of the almost devastating "Life of Jesus." Before Mr. Mott undertook a critical biography of Renan, a complete account of his career and his mental and literary development was hard to find in English. This isn't inspired biography—like Lytton Strachey's "Queen Victoria"—but it is very good biography.

HALL CAINE AT 68.

AFTER refraining from print for eight years—a record almost miraculous for one so proficient and so zealous in auto-exploitation—the chronicler of the loves, sorrows, seductions and redemptions of the sturdy Manx presents to the world, with not quite the usual fanfare, another 450-pager entitled "The Master of Man." This is his first book since "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," a warm preachment on which, so the author said, the Bishop of London had collaborated with him "in a certain sense." The bishop replied by asking the Manxman "in a certain sense" where he got that stuff, or, rather, to be more faithful to the episcopal style, saying through his chaplain that he had neither read nor recommended the book and that the use of his name for advertising purposes was "wholly and entirely unwarranted." Since then Hall Caine's press-agentry has been more subdued. Below Mr. Gabriel takes to the new tale, saying that he likes the way Caine gives him a character vividly in a few strokes, though he acknowledges that a certain degree of zest has gone out of such similes as "burns like fire" and "cuts like a knife."

Why I Fall for Hall Caine's Latest

BY CHARLES GABRIEL JR.

AFTER eight years of more or less willing bond service to Britain, during which he devoted his pen to innumerable English bids for American interest, Sir Thomas Henry Hall Caine has emerged with another novel, his twelfth, "The Master of Man," announced by the J. B. Lippincott company this week.

The position Caine so long had held in the field of literature was undoubtedly undermined by his last precedent novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me." Many there were who openly asserted that Caine, in that trashy story, so evidently written with a finger on the popular pulse, had lost forever his great talents.

That such was not the case happily is evident in "The Master of Man." For while it is not so great, so elementally appealing, as "The Eternal City" or perhaps "The Christian," it is quite in the masterly vein that made Caine a dominant figure.

The style is pure, strong, and rich, now grown more rounded, yet not entirely unmarked with that which, with no evil intentions, might be called at least rhetorical. There are none of the loose ends his habitual rewriting occasionally left in the past.

"The Master," however, is perilously near a repetition of "The Manxman." Laid in the Isle of Man (from whence the title), which, with neighboring Cumbria, Caine has patronized so well, the theme is one he has made standard. The grand, old lay Deemster is again revived. His son, Victor Stowell, and the latter's chum, Alick Gell, are the Damon and Pythias. Stowell commits the unpardonable sin against a girl far below him in station and his fate thereafter is linked with hers.

Eventually Victor becomes his father's successor as Deemster and he must hear the trial for murder of the woman he has wronged, who accidentally had slain her infant. Then, shall he follow the easier path or tell all and bring his life down in ruin? The dénouement is too intricate, too fine for such rehashing as it might get here. Indeed, the whole tale ever is complex, with many deviating threads to follow.

Fenella, the woman whose love runs through the maze always and ultimately as the redemption motive, is quite better than Rotha, Greta, Mona, those who preceded her. But she is still quite unconsciously a Helen. Greeba in "The Bondman" was a flirt and treated Jason badly; Kate in "The Manxman" played a more decided and intricate part; Fenella is effective more as an ideal motivation and is not a participant actively in the growth of Victor's soul until the final scenes. Therefore she is new to Caine.

Stowell is the outstanding figure and in him Caine has accomplished at last, what he heretofore has failed to do, the creation of a personage that will live and cause his book to survive. Stowell is a man we shall remember. For once Caine has had the courage of his unconventionalities and Victor Stowell well may stand but little below Jean Valjean when the second readings of Caine by his contemporaries shall have merged with the first readings of posterity.

Caine is the surviving mentor of a school the founders of which were Dickens, Hugo and Tolstoi. They drew their interests and appeals from the contrasts of nature and fate, from the riddles of the painful earth in its relations to human purposes: their results from the conflict of duties, afflictions, virtues and vices. They were always at "high pressure." Dickens masked this with his immense humoristic fantasy; Hugo with his daemonic power of imagery and phrase; Tolstoi with the exoticism of the world he brought to his western readers.

At 68, Hall Caine, the son of a blacksmith, yet the greatest in his metier after his illustrious exemplars, has written a book that stands head and shoulders above all other novels of the year. He will end a school that surely produced greatness but also a certain uniformity of expression and general form that "The Master of Man" does not escape.

Besant twenty-six years ago said of "The Scapegoat": "It may make the year memorable." That is true of "The Master of Man."

IMPERIOUS VICTORIA, QUEEN AND WOMAN

BY LYTTON STRACHEY.

III.

AS TIME passed the less pleasant qualities of the queen revealed themselves more often and more seriously. There were signs of an imperious, a peremptory temper, an egotism that was strong and hard. It was noticed that the palace etiquette, far from relaxing, grew ever more and more inflexible.

The slightest infringements of the freezing rules of regularity and deference were invariably and immediately visited by the sharp and haughty glances of the queen. Yet her majesty's eyes, crushing as they could be, were less crushing than her mouth. The self-will depicted in those small, projecting teeth and that small, receding chin was of a more dismaying kind than that which a powerful jaw betokens; it was a self-will imperturbable, impenetrable; unintelligent; a self-will dangerously akin to obstinacy. And the obstinacy of monarchs is not as that of other men.

Within two years of her accession storm clouds which from the first had been dimly visible on the horizon gathered and burst. Victoria's relations with her mother had not improved. The Duchess of Kent, still surrounded by all the galling appearances of filial consideration, remained in Buckingham palace, a discarded figure, powerless and inconsolable.

Sir John Conroy (her mother's majordomo, whom Victoria had discovered in familiarities with her mother), banished from the presence of the queen, still presided over the duchess' household, and the hostilities of Kensington continued unabated in the new surroundings. Lady Flora Hastings (lady in waiting to the queen's mother and enemy of Baroness Lehzen, the queen's favorite) still cracked her malicious jokes; the animosity of the Baroness Lehzen was still unappeased.

Prince Albert.

One day Lady Flora found the joke was turned against her. Early in 1839, traveling in the suite of the duchess, she had returned from Scotland in the same carriage with Sir John. A change in her figure became the subject of an unseemly jest; tongues wagged; and the jest grew serious. She consulted Sir James Clark, the royal physician, and after the consultation Sir James let his tongue wag, too. On this the scandal flared up sky high. Every one was talking; the baroness was not surprised; the duchess rallied tumultuously to the support of her lady; the queen was informed.

At last the extraordinary expedient of a medical examination was resorted to, during which Sir James according to Lady Flora, behaved with brutal rudeness, while a second doctor was extremely polite. Finally, both physicians signed a certificate exculpating the lady.

But this was by no means the end of the business. The Hastings family, socially a very powerful one, threw itself into the fray with all the fury of outraged pride and injured innocence; Lord Hastings insisted upon an audience of the queen, wrote to the papers, and demanded the dismissal of Sir James Clark. The queen expressed her regret to Lady Flora, but Sir James Clark was not dismissed.

Victoria Rebels Against a Change in the Royal Household.

THE tide of opinion turned violently against the queen and her advisers; high society was disgusted, the public at large was indignant at the ill treatment of Lady Flora. By the end of March the popularity, so radiant and so abundant, with which the young sovereign had begun her reign, had entirely disappeared.

The Hastings were Tories, and Lord Melbourne and the court were attacked by the Tory press in unmeasured language. Early in May, 1839, the ministers were visibly tottering; on a vital point of policy they could only secure a majority of five in the house of commons; they determined to resign. When Victoria heard the news she burst into tears. Was it possible, then, that all was over? Was she, indeed, about to see Lord M. for the last time?

Lord M. came. The conversation was touching and prolonged, but it could only end in one way—the queen must send for the Duke of Wellington. When, next morning, the duke came, he advised her majesty to send for Sir Robert Peel. She was in "a state of dreadful grief," but she swallowed down her tears and braced herself, with royal resolution, for the odious, odious interview.

Peel had decided that a change would be necessary in the composition of the royal household; the queen must no longer be entirely surrounded by the wives and sisters of his opponents. When this matter was touched upon the queen had intimated that she wished her household to remain unchanged. The question was a complicated and subtle one, and it had never arisen before; but subsequent constitutional practice has determined that a queen regnant must accede to the wishes of her prime minister as to the personnel of the female part of her household.

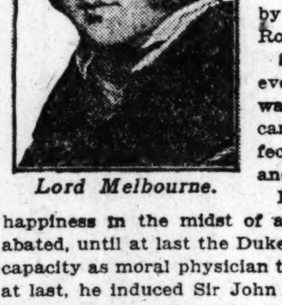
The queen would not be soothed, and still less would she take advice. When, next morning, Peel appeared again she was ready for action. He began by detailing the cabinet appointments, and then he added, "Now, ma'am, about the ladies"—when the queen sharply interrupted him.

"I cannot give up any of my ladies," she said.

"What, ma'am!" said Sir Robert, "does your majesty mean to retain them all?"

"All," said the queen.

It was in vain that Peel pleaded and argued; in vain that he spoke, growing every moment more pompous and uneasy, of the constitution, and queens regnant, and the public interest. She was adamant; but he, too, through all his embarrassment, showed no signs of yielding, and when at last he left her nothing had been decided—the whole formation of the government was hanging in the wind.



Lord Melbourne.

Sir Robert returned and told her that if she insisted upon retaining all her ladies he could not form a government. She replied that she would send him her final decision in writing. Next morning the late Whig cabinet met. Lord Melbourne read to them the queen's letters, and the group of elderly politicians were overcome by an extraordinary wave of enthusiasm. The intensity of her determination swept them headlong down the stream of her desire. They unanimously felt that "it was impossible to abandon such a queen and such a woman." They took the unprecedented course of advising the queen by letter to put an end to her negotiation with Sir Robert Peel.

She did so; all was over; she had triumphed. That evening there was a ball at the palace. Every one was present. "Peel and the Duke of Wellington came by looking very much put out." She was perfectly happy; Lord M. was prime minister once more, and he was by her side.

Happiness had returned with Lord M., but it was happiness in the midst of agitation. The domestic imbroglio continued unabated, until at last the Duke of Wellington was called in once again in his old capacity as moral physician to the family. Something was accomplished when, at last, he induced Sir John Conroy to resign his place about the Duchess of Kent and leave the palace forever; something more when he persuaded the CAMPUS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

[From Will Irwin's "The Next War."]

These and other buildings, thirty-eight in all, represent an investment of $8,000,000. The university has about 500 professors and instructors, 10,000 students, and graduates annually about 1,000 young men and women.

At present costs two or three such universities, each a permanent institution, could be established for the amount that one ephemeral capital ship now costs.

The United States has begun the construction of sixteen such capital ships.

WILL IRWIN, good man and good writer, has written a vigorous, concrete, and interesting book against that premier folly of mankind, war. It is not a pacifist whine nor a piece of visionary rhetoric, but a dramatic assembling of dreadful facts and of thrice dreadful prospects—in especial the prospects, for its title is "The Next War." It contains 161 pages, nine pictures, and it costs $1.50, which is cheap for a Dutton book. It is worth buying, it is worth reading, and it ought to do good. But you remember that "learned friend" of Mérimée, the statesman and the historian of poor Carmen, who told him that on the Egyptian sarcophagi are often engraved these two words: Life—War.

THOMAS STARR KING.

TWO mountain peaks serenely lording it over regions separated by almost the width of this continent bear the name of Starr King, a statue of him stands in the Golden Gate park of San Francisco, and his tomb, situate by his former church and nobly isolated, overlooks a busy thoroughfare in that city; Bret Harte commemorated him in the lovely poems entitled "Relieving Guard" and "On a Pen of Starr King," and Whittier, in some of the tenderest lines he ever wrote, composed his threnody. But this remarkable man, who, not on the battlefield but on the platform, saved a commonwealth to the Union in its most critical hour, has waited fifty-seven years for a formal biography. Such a volume now comes from the Beacon Press of Boston. It is reviewed in the next column.

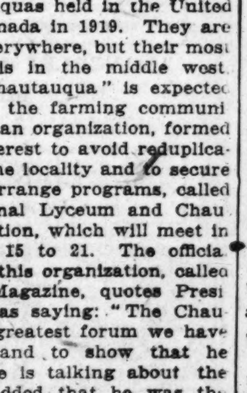
"The Most American Thing in America"

Theodore Roosevelt

BY REV. G. A. MAC WHORTER.

IT WAS Theodore Roosevelt who, after four visits to Chautauqua, said: "Chautauqua is the most American thing in America." And, as if to emphasize the distinctly national importance of Chautauqua, no less than six Presidents of the United States have thought it worth their while to visit Chautauqua, either before, or during, or after their terms of office. The half dozen national executives who have made pilgrimages to Chautauqua in New York state were Presidents Grant, Hayes, Garfield, McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft.

As the Chautauqua approaches its golden jubilee, "The Story of Chautauqua," written by one who is a veteran among its leaders, thoroughly acquainted with the movement since its foundation, and competent through his own experience as well as by literary ability to narrate its history, we welcome Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut's 400-odd page graphic account of this truly American institution.



Bishop Vincent.

"The Story of Chautauqua" is dedicated to the honored memory of the two founders of Chautauqua, Lewis Miller and John Heyl Vincent, and it was the latter who said: "Chautauqua is a place, an idea, and a force." Chautauqua as a place receives an adequate, intimate description by Dr. Hurlbut, who has known it so well for the last half century, but the better part of "The Story of Chautauqua" is rightly given up to "Chautauqua as an idea and a force." And it was in the lives of the two founders that the Chautauqua idea became a force in the world through their coördinated plans and labors, the idea, as it is now realized being: education for everybody everywhere, and in every department of knowledge, inspired by a Christian faith.

Official information given Dr. Hurlbut states that there were 10,000 chain Chautauquas held in the United States and Canada in 1919. They are to be found everywhere, but their most popular field is in the middle west, where "the Chautauqua" is expected every year by the farming communities. There is an organization, formed for mutual interest to avoid reduplication in the same locality and to secure workers and arrange programs, called the International Lyceum and Chautauqua association, which will meet in Chicago Sept. 15 to 21. The official publication of this organization, called the Lyceum Magazine, quotes President Harding as saying: "The Chautauqua is the greatest forum we have in America," and to show that he knows what he is talking about the statement is added that he was the president of the Marion, O., Chautauqua, toured two Chautauqua circuits, giving lectures, and recommended the Chautauqua movement to England, writing: "I can well believe it will be cordially welcomed in England, and I am confident that it will accomplish the same splendid results there which we so willingly accredited to it here in the United States."

Dr. Hurlbut believes that the mother-Chautauqua still stands supreme, because it was established by two men of vision, that in its plans, from first to last, there was a unique blending of religion, education, and recreation, and that the aim of Chautauqua has never been to make money. And, finally, "it has remained, unshaken in its loyalty to the Christian religion and penetrated through and through with the Christian spirit, without flying the flag or wearing the badge of any one denomination of Christians. These have been the principles that placed Chautauqua at the front in its beginnings and have kept it at the front through forty-eight years."

Thomas Starr King—Not Forgotten, But Only Half Remembered

THOMAS STARR KING, Patriot and Preacher, by Charles W. Wendte; large octavo, pp. xvii.+226; 5 full page plates. No index. The Beacon Press, Boston.

It has been said that a woman ought not to sing unless her heart is breaking; and it is certainly true that no man can rise to the heights of oratory unless his soul is on fire. Mind must commune with mind and soul must talk to soul, or there is no oratory. Here is the force that shakes the continents and thrills the nations, that rides upon the centuries and sports with the ages. One great speech made to an intelligent audience in favor of the rights of man will compensate for a life of labor, will crown a career with glory, and give a joy that is born of the divinities.

JOHN P. ALTGELD.

BY EYE WITNESS.

WHEN the fathers and grandfathers of the Americans who went to the world war were making up their minds to fight the Civil war Thomas Starr King swept across this country like a pillar of flame.

By Garrison, Wendell Phillips, Henry Ward Beecher, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, Theodore Parker, Thomas Starr King and their colleagues the American slave was freed on the American lecture platform. By utterance, now fiery, now argumentative, and always insistent, those men formulated a mighty body of northern opinion which required only such episodes as the marching of the shackled fugitive Anthony Burns through the streets of Boston, the indecent assault upon Sumner, and the execution of John Brown to hammer it into the sword of wrath. Excepting Higginson, none of the six premier platform gladiators here named fought in the field; but none the less did they, single-handed, by the power of enormous conviction, imparted with extraordinary force and witchery, engender the war. They did it in schoolhouses, halls, and churches, and, most tellingly of all, in that forum which in those days was called "the lyceum platform," and of which the Chautauqua is today in some degree the successor.

The prodigious influence of oratory was never more appallingly or more beneficially demonstrated. Those men talked a race into freedom and half a continent into war.

They deserve to be remembered as sublime expositors of moral force, unarmed, but steadily, terribly, from the early '40s to the '60s, forging arms and creating armies.

All of them save Thomas Starr King are vividly remembered and their deeds have been copiously recorded. He, to this generation, save as it is represented by the city which was the scene of his last parochial labors, is a tradition, rather splendid but not definite. The reader comes frequently upon his name in the journals and biographies of his great contemporaries, and always the reference is fond, enthusiastic, laudatory. Always his spell is recognized, but to us it is not vividly communicated. That, perhaps, is because the spell he exercised, potent though it was and needed though it was, was evanescent. It was largely the spell of a personality. In fine, to that grim propaganda of liberation and of conflict which was to effect liberation, he brought not alone splendor of utterance but humor and charm. Garrison was grim and logical; Phillips blistered and burned; Higginson argued; Beecher inspired. But Thomas Starr King charmed. He sent them into the vineyard laughing. For him they went to war with a song on their lips.

To Edward Everett Hale he once said that a popular lyceum lecture was made of five parts of sense and five of nonsense. "There are only five men in America," he added, "who know how to mix them—and I think I am one of the five." Dr. Hale's comment (in "James Russell Lowell and His Friends") was, "Other people did not detect the nonsense."

The truth is, of course, that the "nonsense" was an instant and humorous readiness in the turning of difficult situations and in the presentation of serious material.

An instance of this is found in the readable new life—the first formal and adequate biography of King—which Charles W. Wendte has written, and which has waited fifty-seven years to be written.

Wendell Phillips had delivered in a New Hampshire town his excoriating and inflammatory anti-slavery lecture, and, as usual, it had left a divided and angry community. The next lecturer in the course was Starr King, and on the night of his appearance the contentions of the pro-slavery and anti-slavery elements of the town found voice in the hall. Even riot threatened. King looked on until the row ceased to be amusing, then rose, and, in his grand, vibrant, youthful tones, and with laughing eyes, said:

"Ladies and gentlemen! My name is Thomas Starr King. I have come from Boston to read you a lecture tonight on 'The Laws of Disorder.' I am sure that you will agree that this is a very opportune time for me to begin."

Tact and good nature won, and the audience, laughing now, settled down to listen.

The same incident with which Phillips would have lashed the slaveholders and the secessionists King would turn into a joke on them—and still make it not less effective as chastisement.

Thus:

On a Columbia river steamer he heard a man declaiming in behalf of secession and slavery. In his next address for the Union, King used the incident—but he infused it with laughter more terrible than wrath. "For an instant," he said to the audience, "I was possessed by a wild impulse to seize the traitor by the throat and hurl him into the stream below. But I refrained. For I remembered that its waters were clean."

Though he tried not to make a practice of it, he was upon occasion awesome in vituperation. Once his impassioned plea for liberty and union was interrupted by a solitary hiss. He paused an instant, then said in measured tones, "There are two kinds of animals that express themselves by a hiss—the goose and the snake." Then, striding forward and pointing, he cried: "Behold the Copperhead!"

Not in the strain of invective, but none the less devastating, was his estimate of the Fabian McClellan. To Dr. Bellows, the soldiers' comfort administrator of the Civil war, King wrote: "Little Mac still hugs the Maryland shore. . . . He would do to invest Gibraltar, or bombard Teneriffe, or attack any fossil concern that couldn't change outline, but a foe that has alertness and two ideas an hour beats him after he has won a victory. . . . And Halleck—he is a man of the reddest tape."

Starr King had astonishing fecundity and versatility. He could do parish work and patriotic work and lyceum work; could travel far and often through the country at a time when the rigors of travel and the dreadfulness of inns almost killed scholars, and he could lecture on Socrates, on Goethe, on "Washington and the Union," on "Webster and the Constitution," on "Lexington and the New Struggle for Liberty," on "Substance and Show"—on almost any subject, literary, social, political, scenic or religious, provided they would only give him time enough to dictate between eight and nine thousand words to a stenographer. That means twenty large octavo pages of print. For his audiences it meant being held spellbound, as the saying is, for two hours and a quarter.

He did all this in forty years, for he died untimely. [Born in 1824; died in San Francisco, 1864.]

They used to say of him that he was "constitutionally hilarious." He was, although a very devout man, too. Why, he could touch even the law of gravitation and the sublime pageantry of the firmament with hilarity! This biography by Mr. Wendte sent me to books that contain specimens of Starr King's oratory, and in the lecture on "Substance and Show" I came upon this:

"See what a sermon astronomy preaches as to the substantial power of invisible things. All the constellations are kept from falling by an impalpable energy that uses no muscles and no masonry. Archimedes said, 'Give me a foot of ground outside the globe to stand upon, and I will make a lever that will lift the world.' The invisible lever of gravitation, however, without any fulcrum or purchase, does lift the globe, and makes it waltz, too, with its blond lunar partner, twelve hundred miles a minute to the music of the sun—aye, and heaves sun and systems and the milky way in majestic cotillions on its ethereal floor."

There may be an infusion there of what Starr King called the "five parts nonsense," but it charmed and stimulated your fathers and your grandfathers and made life more spacious for them.

The same lecture closes with an apostrophe in which he bids his hearers—it was in New York—take their stand, not on a physical eminence to view the splendors of their city, but on a spiritual height, thence to behold the realities which the fleshly tenement of mankind conceals. Then he said:

"Thence would we see the churches of our spiritual city, and over them, kindred but superior, with more intricate grace and capacious measure, the cathedral spirits, like such as Channing, whose voices are bells that call to worship, and whose thoughts, like spires, are always lifted above the world, conversing with light and God, rebuking the vanity of the earth, and shedding over all below the promise of immortality."

Such melodious and stately phrasing it was, and such rich and novel imagery (vide, "cathedral spirits" and "conversing with light and God") that moved Bret Harte to wistful tribute when he looked upon the pen of the dead Starr King. "On a Pen of Starr King" the poem is called, and thus begins:

> This is the reed the dead musician dropped,
> With tuneful magic in its sheath still hidden;
> The prompt allegro of its music stopped,
>   Its melodies unbidden.

And then Harte, having in the second stanza paid his tribute to his friend's sonorous public utterances—"an organ pipe of thunder"—commemorated in the next the soft, endearing attributes that made King the darling of the old lyceum audiences:

> His pen! what humbler memories cling about
> Its golden curves! what shapes and laughing graces
> Slipped from its point when his full heart went out
>   In smiles and courtly phrases!

The Theaters

AFTER three solid years in New York, continuous for the play and nearly so for the star, Frank Bacon and "Lightnin' " will finally reach Chicago, making a midweek opening at the Blackstone theater next Thursday night. The play is under the authorship of the star and Winchell Smith.

This is the third time it has been promised for Chicago, having been announced at the Grand for the beginning of the 1919-20 season and again at the Blackstone last fall. The third attempt looks as though it would be successful.

On March 17, 1920, "Lightnin' " broke the record for consecutive performances held by Charles Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown," which was 658 and which had stood for a quarter of a century. Then the comedy proceeded to create new records and has not stopped until the mark now stands at a grand total of 1,291 times, 153 weeks, and a calendar total of three years and a day.

Mr. Bacon's support will be with few exceptions the same company which went with him throughout the run. The principal players will be Jessie Pringle, Jane Oakes, Jason Robards, Paul Stanton, Thomas Maclarnie, E. J. Blunkall, Sam Colt, William F. Granger, George Thompson, John Hamilton, James C. Lane, Mildred Booth, Margaret Campbell, Minnie Palmer, May Duryea, Julio Brown, and Dorothy Blackburn.

The week is fairly full of openings for this time of year. In addition to "Lightnin' " Grant Mitchell will begin a season at the Cort tonight in "The Champion," a comedy of social climbers and pugilism, by Thomas Louden and A. E. Thomas. The cast includes Ann Andrews, Adria Hill, Desiree Stempel, Henrietta Tilghman, Arthur Elliott, Frank Westerton and others.

"The Broken Wing," which has to do with aviation, will commence operations at the Olympic tonight. It is a comedy by Paul Dickey and Charles W. Goddard.

Further joys include the reopening of the Palace Music hall to vaudeville tomorrow afternoon, with Kitty Doner as the bill topper, and Harry Langdon, Gene Greene and others assisting in the entertainment.

If in search of additional diversion, you may go out to the Marigold tomorrow evening, where a new show called "Autumn Fancies" will be presented.

When Florence Reed appears as the star of "The Mirage" at the Great Northern next week, Edgar Selwyn will have two plays of his own authorship running in Chicago at the same time. "The Love Chef" is the other.

Mr. Selwyn has been coming in and going out of Chicago at a lively rate lately. He was here during the week to see Leo Carrillo get started in "The Love Chef," then took the first train back to New York to finish Miss Reed's rehearsals.

In order that time may not hang heavily on his hands, he is also rehearsing the cast in Louis Verneuil's "Daniel," which he translated from the French. As soon as Miss Reed gets under way he will take up Olga Petrova, in "The Silver Peacock." If all goes well by Thanksgiving he will start on a vacation.

Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper, appearing together for the first time after more than a generation of rivalry in the field of light opera, are on their way to the Illinois theater for three weeks of "Erminie," to which, from time to time, Mr. Wilson has had recourse ever since its American premiere, back in 1886.

He has not acted in Chicago in more than ten years: his last public appearance here was in his own comedy, "A Bachelor's Baby," in the spring of 1911, at Powers'. As recently as two years ago, however, he was for two or three weeks the subject of daily newspaper articles in his capacity as director of the actors' strike.

Mr. Hopper has been a more frequent professional visitant, and is fresh in the memory of those playgoers who manage to see everything for his performances as Old Bill in "The Better 'Ole," in the "Passing Show," which carried the 1916 label, and, in 1915, in the season of Gilbert and Sullivan, which he gave in the Auditorium. Mr. Hopper is, says his literary precursor, to leave the stage after the tour in "Erminie" and take to lecture platforms.

"The O'Brien Girl," announced at the Grand for this time, is not coming for the present. What with discussions with the Actors' Equity association and a reported prosperous run in Boston, it has been decided to leave that entertainment where it is. Consequently "The Bat" will move from the Princess to the Grand, and "Up in the Clouds," doing nicely at the Garrick, will continue to do so for a few weeks longer.

Looking at them a week or more away, one may expect "The Gold Diggers" at Powers'; "The Bad Man" at the Princess, with Holbrook Blinn taking important part in the proceedings; Eddie Cantor in "The Midnight Rounders" at the Apollo, and Florence Reed in "The Mirage" at the Great Northern, which thereby turns back from vaudeville to drama.

Many Stars and Good Plays on Tour This Year

The New York Times.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—[Special.]—So many prognostications have concerned themselves with the plays and players that we are to behold during the season that it is worth while noting that there will also be numerous celebrated performers whom we shall not see. One of the penalties of a New York success is the necessity of carrying the successful play hither and thither throughout the country.

Ethel Barrymore, for example, will spend another year on tour in "Declasse"; Mrs. Fiske will carry "Wake Up, Jonathan" on tour; Gilda Varesi will be seen in the provinces in "Enter, Madame"; Holbrook Blinn must devote himself to "The Bad Man" on tour.

Further, New York will not see Ruth Chatterton this season, for she will be engaged in playing "Mary Rose" out of town. Henry Miller and Blanche Bates will be occupied again with "The Famous Mrs. Fair," to the exclusion of a New York appearance; Margaret Anglin has the successful "Woman of Bronze" on her hands; George M. Cohan, taking one consideration with another, is not likely to appear on the New York stage this season; Frank Bacon will be busy with "Lightnin' " in Chicago, and Fay Bainter will devote herself to the far stretches with "East Is West."

Grant Mitchell is good for a season on tour in "The Champion"; Roland Young will be on the road with "Rollo's Wild Oats"; George Sidney with "Welcome, Stranger" on his hands, hardly can bother with New York for another season; Florence Reed will be acting "The Mirage" on the road; Arthur Byron will go on tour with "The Ghost Between."

No plans have been announced for Mr. and Mrs. Coburn (now that Mr. Cohan has given up "The Bronx Express"); Patricia Collinge, Robert Hilliard, William Gillette (who is vaguely reported to be writing a play for his own use), and Grace George.

Musically speaking, Fred Stone, Willie Howard, Francis Wilson, De Wolf Hopper, Frank Tinney, and Ed Wynn are unlikely to tread the metropolitan boards for another season.

Mr. Belasco promises that he will have three of his stars in town simultaneously this season—Miss Ulrich, in "Kiki"; Miss Starr, in "The Easiest Way," and Mr. Warfield, in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

Although it attracted huge patronage and gave great promise during its tryout weeks in Asbury Park and Atlantic City, William A. Brady has temporarily laid aside "Drifting" as a play for Alice Brady. Miss Brady, accordingly, will tour again in "Forever After." "Drifting," according to the report, will meantime be rewritten. It is a play by Daisy Andrews and John Colton, and has already been made over in part by Owen Davis.

Up to the middle of last week, all but a handful of the new shows were distressingly weak, and tales were being told that would cause the hair to curl. One new comedy, for example, played to a total of $2,300 during the week before last.

The considerable number of failures among the early productions points, it is said, to an active October. Even at present, theaters are far from scarce, but they are still expensive.

O. P. Heggie will tour in "Happy-Go-Lucky" for the first half of the season, and will then have a new play.

Charles S. Gilpin will tour in "The Emperor Jones" this season.

Mr. Dillingham, who seems to be out to acquire all the plays now running in London, has snared "The Adventure of Ambrose Applejohn," which Charles Hawtrey is now acting overseas.

"The Pink Slip," with Bert Williams heading the cast, was announced for the Apollo on Sept. 6, but the out of town tryout revealed trouble ahead, and the booking has therefore been canceled. There will be extensive revi-

Ravinia Soon to Close Its Gates Till Next Summer

By Edward Moore

ONLY a few days more now and the Ravinia Opera company will have packed up its costumes and grease paint, and departed until next June. This is in effect the last week, though in order to make good measure Mr. Eckstein holds out promise of entertainment until the night of Labor day, Sept. 5.

It has been a pleasant season, with many good things accomplished—one of the kind that the beholder is glad to see in operation and sorry when it is over. Twenty-seven different operas have been given, or will have been given, when "Lohengrin," the last on the list, is sung next Wednesday night. It is a record of which neither of the major American companies that operate in the winter need be ashamed. When you think that the Ravinia company is small, the stage smaller, and the season ten weeks and three days long, likewise that the ardent band on the north shore has maintained a rather astonishingly high artistic average, all concerned are entitled to a considerable increase in chest expansion.

Ravinia has done so well the last few years that certain other American cities are beginning to pay it the sincerest form of flattery in the way of going and doing likewise. St. Louis has its municipal opera, where they run more to operetta than the sterner form of music drama; Cincinnati has had a company under operation this summer; Baltimore plans to push into the operatic limelight next season. At the same time Ravinia will probably remain unique.

For one item, it would take a good many years to duplicate the physical surroundings of Ravinia. It is out in the country where they have woodsy shade, and trees are not to be had offhand for the asking. The artists who live around the park all summer, the patrons who go there for individual visits are vacationing for the time being, and there are physical and artistic benefits all around.

The one thing that lessens the regret over the season's closing is an explicit promise that there will be another season of the same persuasive kind next summer.

The Operatic Schedule

The week's schedule at Ravinia:

This afternoon—Chicago Symphony orchestra in concert. Enrico Tramonti and Alexander Zukovsky, soloists; Louis Hasselmans, conductor.

Tonight—"Traviata," with Florence Macbeth, Charles Hackett, Millo Picco, and others.

Tomorrow night—Film drama; Anita Stewart in "Sowing the Wind."

Tuesday night—"The Barber of Seville," with Miss Macbeth, Mario Chamlee, Picco, and Leon Rothier.

Wednesday night — "Lohengrin," first time at Ravinia, with Marie Sundelius, Morgan Kingston, Graham Marr, Alice Gentle, Louis D'Angelo, and Picco.

Thursday afternoon—Children's concert; lecture by Mr. and Mrs. Marx E. Oberndorfer and request program by Chicago Symphony orchestra; followed by "The Butetrfly's Ball," by Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, directed by Jean Van Vliessingen.

Thursday night—"Mme. Butterfly," with Anna Fitziu, Miss Gentle, Chamlee, Marr, and others.

Friday night—"Zaza," with Frances Peralta, Miss Gentle, Kingston, Riccardo Stracciari, and others.

Saturday afternoon—Chicago Symphony orchestra in concert.

Saturday night—Triple bill; balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet, with Miss Sundelius, Hackett, Margery Maxwell, and Paolo Ananian; "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Miss Peralta, Chamlee, Picco, and Philine Falco, and third act of "Manon," with Miss Fitziu, Hackett, and Rothier.

An Operatic Tower of Babel.

Get out your conversation books and begin studying. The last word from Mary Garden is to the effect that when Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Snow Maiden" is brought out at the Auditorium this winter it will be sung in the original Russian. This may possibly also apply to Prokofieff's "The Love of Three Oranges."

There has been a growing suspicion for several seasons that the more unintelligible a libretto may be the more artistic will be the opera. This late announcement would seem to confirm the idea.

The Chicago Opera association, will undoubtedly advance along the Parnassian path until it is ready to bring out Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" in the original Bohemian tongue. There are also some operas from Hungary and Roumania that have never been sung in this country. Thus do ideals keep constantly ahead of the truly artistic.

In the meantime some of the artists of the Chicago company are making valiant names for themselves. Octave Dua, who went from here to the Metropolitan and is coming back this season, is just now the idol of his native Belgium. He is due to sing later in Paris and London, where he is known, but just now he is being known as "the American singer."

William Beck, also announced to return to Chicago, has been electrifying Copenhagen in "Tosca," "Cavalleria," "Pagliacci," and other operas that he never sang around here. They say there that he is the greatest baritone ever heard in Denmark since Battistini.

Talk of the Tuneful.

There is hope for the American composer. Half a dozen cash prizes are open in competitions running anywhere from Nov. 1 to April of next year.

The Chicago North Shore Festival association offers $1,000 for an orchestral composition. Carl D. Kinsey, 624 South Michigan avenue, will receive manuscripts.

De Pauw university, Greencastle, Ind., through its school of music, will give $50 for an organ composition three to five pages long.

The Matinée Music club of Philadelphia offers $200 for a dramatic or operetta setting of Longfellow's poem, "The Masque of Pandora," with solo parts, women's choruses, and score for string orchestra with harp and piano. Send your scores to Clara Z. Estabrook, 620 West Cliveden avenue, Germantown, Pa.

The Paderewski fund will give $1,000 for the best symphony and $500 for the best piece of chamber music. Do your corresponding with Mrs. Elizabeth C. Allen, New England Conservatory of Music, Huntington avenue and Gainsborough street, Boston.

Mana-Zucca has $500 to hand out for a quintet of piano and strings. M. Gebert, secretary of the American Music Optimists, 4 West 130th street, New York, has the matter in charge. The name of the organization sounds as though it maintained unswerving, not to say relentless, hope over the musical situation.

Mrs. Frederick Sprague Coolidge renews her annual prize of $1,000 for a chamber music piece for the Berkshire festival next year. Manuscripts are to be sent to Hugo Kortschak, care of Institute of Musical Art, 120 Claremont avenue, New York. A string quartet is desired.

Finally, the California Federation of Music Clubs will consider chamber music of any description, and also the words and music of a state song, but here the competition is open to Californians, or at least composers who have been sun-kissed for at least a year.

Audrey Proudfoot, a Chicago violinist, has been engaged as a faculty member of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music.

Amelita Galli-Curci is breaking into her summer vacation by doing a bit of concert singing. Ocean Grove, N. J., and Winona Lake, Ind., were the two places where she appeared. Several other resorts invited her, but she declined further activity.

Clara Butt, the English contralto, is coming back to this country for a concert tour after an absence of eight years. For sheer, thrilling beauty of tone, her voice used to surpass anything in memory, and there is nothing in recent English reviews to indicate that she has at all fallen off.

Paderewski is apparently ready to abandon his vocation of California farmer. His ranch near Paso Robles, in that state, is to be offered for sale at auction Sept. 8. The property comprises 2,544 acres, and the price is estimated to be somewhere in the neighborhood of $495,000.

There will be an interesting revival during the children's concert at Ravinia next Thursday afternoon. "The Butterfly's Ball," by Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, is down for performance. It was written by Dr. Smith over forty years ago, and brought out at McVicker's theater in 1880. Dr. Smith, now 86 years old, will be a member of Thursday afternoon's audience.

Fritz Kreisler will stay on the other side of the Atlantic until after Christmas. His first recital of the season is bulletined for New York Jan. 6.

William Weil, conductor of the Chicago band, will conclude the Grant park series of concerts Wednesday night with a program addressed to the B. P. O. E.

sions and not a little recasting before "The Pink Slip" will come to town.

Mr. Woods is making ready an opus entitled "The Reckoning," a play by Marjorie Chase that was tried out in his behalf by a stock company in Union Hill last season. Dorothy Shoemaker, who acted the leading rôle in the stock company, will be given her chance on Broadway in the play—a rare occurrence, by the way, despite the opportunities with which Broadway is popularly supposed to be paved. George Gaul and Felix Krembs will also be in the cast. The burden of the play falls upon these three.

John Meehan, general stage director for Mr. Cohan until the recent upheaval, will get under way as a producer in Baltimore on Sept. 12, when he will present a play entitled "A Man in the Making." This piece is the work of one James Elliott, who differs from most struggling playwrights in that he is already a vastly successful business man. Donald Gallaher, generally known as Donald Gallagher, will have the leading rôle.

The People's Playground

BY GUY LEE.

Its sunshine is great; it's
An Eden of grass;
For picnic and fête it's
The absolute class.
Its trees and its breezes
And birds join to serve
A prospect that pleases—
The forest preserve.

Though still in the city
It's far from the din,
The atmosphere gritty,
The sloth and the sin.
So hop on the arm of
A railroad and swerve
To the peace and the charm of
The forest preserve.

It's nature primeval
Right here in the town;
It causes upheaval
To grouch and to frown.
It's only a minute
From here—round the curve;
Get out and get in it:
The forest preserve!

CLOSEUPS

The Los Angeles pioneer studios of the Selig company were ravaged by fire, suffering a loss of $100,000. The completed prints of "The Rosary" were destroyed, but the negative was saved.

The French comedian Max Linder has virthally been signed up by Goldwyn. He will release his pictures through that consern, and will work at its Culver City studios.

After an extensive tour of Europe with her mother and sister, Mary Miles Minter is returning to California. She went to the Flanders battlefields and met many celebrities.

Another Lloyd has appeared on the horizon of the comic world. Harold Lloyd's brother, Gaylord, will make his debut in the near future. He will impersonate the Luke character originally made famous by his brother. There will be four pictures released soon.

Take Your Hankie for You May Weep Over "The Blot"

"THE BLOT."

Written, produced, and directed by Lois Weber. Presented at Barbee's Loop.

THE CAST:

Prof. Griggs	Phillip Hubbard
His wife	Margaret McWade
His daughter	Claire Windsor
His pupil	Louis Calhern
The other girl	Marie Walcamp

By Alva Taylor.

A PICTURE like "The Blot" makes us pause, in our hurried passage through the business of living, and think. The title has reference to the true but shocking fact that college professors and clergymen are not adequately salaried to support their families in a decent manner. Lois Weber takes up this problem and skillfully makes of it an extremely worthwhile film.

Don't be alarmed. It is not a sermon, but a vivid portrayal of truth. It is the story of an impoverished college professor who is unable to provide his wife and daughter with even the necessities of life. And it shows how a rich man's son discovers a new outlook upon life which is far better than the old one.

The professor's daughter works in the public library. She is beautiful and sweet, and is loved by three men—the young minister, the son of the prosperous shoemaker next door, and the rich man's son.

I won't spoil the story for you becounting it here. It is, as advertised, a "heart tale," and if you have sensitive tear ducts you will need a handkerchief or two. Yet it does not drip with sentimentalism. There is nothing exaggerated. It is a real chapter out of many lives, and as a piece of film work is remarkably well done.

The directing is good. Every one in the cast is fine. In fact, the three suitors of the professor's daughter are all so nice that we want each one to be the lucky man. You won't blame them for falling in love with her, because she is adorable.

Don't avoid "The Blot" for fear of having your afternoon and evening ruined by looking facts too squarely in the face. Outside of the definite problem which the film introduces, the underlying romance of it makes up for any harrowing which your soul may experience.

Ask Me! Ask Me!

WELL WISHER: Thanks. Address Jack Pickford, Hollywood, Cal. Entirely welcome.

ROSALIE L.: Mighty sorry, but this department has no pictures of movie stars to dispose of. Think you look like Sylvia Breamer, do you? Well, dash nish.

MARY L.: All wrong, my dear!

FRANCIS C. S.: Why don't you write and ask Miss Weber what she thinks of your idea? Her address is Lois Weber Productions, Hollywood, Cal. Good luck to you.

DOROTHY A.: Bright child! It was Wally.

L. B. C.: So far as I know, it was a scenario only. Clara Beranger is the author. Your spelling's awful!

B. L.: My dear, the answers must have appeared! Sure you didn't skip a paper? We sent your letter to Mr. Holt. He is married. Another fond hope blarsted, I suppose? The name of the child was not given in the cast, and I haven't been able to find out for you who it was. Will keep on trying. We sent the letter to Miss Paige. No trouble—and I'm SO sorry you didn't see the answers to your other questions.

APPRECIATIVE READER: Thanks for sending the article. I had read it. But I HADN'T read such a lovely letter as yours for many a day. Yes, I do the "Ask Me." Don't you see me answering you all so nice, like a lady? Write again, won't you?

PAUL F.: I have your 10 cent stamp, but you forget to tell your address. We're bright on THE TRIBUNE, but we are NOT clairvoyant. Madge Kennedy was with Goldwyn. She is on the speaking stage now. Julian Eltinge receives mail care of Fred J. Balshofer, Hollywood, Cal. Good luck to you!

INEZ PLUMMER in "THE BROKEN WING" OLYMPIC OLD MASTERS PHOTO

R. W. E.: The picture did turn out beautifully in roto, didn't it? Thanks ever so much for letting me keep the original. I had a sneaking idea you would.

E. M. L.: The name of Marguerite Clark's presumably rapturously happy husband is H. Palmerson Williams. You mean the Tellegens. They're the ones who agreed to disagree. Too bad? Did you ever see Lou?

VAN: One thing I'll say for you—you have good taste!

R. M. M.: Your letter will reach Louise Glaum at the Ince Studios, Culver City, Cal.

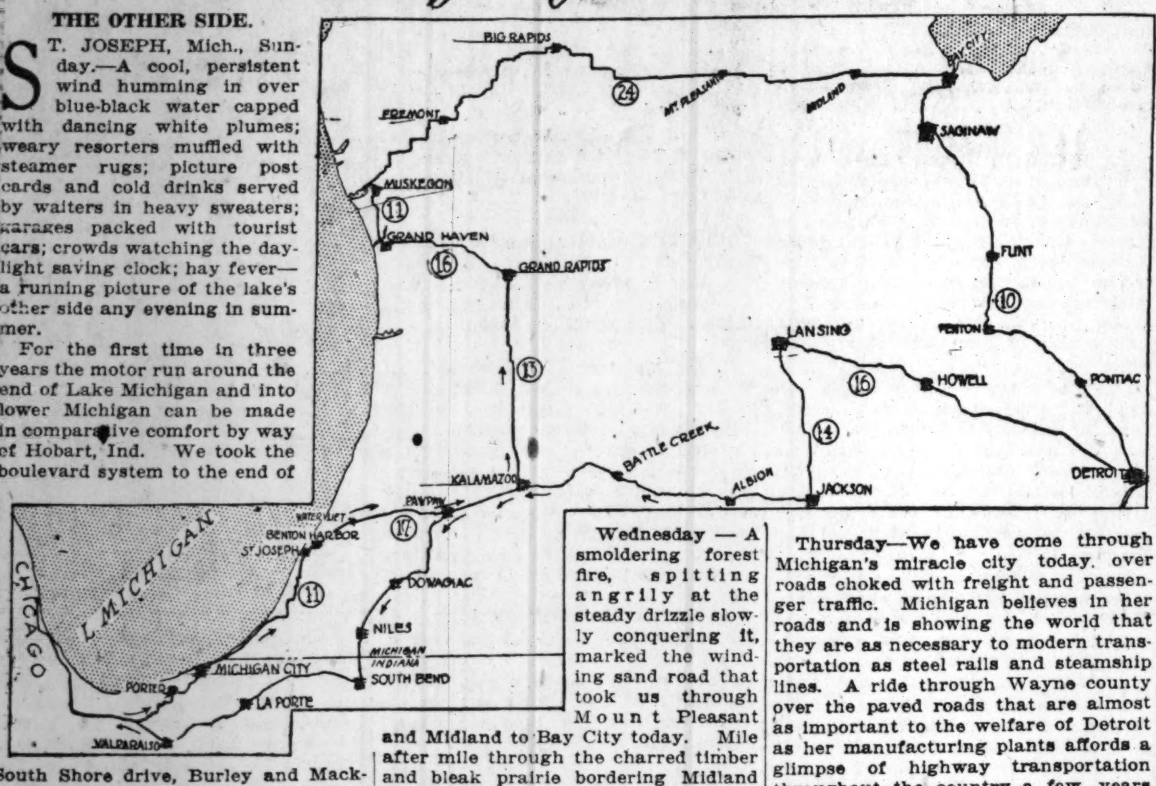
MOTORDOM

TALES of the TRAIL

by Jenks



THE OTHER SIDE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Sunday.—A cool, persistent wind humming in over blue-black water capped with dancing white plumes; weary resorters muffled with steamer rugs; picture post cards and cold drinks served by waiters in heavy sweaters; garages packed with tourist cars; crowds watching the daylight saving clock; hay fever—a running picture of the lake's other side any evening in summer.

For the first time in three years the motor run around the end of Lake Michigan and into lower Michigan can be made in comparative comfort by way of Hobart, Ind. We took the boulevard system to the end of South Shore drive, Burley and Mackinaw avenues to the 92d street, bridge, Ewing avenue and 106th street to Indianapolis boulevard, and Calumet avenue through Hammond, using Columbia avenue south to the Ridge road and the Ridge road into South Gary, where a contented traffic cop graces an easy stool under a substantial umbrella, the latter painted with "stop" and "go" orders.

To avoid the breakers in the Ridge road east, we turned south here to the first left hand road leading into Hobart and found good going. From there to Chesterton the winding country road used as a detour has been discovered by so many trail explorers that it is badly traffic worn in spots. Of course, the stretch of main road from Porter to Michigan City is still an Indiana nightmare, but it can be negotiated.

East and north of Michigan City the shore road to St. Joseph has at last been rescued by concrete paving. It is now one of the finest drives in the middle west, a road of delight cutting through the heart of lovely lake country. If you happen over that way pass a good word to the friendly old man who sits on one cross bar of the barricade blocking the newest pavement and tells visitors to go right ahead. He will advise you that the blockade is meant only for trucks and that the alluring new pavement can be used by passenger cars. One detour, a short one out of Stevensville, over good macadam, remains this side of St. Joe.

Monday—The West Michigan pike, hard surfaced and fast, heads out of Benton Harbor into resort country overflowing with sunshine and garden truck, with Coloma and Watervliet pleasant interludes along the boulevard. Highway 17 through Hartford is complete, and concrete linked with heavily worked gravel makes an excellent run through the grape fields to Paw Paw. To the east of Paw Paw a fair gravel and sand detour avoids new work for three miles and a beautiful concrete road leads on into Kalamazoo. Here THE TRIBUNE party found instant coöperation in the national memorial tree planting campaign, and learned that Michigan is ready to carry out highway planting through a practical state organization.

Turning north on state trunk 13, excellent Kalamazoo county paving shades into good gravel in the run to Grand Rapids. One long detour brought us unexpectedly around a sharp turn to drop down through deep sand to the edge of a placid inland lake, unspoiled as in the days before the white invasion. Another century awaited us at the top of the hill. There a newly graveled highroad took us into Grand Rapids, where Watson's recently opened garage is setting a modern standard for courtesy and convenience.

Tuesday—A world of apples and grapes with here and there the outline of an abandoned farmhouse, smothered under Michigan sand and ancient agricultural methods, tells the story of pioneer hardships and final success along the road to Grand Haven. Good pavement takes the shore pike into Muskegon and gravel branches north and west from that thriving lake port to Fremont. Then comes an Indian reservation, a ragged sand road, and monotonous miles of willow growth and stump fences into sleepy White Cloud. Gravel helps the miles into Big Rapids, where new manufacturing plants do their best to overcome the memory of old lumbering days.

Wednesday — A smoldering forest fire, spitting angrily at the steady drizzle slowly conquering it, marked the winding sand road that took us through Mount Pleasant and Midland to Bay City today. Mile after mile through the charred timber and bleak prairie bordering Midland towering structures and busy power plants dot the barren countryside. They pump rivers of salt brine from subterranean veins to the great Dow chemical plant in Midland, where products ranging from chloroform to a substitute for steel are made from the seemingly worthless liquid. Paved highways connect Bay City and Saginaw and a new concrete road carries the traffic of east Michigan down through Flint to Detroit.

Thursday—We have come through Michigan's miracle city today. over roads choked with freight and passenger traffic. Michigan believes in her roads and is showing the world that they are as necessary to modern transportation as steel rails and steamship lines. A ride through Wayne county over the paved roads that are almost as important to the welfare of Detroit as her manufacturing plants affords a glimpse of highway transportation throughout the country a few years hence. And Wayne county is setting a proper example by building more wide highways into the country to aid her remarkable development. In Lansing highway lore is a feature of state government. Here $25,000,000 has been dispensed this year for construction of permanent highways.

Friday—Organization for memorial tree planting cut into the running time today, but a fine gravel pike running down to Jackson from Lansing, and an army built concrete road from Battle Creek which defied a hard rain and travel on a stormy night, helped make up the delay. In Battle Creek a white haired veteran waited for an hour near our parked car to give up a welcome to his town and to say that he used to belong to THE TRIBUNE family before the Chicago fire.

Saturday—Fair to good pavements and gravel roads made an excellent run today through Kalamazoo, Dowagiac, and Niles to the Indiana state line, where one of the finest paved roads in the west leads into South Bend. The Lincoln highway from South Bend to Chicago is still the rough trail that has made that section infamous for two years.

The Inquiring Reporter

He's Out to Find the Truth About Motordom.

The Question.

How many miles do you get to the gallon of gas, and where do you get the best mileage?

Where Asked.

Boulevard link bridge.

The Answers.

Jack Boehm, 2251 South Michigan avenue, tire salesman: "My Ford rolls up about eighteen miles to the gallon usually, but it can be made to average better than that on long runs over good pavement, where few stops are made. The boys tell me that when the speed cops are after me the car runs of its own accord and without gas. I get the best fuel mileage on roads like the Dixie highway."

Kenneth McConnell, 4067 Sheridan road, salesman: "With a grade of gas that is anywhere near the proper test, I average eighteen miles straight through. I make up in gas saving on the open road what is lost while driving in the congested loop. I always drive with the carburetor cut down as much as possible. I find the best mileage is made over the paved roads in this county."

John Davidson, 3840 Wilton street, salesman: "Except when my valves are sticking, I average fifteen miles to the gallon in this roadster. In the summer time, when I use as "lean" a mixture as possible, I get more miles. I find the country roads in Cook county are the most economical."

E. J. Ryan, 5545 Prairie avenue, multigraph salesman: "I am averaging about fifteen miles in this Gardner car, but I should get eighteen. The starting and stopping, slowing down, and speeding up of city driving eats up the fuel. The best mileage can always be made on well paved streets, such as Michigan avenue."

Teddy Schwartz, 1227 South Sawyer avenue, clerk: "With proper attention to lubrication, I get seventeen miles to the car. Of course, on some of these Chicago pavements, where you have to climb out of so many holes, the average is cut down. My best mileage is made anywhere away from the loop."

Want a Motorcycle?

The army still has 4,000 motorcycles to dispose of, according to officers of the motor transport corps, who testified before the house committee on appropriations during the hearings on the army appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, next. Of a total of 10,505 motorcycles now on hand in the army, 6,454 are in use, 66 are in reserve or under salvage, and 3,985 are to be disposed of. The war department has already turned 1,626 motorcycles over to other government services, most of which went to the postoffice department. The disposition of the remaining 4,000 has not yet been announced.

Highway Builders Fear Effects of Small Propaganda

BY J. L. JENKINS.

GOV. LEN SMALL'S manipulation of the 1921 Illinois highway program has become a matter of national concern as the result of a bitter fight which recently tied up the gigantic improvement plans in Ohio and is threatening to hinder progress on important work in other states.

According to engineers who are quietly investigating actual conditions in Illinois for other state departments, political propaganda issued to excuse the local flasco this year, has been taken literally in distant sections of the country, although the facts in this state do no warrant even its consideration.

After thoroughly checking up the progress reports on Illinois jobs and inspecting the scattering contracts which the administration allowed to be awarded long after the building season began, one investigator has taken home a comprehensive report of the local situation. Among the facts he traced during his visit are the following:

Illinois, with some eighty millions of dollars available for highway improvement, with thousands of men idle and begging for jobs, and with the greatest transportation demand in history, has built just ten miles of state paving on 1921 contracts, according to construction reports.

These contracts, awarded at the $30,000 per mile price which the administration demanded on all new work, are operating on stretches of highway where building conditions are ideal, roads where few bridges or heavy grading are required, where the movement of materials is easy and cheap and where building costs can be held to a minimum. They include the state job at Dwight, built by forced account, a short stretch of new paving on the Lincoln highway east of Joliet, the paving from Elgin north to the Kane county line where the progress report shows only twenty-six hundredths of a mile finished per week, and on other jobs awarded recently.

After protests from taxpayers all over the state condemning the policy which refused to close the gaps in the 850 miles of country paving on the great Illinois federal aid system, the report shows that thirty miles of federal aid projects have been placed under contract, some of them too late to be completed this season. A total of 165 miles have been awarded on state bond issue routes and thirty-five miles on county routes.

Despite the political handicaps of the year, the state highway department under the direction of Supt. S. E. Bradt and Chief Engineer Older has succeeded in completing 202.3 miles of improvements during the season.

RAY

RAY BATTERY CO

The Measure of the Ray Battery

The Ray Battery has been measured by every sort of test. It has been tried out by engineers. It has been subjected to all sorts of trials by automobile drivers. And in every case it has proved itself.

Now, we have measured it by the Golden Rule—the standard recognized all over Chicago. The Ray meets every requirement. It has phenomenal power and endurance, and it is sold under a merchandising policy that is as fair and square to you as to us—at a fair price, and under an unconditional guarantee that gives you a new battery without question if your Ray should go wrong within two years.

My service station, centrally located in Chicago's automobile district, gives Golden Rule service any time, on any car. Look me up.

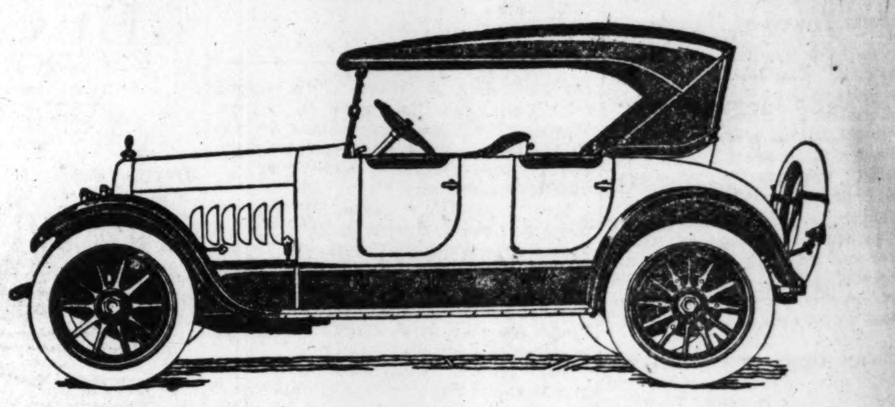
PEERLESS



We believe that one reason why Peerless owners are such "long friends" is that from the very beginning they have found a "firm bargain and a right reckoning."

Softly, gently, drifting with the zephyr and holding it back—that is Peerless in its Loafing Range. Rushing, an airplane for swiftness, racing with the gale and beating it—that, too, is Peerless, in its Sporting Range.

Where among fine cars can you find value comparable to that offered by Peerless? Compare performance, comfort, economy, grace, durability—and prices. Peerless VALUE leads.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

THE LITTLE LIAR.

I must confess to sadness—to a drooping of the heart,
My edifice of confidence is falling all apart,
The edifice of confidence I built upon my lad,
Is tumbling in a ruin upon his disillusioned dad—
There was a time his word was gold, but now it's merely dross,
His juvenile veracity is now a total loss,
For a lad who's hardly started—his years are only three—
You haven't any notion, not the faintest comprehension,
You ain't got any idee what a liar he can be.

"Who cut the grass?" I asked my son. He looked me in the eye,
"Me, daddy," came his absolutely falsified reply.
"Who [illegible] the rock?" "Who made the pie?" and "Who sewed Dorothy's dress?"
"Did you do those as well, my son?" He calmly answered, "Es."
"And who (a storm had raged that night) knocked down that 'normous tree?"
With candor in his big blue eyes, he gravely answered, "Me."

"I heen a bear," he said today. "I heen him on the heet.
He h'eat a little boy, I hink; he h'eat his hace 'n' heet.
He h'eat the little boy all up; he h'eat him awfu' hard.
He haid, 'I heat yu, yunyor,' 'n' he hase me in th' yard."
"Why didn't you come tell daddy, son? I'd chase him pretty quick."
"O, no," replied my little saint, "I hilled him with a hick."
And that's the way he's going now, and his years are only three.
Ah, what a falsifier, what a prize prevaricator,
What a downright blooming liar—
My son has grown to be.

IMPERIOUS VICTORIA, QUEEN AND WOMAN

queen to write an affectionate letter to her mother. The way seemed open for a reconciliation, but the duchess was stormy still.

The duke might perhaps have succeeded had not all attempts at conciliation been rendered hopeless by a tragical event. Lady Flora, it was discovered, had been suffering from a terrible internal malady, which now grew rapidly worse. There could be little doubt that she was dying.

Victoria No Longer the Simple Schoolgirl.

THE queen's unpopularity reached an extraordinary height. More than once she was publicly insulted. "Mrs. Melbourne" was shouted at her when she appeared at her balcony; and, at Ascot, she was hissed by the Duchess of Montrose and Lady Sarah Ingestre as she passed.

Lady Flora died. The whole scandal burst out again with redoubled vehemence; while, in the palace, the two parties were henceforth divided by an impassable, a Stygian, gulf. Nevertheless, Lord M. was back, and every trouble faded under the enchantment of his presence and his conversation. On his side, in spite of the dullness and the formality of the court, his relationship with the queen had come to be the dominating interest in his life; to have been deprived of it would have been heartrending; that dread eventuality had been—somehow—avoided.

Upon Victoria, with all her impermeability, it was inevitable that such a companionship should have produced, eventually, an effect. She was no longer the simple schoolgirl of two years since. The change was visible even in her public demeanor. Her expression, once "ingenuous and serene," now appeared to a shrewd observer to be "bold and discontented." She had learned something of the pleasures of power and the pains of it; but that was not all. Lord Melbourne with his gentle instruction had sought to lead her into the paths of wisdom and moderation, but the whole unconscious movement of his character had swayed her in a very different direction.

Humanity and fallibility are infectious things; was it possible that Lehzen's prim pupil had caught them? That she was beginning to listen to siren voices? That the secret impulses of self-expression, of self-indulgence even, were mastering her life? For a moment the child of a new age looked back, and wavered toward the eighteenth century. It was the most critical moment of her career. Had those influences lasted the development of her character, the history of her life would have been completely changed.

And why should they not last? She, for one, was very anxious that they should. Let them last forever! Any change would be for the worse; and the worst change of all . . . no, she would not hear of it; it would be quite intolerable, it would upset everything, if she were to marry. Naturally, she would marry in the end—but not just yet—not for three or four years. What was tiresome was that her uncle Leopold (the Belgian king) had apparently determined not only that she ought to marry but that her cousin Albert ought to be her husband. Albert hardly interested her at all. In later life the queen declared she had never for a moment dreamt of marrying any one but her cousin; her letters and diaries tell a very different story.

Victoria Wants to Avoid Meeting Albert.

WHEN her cousin's Italian tour came to an end she began to grow nervous; she knew that, according to a long standing engagement, his next journey would be to England. He would probably arrive in the autumn, and by July her uneasiness was intense. She determined to write to her uncle in order to make her position clear.

It must be understood, she said, that "there is no engagement between us." If she should like Albert, she could "make no final promise this year, for, at the very earliest, any such event could not take place till two or three years hence." She had, she said, "a great repugnance" to change her present position; and, if she should not like him, she was "very anxious that it should be understood that she would not be guilty of any breach of promise, for she never gave any."

To Lord Melbourne she was more explicit. She told him that she "had no great wish to see Albert, as the whole subject was an odious one"; she hated to have to decide about it; and she repeated once again that seeing Albert would be "a disagreeable thing."

Albert, accompanied by his brother Ernest, arrived at Windsor Oct. 10, 1837. The whole structure of her existence crumbled into nothingness like a house of cards. He was beautiful—she gasped—she knew no more. The succeeding hours passed in a rapture. She was able to observe a few more details—the "exquisite nose," the "delicate moustachios and slight but very slight whiskers," the "beautiful figure, broad in the shoulders and a fine waist." She rode with him, danced with him, talked with him, and it was all perfection.

She had no shadow of a doubt. He had come on a Thursday evening, and on the following Sunday morning she had told Lord Melbourne that she had "a good deal changed her opinion as to marrying." Next morning she told him that she had made up her mind to marry Albert. The morning after that she sent for her cousin. She received him alone, and "after a few minutes I said to him that I thought he must be aware why I wished them to come here—and that it would make me too happy if he would consent to what I wished (to marry me)." Then "we embraced each other, and he was so kind, so acectionate.

They parted, and she felt "the happiest of human beings," when Lord M. came on. At first she beat about the bush, and talked of the weather, and indifferent subjects. Somehow or other she felt a little nervou with her old friend. At last, summoning up her courage, she said: "I have got well through this with Albert."

"O you have!" said Lord M.

Greville's statement (Nov. 27, 1839) that "the queen settled everything about her marriage herself and without consulting Melbourne at all on the subject, not even communicating to him her intention," has no foundation in fact. The queen's journal proves that she consulted Melbourne at every point.

[Copyright by Harcourt, Brace & Co. Published by arrangement with the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

Powers behind the throne of Victoria—one of them a woman—challenged the influence of Prince Albert, her husband. tHe had a hard fight to conquer Baroness Lehzen—who had been the governess—and Lord Melbourne. He had a power behind him, however, in the person of a shrewd doctor, Baron Stockmar, and in the end he won. How he did will be told in the extract from Mr. Strachney's book to be printed next Sunday.

Enjoy the Utmost in Home Comfort, Convenience and Social Life at Less Than Housekeeping Expense

LOOK where you may, you'll not find a more ideal home for the fall and winter than the Chicago Beach Hotel.

Consider first the location. Situated at Hyde Park Boulevard and Lake Shore, in the midst of one of Chicago's beauty spots. Bounded on north and east by the lake; on the south by a beautiful park directly connected with Chicago's whole park and boulevard system. Completely removed from the noise and the congestion of the city, yet only a 12-minute ride to the heart of Chicago. Transit trains running from 5 to 10 minutes apart whisk you in a few moments into the very center of Chicago's business, theatrical and shopping district.

Beautiful and Spacious Lounging Room offers Cozy Nooks for Quiet Rest or Reading

Luxurious Rooms, Light, Warm and Airy

Two splendid buildings. (The new East Building just completed). 1,000 all outside rooms; 700 with private bath. Suites, 2 to 7 rooms. All tastefully furnished. All light and airy. All cozily warm in winter.

Beautiful lobbies, verandas and sun porches. Spacious lounging room, fitted with every detail for quiet luxury and refinement.

Charming Dining Rooms Excellent Food

Charming Dining Rooms Exceptional Cuisine

Several dining rooms of unusual pleasantness. Modern sanitary kitchens, open at all times to inspection.

Unsurpassed food. Most of the fresh fruits and vegetables supplied by near-by farms. Diet kitchen in charge of special Dietitian to provide for particular food needs for adults or children.

Entertainment Galore Or Secluded Quiet If You Wish It

Dancing, card parties, moving pictures, concerts and other modern entertainments. In addition—Ice Skating—"Chicago Beach" has its own large private rink. Indoor Golf—a splendid 18-hole course; two professionals in attendance. Billiards, etc.—no need to leave the Hotel to indulge in your favorite pastime.

The "Chicago Beach" has its Own Private Ice Skating Rink, 18,000 square feet

At Less Than Housekeeping Expense

Though the beauty and elegance of the appointments are unsurpassed, the "Chicago Beach" is noted above all for its comfort and quiet, homelike atmosphere. This is evidenced by the fact that many families have made their home here since the hotel was built. The Chicago Beach Hotel is committed to a policy of "sensible prices." This is clearly seen in the moderate rates that prevail throughout the hotel. With the high cost of living, the servant problem and heretofore unknown housekeeping difficultities confronting you, the economy of living at the "Chicago Beach" should appeal to you. It will really cost you less.

AVIATION

Dirigible Crash Is Aeronautics' Greatest Blow

Pick of Two Nations' Airmen Die with the Story

BY MORROW KRUM.

AVIATION suffered on Wednesday the hardest blow in history. When the ZR-2 buckled, exploded, and fell into the Humber river, and the forty-six airmen of two nations went to their death, all aeronautical development was instantly retarded several precious years.

In fact, it may take fifty years for lighter-than-air craft to get a foothold again. And, though wholly separate and apart from the ZR-2 type, all heavier-than-air ships are regarded just as dangerous.

For the ZR-2 was the king of all flying machines. Never before have so many men been raised from the earth by one instrument. Never has an airship been designed for such a long cruising radius. Then, too, never have airmen planned or dreamed of the luxuries possessed by the ill fated English made aerial leviathan.

It would be useless to give the views of Chicago aviation experts as to the cause of the disaster. They know no more than the laymen, who have read the papers. Besides, the average layman doesn't care for scientific explanations. They know that the biggest dirigible of history has failed, and that forty-six men have perished. They aren't interested in the cause—the effect is sufficient to make them edge away from all flying machines, and turn their backs on flyers.

Probably more regrettable than the loss of the ship and the accident and even the loss of forty-six men is the fact that among the dead were the most efficient airmen of both England and the United States. Usually crashes are good for aviation if the flyers live to tell the story and teach the lesson. But every man who knows the exact reason for the ZR-2 accident died, and who can carry on?

The pick of America's lighter-than-air men, men who have spent months and months of study on the subject, have died. The same is true of the Englishmen, and England's loss is the greater because her men were older in the business.

"People will not remember that aviators are flying thousands of miles every day in the United States in heavier-than-air machines," said a Chicagoan who is well educated in flying. "They do not know that more than 2,000 miles of forest are patrolled every day by flyers who watch for forest fires. They forget that the air mail service bridges the continent twice every thirty-six hours and that the records of that service show only one death for every 100,000 miles flown.

"The Chicago blimp accident and the ZR-2 crash will turn the minds of every one against the lighter-than-air ships. They will realize their value in war, but will ask that the dirigibles and blimps be kept from over their heads."

Even army men are convinced that experiments should be decreased on dirigibles for a while and increased on helium gas—for until helium is perfected there will be few safe and sane dirigibles.

Dutch Aerodrome.

The largest aerodrome in Holland has recently been establishd at Rotterdam, seven miles from the city. It is rather more than 1,100 yards long by 700 wide and, being perfectly flat and open, is well suited to the requirements of aircraft. A temporary railway has been made to bring gravel and other building material to the site, where a large shed has already been erected. Offices have been put up and premises for customs, wireless, meteorological observation, a restaurant, and a tower for illumination by night are either already in existence or projected. The whole has been planned on data embodying the latest experience.

Free Rides.

Fifteen free rides in William Westlake's airplane are being given away every Wednesday evening at the Rainbo gardens by the management. Westlake flies the lucky winners from the Evanston flying field.

Peru Buys Ship.

Owing to the satisfactory results of a 600 horse power Caproni the government of Peru is ordering from Italy a second machine of the 300 horse power type.

Use Moleskin to Filter Gas, Is New Air Service Order

THE relative amount of static electricity generated by friction between gasoline and filter in the the case of various metals was measured by the engineering department of the air service, by taking a charge generated in the same way from each of the materials. The relative strength of each charge was measured and tabulated. Chamois skin generated a very large charge, while cotton goods generated a very small charge. Woolen felt did not generate a large charge in comparison with chamois skin.

Any small capillary filtering medium is impervious to water when wet with gasoline. The two liquids are practically insoluble to each other, and the co-efficient of adhesion between their surfaces is very small. However, the liquids are very adhesive to leather, wool, or cotton. Consequently, the capillaries of the filter must be small enough so that the weight of small amounts of water will not overcome the resistance offered by adhesion of the gasoline to filter plus the sum of the resistance offered by surface tension of both liquids.

It is directed that cotton moleskin be used for filtering gasoline instead of chamois. In case moleskin is not available, cotton twill will be substituted.

Plan Long Flight.

Plans are now being made for a great flight by R-36, England's latest and largest airship, to Malta, Egypt, and India. All sorts of proposals are being considered at this time, and instead of a trip to India it may be decided to make a nonstop journey to Malta and return. Should a decision be reached to make the trip to India, however, the R-36 will make a stop in Egypt for replenishment of fuel. It is expected that the flight to India will take six days. Th fastest time by rail and steamer is twenty-one days.

Coupe Deutsch.

The eliminatory race for the French team to fly for the Deutsch cup will take place on Sept. 28 over 100 kilometers on the cup course, Villesauvage-La Marogue.

EDUCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL EDUCATIONAL

Don't experiment with YOUR EDUCATION

DO you put money in an untried bank? Can you afford to place yourself in an educational institution about which there is any doubt? There are many reasons for choosing a school long established and well known among business men rather than one of the small, short-lived schools which are constantly springing up and just as constantly sinking into oblivion.

BRYANT & STRATTON BUSINESS COLLEGE
Endorsed by 100,000 Graduates

Here faultlessly equipped classrooms, capable instructors with a live interest in every student, coupled with a general atmosphere of friendliness, make serious study a delight.

Here the curriculum includes only the most improved and thoroughly tested teaching methods. This school invites investigation.

Business men have confidence in the graduates of a conservative, well-known institution. Employers repeatedly say, "We can always count on getting efficiency from anyone who comes to us with the recommendation of the Bryant & Stratton Business College."

There is a satisfaction in knowing that you have been taught right methods, acceptable in the highest degree to business men and conforming to their best standards.

Fall Term Opens September 6, 1921

We will gladly furnish to those interested detailed information with regard to the various courses taught at this school. Write, call or phone (Randolph 1575) for our catalogue.

TRAINING FOR THE "BIG FIGHT"

It may seem odd to think of the business world as a "big fight," but when you meet the sharp competition there, when you see how many want your job, how many strive to get promoted ahead of you, then you know that it is just that—a "big fight"!

And just as universities scour the country to secure the best "coaching" skill for their athletic teams—so before you compete with the experienced workers in the business world, you should prepare yourself with the best training that you can secure.

The Gregg School is the largest and most remarkable school of shorthand in the world. It is the headquarters of the one shorthand system that is recognized everywhere as the most efficient method—easiest to learn, easiest to write, easiest to read.

No wonder that most business men prefer secretaries with Gregg training and are willing to pay them better salaries!

Be prepared to "win out" in the business world by giving yourself the advantage of a course at the Gregg School. Whether you study shorthand and typewriting alone, bookkeeping, accountancy, or any other of the numerous business subjects we teach, you get first class instruction and training that equals experience.

COLUMBIA SCHOOL OF MUSIC

CLARE OSBORNE REED, Director

TWENTY-FIRST SEASON OPENS SEPTEMBER 5TH

Registration Days September 1st, 2nd, 3rd.

School Year 44 Weeks This is a remarkable advantage for prolonged study during the Student Period.

A School for the Serious Study of Music—Faculty of Eminent Artists and Teachers

PIANO — THEORY — VOICE — VIOLIN
PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC—TEACHERS' NORMAL TRAINING
INTERPRETATION FOR PROFESSIONAL MUSICIANS

Certificates, Diplomas and Degrees by authority of the State of Illinois

Accredited

Teachers' Normal Training

The demand for Teachers and Director of Music in Schools and Colleges is much greater than we are able to fill. The positions pay good salaries under ideal conditions. The Columbia School of Music offers an excellent training and assists its graduates to secure these places through the School Employment Bureau. The course includes thorough and practical work in Elementary Teaching and Advanced Pedagogy by means of a comprehensive course of lectures on Psychology and Teaching as well as practical lessons on teaching both class and private as it applies to children's work. Classes are also held in History of Music, Dalcroze and Harmony. A novel feature of this course is the Model Practice School. In this school are more than two hundred children receiving instruction in Ear-Training, Sight Reading, Preliminary Harmony, Technic and Dalcroze Eurythmics, under the direction of a Faculty teacher. Each Normal student is required to attend these classes every Saturday morning through the School year.

Public School Music

The course requires two years for graduation, but in many instances one year may be credited by sufficient teaching experience, music study, College or University work, and students are enabled thereby to graduate and secure their Diplomas in one year.

The special features of the course are Methods and Applied Psychology, Practice Teaching, Orchestra Conducting, Chorus, extended work in Harmony, Sight Reading and Ear Training.

Interpretation Class for Professional Musicians

Conducted by

CLARE OSBORNE REED

Interpretation classes will be conducted by Clare Osborne Reed for the benefit of advanced players who desire the stimulation of class work. This opportunity is afforded for the hearing of criticism on a more extensive repertoire, and the appreciation of many fundamental principles of technic and interpretation in a broad and varied way is a fine source of practical knowledge. The classes under Mrs. Reed's direction are limited to certain numbers, and the competition for entrance makes acceptance a much desired honor.

Well-rounded Development

Send your boy to YMCA Prep School

Just as plants need good soil in order to flourish, so your boy needs the best surroundings and associates to develop into the kind of man you want him to be. His growing years are his formative years.

Most of all he needs the influence of his own home and the loving guidance of his parents. He needs the right school and the right schoolmates, too.

Send him to YMCA Prep School, where he will enjoy all the advantages of a high class private school without being deprived of his home life.

Men Teachers

At YMCA Prep School men teachers who understand boys know how to make study interesting and how to help their pupils advance rapidly. Small classes enable each boy to receive individual attention. The high school course can be completed in three years by attending classes eleven months in the year. Fully accredited.

But this school does more than give a boy a thorough education! Supervised "gym" work and swimming develop bodily health and strength. Character-building features teach the principles of clean living and clean thinking.

YMCA Prep School is endowed and not maintained for profit; so its rates are very low. The tuition is $95 per year. Can be paid monthly at a small additional cost.

Autumn Semester Opens September 12

Regular high school, technical and commercial courses—or a combination of these courses. Three last grammar grades, also. Enrollment limited. Register now. Write, phone or call for catalog T-3.

When you graduate from a Metropolitan School you don't have to worry about finding a position. The demand for our graduates is so great that week after week we have more calls than we can fill.

The worth of our graduates is the reason. The training they get here makes them real business men and women right from the start—makes them capable of holding real positions—earning real salaries.

Most Thorough Business Training

Metropolitan Methods make business training in our schools a pleasure. No time is wasted upon tedious, unnecessary details. Only the actual requisites the business man demands from his valued employees are taught here.

That's why Metropolitan graduates invariably make good.

Individual Instruction

The personal attention of skilled and conscientious teachers is a Metropolitan feature. Courses cover Munson Shorthand—the most widely used, legible and rapid system—Touch Typewriting, Single and Double Entry Bookkeeping, Billing and Billing Machine Operation, Correspondence, Penmanship and Special Secretarial Training.

Fall Term Opens Sept. 6th Enroll at Once

Get an early start on the road to success by enrolling at once at our nearest school. Tuition is reasonable—our large student body and the location of our schools near our patrons means economy for us and for you. Day and Evening Classes continue through the year.

Remember, a good position depends upon your obtaining the right kind of training—the kind you get at a Metropolitan School.

Do it now. Enroll at once at our nearest school.

COMMERCE

The aim of the College of Commerce is to impart to students that exact and scientific training which today is required for success in the higher fields of business effort. The courses are designed to qualify men and women for high grade positions in the following branches of Commercial activity:

Accounting
Journalism
Salesmanship
Foreign Trade
Secretarial Work
Traffic Management
Insurance and Real Estate
Banking and Finance
Office Management
Advertising and Marketing
Commercial Teaching
Consular Service
Business Administration and Management

All courses in the College of Commerce are credited towards the B. C. S. degree.

LAW

It is the aim of the College of Law to give students adequate preparation for the practice of law in any state. The case system of instruction is employed in practically all subjects. All classes are divided into small sections to insure individual attention for every student. High school graduates eighteen years of age or over are admitted as candidates for the LL. B. degree. College graduates are admitted as candidates for the J. D. degree.

PREPARATORY

The Preparatory School is conducted for the benefit of students who have not completed a four-year high school course. Those who desire to enter some College or University or to prepare for state examinations in Accounting, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Nursing, etc., will find this a convenient school. All applicants must furnish evidence of sufficient maturity and intelligence to grasp principles readily and to cover the work rapidly. To such students is offered an opportunity to save considerable time in the completion of a high school course.

Bulletins of any of the above departments will be sent free upon request. Call, write or phone (Wabash 9389)

THE POTTERS

ILLUSTRATIONS -BY- J.H. STRIEBEL

by J. P. McEVOY

They're Off to Sunset Camp.

Scene I.—The First Night in the Sleeper.

Pa got an upper and a lower for the family, and it has been decided in family council that Pa and Bill will park themselves in the upper, while Ma, Mamie, and the Baby will wedge themselves into the lower . . . it looks like a few crowded hours are in store . . . and how are Pa with his rusty hinges and Bill with his ubiquitous elbows going to get their clothes on and off in the upper? . . . Call for Mr. Einstein . . . call for Mr. Houdini.

MA (beginning to disrobe behind the curtain. Mamie has curled up next to the window to be out of the way . . . E'en so, as it were, e'en so):
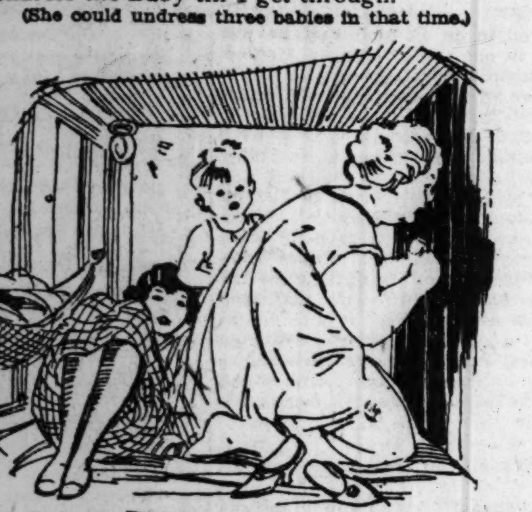
They've only these curtains to hide us, dear;
I tell you I don't feel safe in here.
(If she only knew how safe she was!)

MAMIE: We're safe enough in here, I guess;
I wish you'd hurry so I can undress.

MA: I'll tell you, dear, what you can do—
Undress the Baby till I get through.
(She could undress three babies in that time.)



"Only this curtain to hide us here."

PA (in the upper, taking off his shoes):
It's as crowded in here as a kitchenette flat;
The guy who built it was an acrobat.

BILL (trying to keep out of Pa's way in the upper):
I wish you'd tell a guy just why
You stick your elbows in his eye.

PA: I only gave you a little touch—
I'm sure it couldn't have hurt you (much).
(Mamie, who finally decided to undress in the women's dressing room, comes back through the car with a kimono over her pink pajamas.)

MA: Did you dare come through the car like that?
Why, don't you realize where you're at?

MAMIE (flippantly):
I think this outfit's rather neat;
Perhaps this gang deserves a treat.

MA (in her nightie, peering out of curtain):
Only this curtain to hide us here . . .
Why, it makes me feel so . . . so . . . so . . . queer!

PA (in the upper, with everything stowed away but his shoes):
What'll I do with these shoes, anyway?

BILL: O, let 'em drop on the floor, I'd say.
(Which Pa does . . . but one of them didn't reach the floor—the Baby was in the way.)

BABY: WOW! WOW! WOW! . . . WOW! WOW! WOW!

MA (hollering up at Pa):
Do you see what you went and did just now?

(He can't, but he can hear it . . . so can everybody else in the car . . . those who turned in early to get a good night's sleep are sticking their heads out to inquire what the blankety blank it's all about and why the blinkety blink people don't leave their babies at home when they travel. . . . Finally the Potters get settled down . . . and toss . . . and toss . . . and the Baby falls out in the middle of the night and wakes the whole car up again . . . and Ma tries to solve the housing situation in the lower by tucking the Baby in the little hammock . . . but going around the first curve his head gets a most goshawful wallop, and he doesn't keep it a secret from his fellow travelers, either . . . but finally everybody goes back to fitful slumber again . . . clickety click . . . clickety click . . . dawn . . . sunrise . . . another day.)

Scene II.—In the Washroom.

The most confirmed optimist would hesitate to underwrite the human race after he has seen what pass for specimens in the Pullman washrooms in the morning . . . while the agnostic who denies the account of man's origin as set down in Genesis could take one look and feel satisfied to rest his case . . . in short, one feels Plato's definition of man as a featherless biped with flat nails is flattering to man, but gives grounds for libel to the rest of the bipeds . . . Pa and Bill are no exceptions . . . they very definitely and conclusively give the lie to that feverish poet who referred to it as the "human form divine."

VETERAN TRAVELER (one of those fellows who carry everything in their shaving kits except a niblick . . . he covers two bowls with his various tools . . . no peace conference was ever more deliberate):
Yes, Shaveno is the stuff . . . spread it on and shave it off . . . nothing like it.

PA (restlessly):
Nearly finished there?

V. T. (calmly):
O, no, I've a number of things to do yet.
(He has . . . he does them.)

BILL (shaving and proud of it):
Y'know, my beard is getting so stiff I can hardly cut it. My razor pulls like everything.
(Looks around to see if every one is impressed . . . nobody seems to care.)

A SALESMAN (one of those babies who stick their heads down in the bowl and come up spouting like a whale):
Br-r-r-rr—that's great. Nothing like cold water to wake you up. Always take a cold plunge in the morning when I'm home. Cold as I can get it. (Liar.) Sure miss my cold plunges in the morning on the train.
(Yes, he does!)

THE GROUCH:
Who the blankety blank blank invented this liquid soap gag, anyway? . . . the big stiff . . .
(It must have been the same bird who invented those double dash dot sugar shakers you find in the cafeterias.)

PA (who always gets his eyes full of soap before he looks for the towel—he's got a mouthful this time, in the bargain):
Wheresh tha tow'l . . . brrr . . . tha tow'l . . . whosh got tow'l?
(Bill hands him one.)

V. T. (packing up kit—Ringlings move their circus every day with less effort):
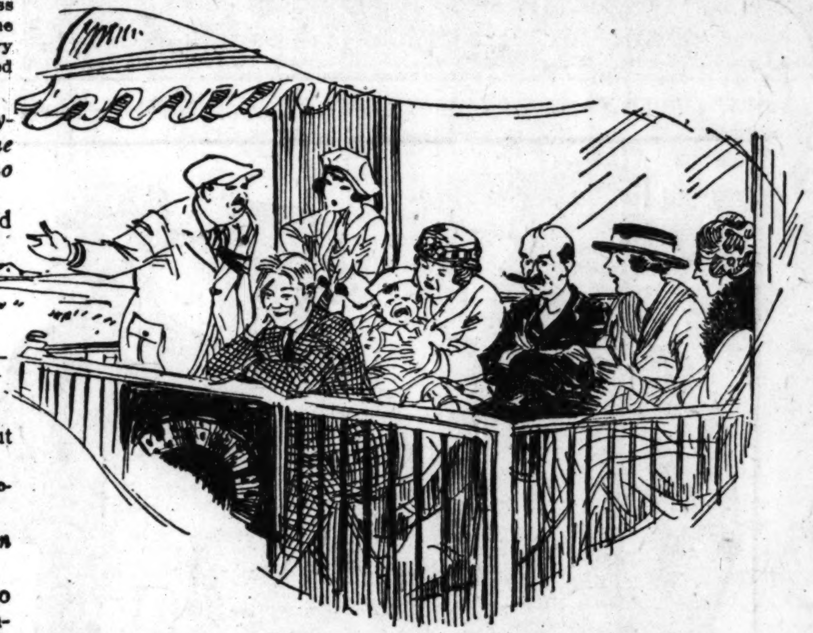
Well, I feel fine now. I'm glad that's done. (So is everybody else.) Nothing like Shaveno, no, sir . . . and did you ever try this Sticknomore Talc after a shave? (Enthusiastic silence.) Nothing like Sticknomore Talc, no, sir . . .

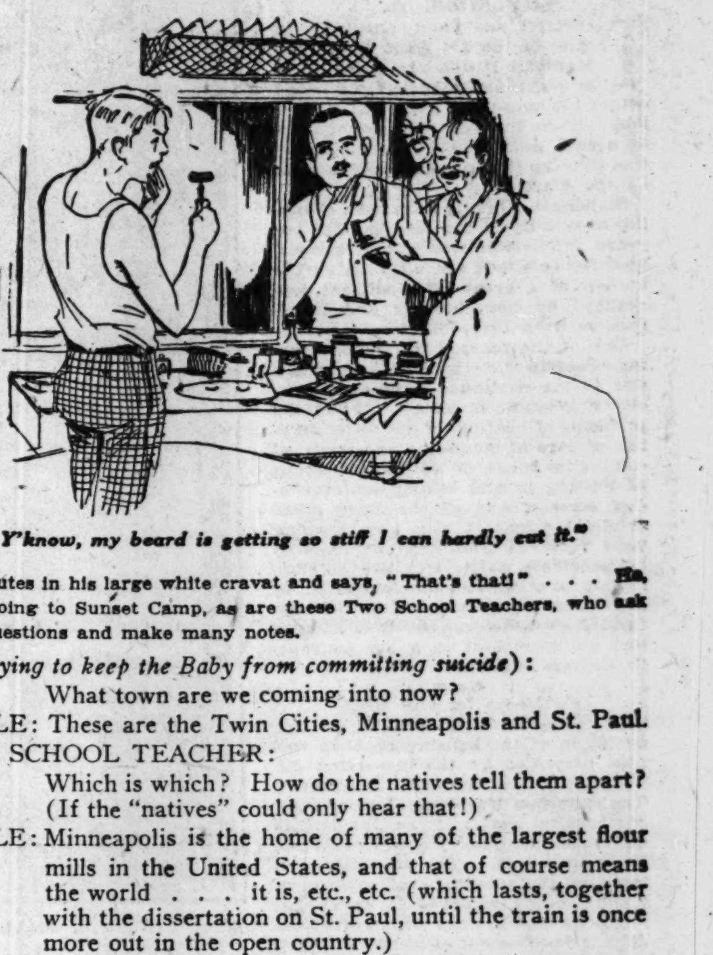
THE GROUCH:
Why the blankety blank blank don't they have more towels here, anyway? . . . the big stiffs . . .

Scene III.—On the Observation Platform—Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The entire Potter family are squatted here, leaving room for very few of the other customers . . . here for the first time they meet the Oracle, who has been everywhere, who has seen everything, and who arises every few minutes in his large white cravat and says, "That's that!" . . . He, too, is going to Sunset Camp, as are these Two School Teachers, who ask many questions and make many notes.



"That was a prairie dog."



"Y'know, my beard is getting so stiff I can hardly cut it."

MA (trying to keep the Baby from committing suicide):
What town are we coming into now?

FIRST SCHOOL TEACHER:
Which is which? How do the natives tell them apart?
(If the "natives" could only hear that!)

ORACLE: Minneapolis is the home of many of the largest flour mills in the United States, and that of course means the world . . . it is, etc., etc. (which lasts, together with the dissertation on St. Paul, until the train is once more out in the open country.)

MA: O, what are those funny tall houses by the railroad? You'd think they'd build them back a ways.

ORACLE: Those are elevators, madam.

MA: Elevators! Think of that. Aren't they enterprising in these small towns? I thought they all walked up.

(Clickety click . . . clickety click . . . another small town, a field of wheat, a field of flax, a field of barley, a town . . . wheat . . . flax . . . oats . . . barley . . . a town . . . hours of this . . . wheat . . . flax . . . oats . . . barley . . . and always the town is a few houses, three grain elevators, the Standard Oil, and a church . . .)

Scene IV.—Montana.

MA: And what are all those funny little gray bushes?

ORACLE: Sage grass; all that is sage grass.

MA: And so that's where all the sage comes from—dear me! Isn't this wonderful!

MAMIE: O, what was that?

MAMIE: Aren't they darling! Who owns them?

SAMPLE CLOAK & SUIT SHOP
4th Floor, North American Bldg.,
CHICAGO

Sunday, August 28th, 1921.

Dear Friends:

On our fifth anniversary I want to thank my many friends who have helped make this shop the success that it is. From a hole in a wall to the largest exclusive sample shop in Chicago for women has been the record of our achievement. And it has all been accomplished in the short space of five years. In that time we have had to expand twice, so wonderful were the values that we gave. Can you imagine what bargains we are able to give now with our tremendously increased purchasing power?

I have been in New York five times in the last three months gathering exquisitely fine merchandise from all the leading manufacturers. Most of them were hard pressed for money. I paid cash and was able to secure values heretofore unheard of. To you people who have not formerly purchased here, all I can say is, come up Monday morning and judge these values for yourselves. You will be offered bargains you have never found anywhere before. To you, my friends, who have formerly purchased here, I want to say that anything you have bought in the past will not begin to compare with the values you will receive starting Monday.

There is, however, one reservation. To protect ourselves against the far-reaching effect of this announcement we reserve the right to close the doors for fifteen minutes at any time. We know that this merchandise will not remain on sale for very long, and those who wish to take advantage of these great values had better plan to arrive at our shop bright and early.

Very sincerely,

Beth Weber

Changing World Finds Apartment Is Easiest Way

By Mme. X.

THERE'S no doubt about it; in spite of the 200 room house the Marshall Fields are reported to be planning for their Long Island estate, big houses are going out of fashion. Even the very rich avoid them as a rule, and both in Europe and in this country they are becoming a drug on the market.

Standards of living have been changing materially in the last eight or ten years. The war was partly accountable for this, but not entirely, as the burden of a great establishment was realized by housekeepers and homemakers even before 1914.

One of the reasons for this increasing distaste for them was probably due to the continued improvement in city apartment buildings. When the problems of heating, of hot water service, of care of sidewalks and roofs, of cooling ice boxes, of washing windows, of putting in and taking out of window screens, and all the many other details incident to city housekeeping were removed from the shoulders of householders, not to mention the elimination of stairs and the acquisition of a greater sense of security, the contest between the desirability of a house and an apartment in a big metropolis became one-sided.

No Room for the Maid.

An even stronger element in this evolution of the housing problem was that presented by the increasing difficulties in the domestic department. The supply of this form of labor grew continually less, and as the supply diminished its quality deteriorated and the wages rose. The situation even menaced the recently evolved form of home making achieved in apartment buildings, and has of recent years been driving families out of houses and flats into hotels, with no very great advantage to family life.

Hundreds of small apartments are built with every modern convenience, exquisite bathrooms for each bedroom, vacuum cleaners, automatic ice boxes, gas stoves, disappearing beds, etc., but without a room for a maid, though the rentals are what a few years ago we would have considered exorbitant. The present world wide industrial depression may afford a temporary relief, but the problem is one which will be gradually solved probably by a different order of housekeeping. Many new inventions and a changed standard of living will combine to bring about this domestic revolution.

Division of Labor.

We of this generation may not live to see the times, advocated by many reformers, when there will be central nurseries to which all the children of a neighborhood will be daily sent—big glass inclosed, sun deluged places where the youngsters will be in the charge of women, highly trained and dedicated by an irresistible "call" to the profession; times when all housework will be highly specialized, when one set of chambermaids will come through our up to date homes in the mornings and make the beds, while another set, educated in colleges, will dust and sweep hygienically, and a third will serve the perfectly cooked meals sent in from wonderfully organized community kitchens.

This division of labor will leave the mother of the family so little to do that she will undoubtedly be driven by that force which lies deep within the human race making for progress to take entire charge of politics, to the purification of many dark places, and the expediting of many a needed reform. We may not live to see this changed order. Perhaps few of us would want to. To the benighted inhabitants of the earth in the present wasteful, foolishly improvident, and badly managed times it presents a picture of unutterable dullness and perfection. But it is not impossible that something not unlike this picture is on the way to be achieved in an era still remote. When it comes humanity will be already adjusted to it.

Life is a continual process of adjustment of the individual to environment. Many of us fondly think that the chief business of modern man is to adjust environment to mankind, but the searcher after truth, who sees deeper and farther than the man in the street, realizes that old Dame Nature has the say-so as far as we are concerned, and that our successful progress has been directed by natural conditions that favor us.

The Garage Beautiful.

Apropos of the housing problem, however, to return to things mundane and local, some of our social leaders have lately settled in new abodes of more than average interest and picturesqueness. The Robert Greaves McGanns are most comfortably installed in what will in time be their garage. Between you and me, it's a pretty royal sort of garage, and presents an imposing appearance as it stands at the south end of their beautiful Lake Forest gardens.

It is of warm hued brick with a slate mansard roof, of distinctly French type of architecture, though I may be doing injustice to a purely Georgian structure. I have before this affronted the sensibilities of architects and house owners by confounding the two styles of buildings. It has an unusually long facade, with a pillared gallery or portico on the ground floor.

The principal feature of the interior is the delightful use to which Mr. McGann has put what will in time be the abode of the many automobiles which compose the modern equivalent of a well filled carriage house. It is a long apartment, paved with red tiles and having white brick walls, an ideal background for the tapestries, brocades, and few paintings which Mrs. McGann has hung up.

Living and Dining Room in One.

The great salon serves both as living and dining room. A handsome screen from some Chinese emperor's palace marks the place where the former stops and the latter begins. Huge and most comfortable couches and easy chairs are placed at various strategic points. Beautiful carved cabinets and tables, many well shaded lamps, and effective cretonne curtains and covers complete what is at once a charming, stately, and inviting living room.

The architects of the garage and of the house-to-be are Aldrich & Delano of New York. The McGanns are so comfortable in their present abode that they may be in no hurry to start building the main house.

It is also probable that they will never return to the fine old mansion in East Pearson street which has for so many years been identified with Mrs. McGann and her parents, the nate Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Farwell, and with her sister, the late Mrs. Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor. When the Pearson street house was first built under the shadow of the water works tower it was considered one of the show residences in Chicago. Those were the days when size and material were great considerations and the spacious, high ceilinged rooms and the red brick with brown stone trimmings of the exterior were the grandest architectural achievements of the epoch.

What's Told by Rumor.

It will probably, in the not distant future, be torn down, and one rumor says that a business building with the highest tower yet put up in Chicago may start a new era in what has for many years been the choicest residence district in the city, while a second rumor hints at still another destiny for that, one of the finest corners in the region of the coming city beautiful, a destiny not unconnected with a great and nearby church.

The question of when these changes will come rests at present with Herman Paepke, who lives next door to the McGann residence in what was formerly the house of the late J. V. Farwell, brother of C. B. Farwell, a fine gray stone mansion built at the same time as its red brick neighbor. The Paepke family is not yet ready to move out to make room for the impatient big interests which apparently long to gobble up a famous residence district.

All Lake Shore drive houses are not being turned into business buildings, however. The home of the late La Verne W. Noyes on the corner of Burton place and the drive, nas been recently bought by Mr. Peterson, who intends to use it as a residence. This house was originally built by the late O. W. Potter, who lived in it but a short time before his death.

The Growth of a Cottage.

Their friends have watched with interest Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase's new house venture. They bought a small, square, quite unpretentious cottage on Oakwood street in Lake Forest. To the casual observer it seemed to have almost no merit; and looked too tiny to shelter more than an ancient maiden lady and her cat.

Today it has been turned into an extremely chic little abode, with a charming flagged walk leading up to its delightful porch. It has grown at the rear in an amazing fashion so that nowadays it can accommodate not only the Chase family of four, but also as many of their friends as many a larger house could shelter.

Just how it has been done is the secret of Mrs. Chase and of Howard Shaw, her architect. But the miracle is accomplished, and the result is so satisfactory that the Chases, who moved in yesterday, are going to make it their home the year around.

A small wedding of large interest to Chicago society will be that of Miss Sylvia Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw, to Clay Judson, son of Gen. and Mrs. William V. Judson, which will take place next Saturday afternoon at the Shaw place, Ragdale, on Green Bay road at Lake Forest.

Miss Shaw is one of the most popular of the younger set. She is a rather unusual combination in that she is exceedingly "easy to look at," charming in manner, much sought after, and yet has a serious object in life in her sculpture work. She has marked talent, and spent last winter in Paris studying with a noted French teacher. Some of her work found a place in the Paris salon, goal of so many young artists.

She does not intend to give up her career just because she is married, but is planning to turn her studio, which is on the roof of the apartment building where her parents live in town, into a combination studio and home.

The wedding is to be a very small one, with only the immediate families and nearest friends of the bride and groom present. The ceremony will be late in the afternoon and will be followed by a "sunset supper." Ragdale is one of the loveliest of the north shore places, a place with a really poetic atmosphere, as it ought to have, for it is the deliberate, thoughtful creation of an artist, Howard Shaw, and a poet, Mrs. Howard Shaw. Its open air theater is famous in this region as having been the setting for some of the loveliest fêtes held hereabouts. There are many other features in the garden that contribute to the elusive quality called poetic.

A Comrade Turns and Leaves Us.

Wasn't it some oriental philosopher who likened us to travelers in caravans, journeying across an unexplored desert, with the light of the past throwing our shadows in front of us, sole guides in the encircling darkness? It was a fair simile. It's a cheerful caravan to some of us who journey on, oblivious of the inscrutable night ahead. We think only of the caravan, until suddenly, as if touched by an unseen hand, one of our number turns and leaves us. Then we turn and peer after our comrade for a few moments before going on with the crowd.

Many of "Billy" Gamble's friends will turn and gaze into the night into which he has so suddenly gone, and will recall the many qualities and acts which made him one of the most original personalities in the large social circle which was his. On Twelfth Night for all the years left to his friends they will especially recall him and the gay "Butchers and Bakers and Candlestick Makers" balls which for many years have been one of the winter's most enjoyable functions.

These brilliant costume balls brought together people of all ages and from many different sets, and were unique in Chicago's social life. They were entirely the fruit of Mr. Gamble's ingenious fancy, and were the outgrowth of one of the most humorous experiments ever tried on conventional society.

No End of Domestic Trouble.

Some eight or ten years ago a certain section of Chicago's beau monde was puzzled at receiving invitations to a luncheon to be given to "widows and widowers" at a certain address in East Monroe street (at the University club, as it turned out). Only one member of a family was asked; here a husband, there a wife. It made no end of domestic trouble, many of the left out objecting strongly to the chosen one's accepting the strange invitation. These "bids" were beautifully gotten up on highly glazed paper and richly engraved. Answers were to be sent to the "Twelve Knights of the Round Table."

Of course, every one who was invited accepted, and great was the talk about it. Also not a little pride filled the hearts of those selected as word got about that only the most popular members had been picked out.

This was only one of the many merry jests this cheerful son of Kentucky played on society. His earliest was to make and publish a list of the first 100 families of America according to lineage, he having selected the families and invented the family trees. He received hundreds of letters from all over the country expostulating with him for omissions and inclusions. Like all his hoaxes, it was elaborately and elegantly done. His invitations to the coronation of King George was another instance of humor and careful workmanship.

We shall miss him from the caravan, and the world will not be so merry a place from now on to those who knew him.

Released by the Bolsheviki.

We have most of us been following the fortunes of Mrs. Marguerite Harrison, the American newspaper correspondent who was recently released from a Russian prison by the soviet government. She was a Baltimore belle in her youth, the daughter of well known people, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard N. Baker. Her father was president of the Atlantic Transport company and later of the Baltimore Trust company. He was a well to do man in his day.

So well to do, in fact, that he was able to fit out and give to the English government a hospitala ship to use in the Boer war in South Africa, about the year 1900. This was accepted by the British government, and a band of prominent society women, including the late Lady Randolph Churchill and headed by Princess Beatrix of Battenberg [Mount Batten they call themselves now], went out to help nurse the wounded Tommies. There were gay doings as well as nursing on the ship, and the enterprise attracted much attention at the time. It was one of the first examples of American interest in and generosity towards the troubles of other nations, a state of mind which found its fullest expression during the late war.

Mr. Baker died almost penniless, possibly partly in consequence of this gift, and his daughter, who had married Thomas Harrison, found herself, at the subsequent death of her husband, with no means for the support of herself and her child. She took up newspaper work, and it was in the course of this that she experienced her unusual and unpleasant Russian adventure. She is of a calm, well balanced temperament, strong physically and of a sturdy build, so that she was able to endure what would have killed a more nervous and high strung woman.

She was a graduate of St. Timothy's school at Catonsville and a classmate of Mrs. John Chapman of Chic Her brother-in-law, Albert Ritchie, the present governor of Maryland, man of distinguished family. In sho she is not of the class to whom hi adventure comes as a birthright. was rather thrust on her by fate— and the bolsheviki.

Fashions Here and There.

A woman recently returned from Paris says that she notices little difference in fashions here and there, except that she found the New York skirts shorter than those of Paris. The full skirt is coming much to the fore over there—full with a Spanish swing and swish to it, and not more than six or seven inches off the ground. Hats are various and of no especial tendency.

The world that has the wherewithal in Europe is gay and expensive, but one is conscious of that other stricken

The semi-final tennis matches for the Davis cup, held Aug. 18, 19, and 20 at the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest, drew the largest and most fashionable assemblage of the summer to that smartest of smart clubs. The weather was good on all three days, although on Saturday sweaters and capes were as useful as they were decorative, for in spite of brilliant sunshine the breeze felt more like one of October than August.

The latest and most chic styles in sports attire were in evidence and the boxes and grandstand were dotted with sweaters and hats of numerous gay colors. Mrs. Leander McCormick, always one of the most distinctively gowned young women in society, wore white on all three occasions, although the sweater she wore Saturday had a dark blue design on a white background. Literally "every one" attended at least one of the matches, and many persons watched the skillful playing of the Japanese and Indians all three days.

Among those who were in the gallery for all the matches were Mrs. William R. Linn and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick; Mr. and Mrs. Leander McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Owen B. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, Miss Virginia Graves, Miss Isabelle Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Brown Jr. and Mrs. Brown's sisters, the Misses Barbara and Martha Granger, and their respective fiancés, Alfred Cowles Jr. and William Mitchell Blair.

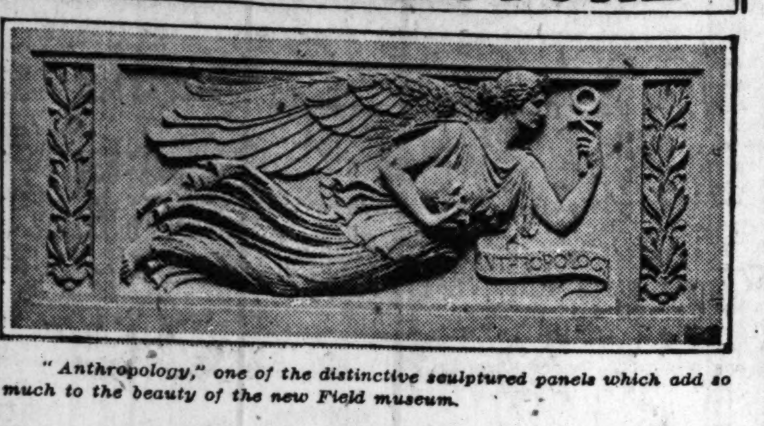
ART AND ARCHITECTURE

Pottery Groups Installed in Gunsaulus Hall

By Eleanor Jewett



"Anthropology," one of the distinctive sculptured panels which add so much to the beauty of the new Field museum.

THE immobility that characterizes the exhibitions at the Art institute during the summer months is still with us. Except for Gunsaulus hall there has been no change in any of the galleries for many weeks. It may be that this is a fortunate thing. Familiarity, in some cases breeding contempt, can, in respect to the paintings of the Martin Ryerson, Potter Palmer, or W. W. Kimball collections, incite only greater appreciation of the pictures and keener knowledge of the great masters whose works they are.

However, it is interesting to note the new arrangement of Gunsaulus hall. The Amelia Blanxius collection of English pottery, which has been installed there, was given to the Art institute by Mrs. Hodge and Mrs. Bell in memory of their mother, the late Mrs. Blanxius. Through the energy and sincere interest of Mrs. Emma B. Hodge the collection has grown from small beginnings to one of the most comprehensive and important pottery groups in the country.

All the important English potteries are represented by the best examples of their most successful periods. The various pieces of tableware were chosen for their distinctive outline and the place they held in the art of their day. The famous potters appear impressively in the very best of their output. The old Wedgwood of the Gunsaulus collection is supplemented in the Blanxius collections by the queensware and tableware for daily use that came from the Wedgwood potteries.

The old Wedgwood group, from the celebrated Sanderson acquisitions purchased by the late Dr. Frank Gunsaulus for the Art institute, has been reinstalled appropriately in Gunsaulus hall. The catalogue relative to its contents is especially valuable for the historic material relating to the life of Josiah Wedgwood.

With the opening of the winter school term not far distant, it seems appropriate to make mention now of the bulletin of the Chicago Public School Art society, which was received some few weeks ago. This society apparently concerns itself with the improvement of the interiors of various public schools, turning their barren unattractiveness of wall into places of beauty for the eyes of the children to rest upon. The following description of one collection of paintings, which was shown in the Bell school, is worth placing here to serve as an example of the excellent work that is being done by this little heard of organization:

"The James Viles loan collection, composed of three color etchings and eleven color facsimilies, the gift of Mr. Viles, a former director of the society, was recently hung in the Bell school, a large, modern building in the northwestern part of the city. The neighborhood is one, not yet overcrowded, where the children have the advantage of air, sunshine, and space. We shall not attempt to describe the various activities of the school—the manual training, domestic science, special rooms for the deaf and the subnormal children—but urge the reader to make a personal visit. It will be time well spent.

"Miss Barker, the principal, decided to have the collection hung in the music room, where it could be seen as a whole by groups of children coming to the room each day for singing. After a few weeks the pictures will be distributed to the various rooms, where they will remain until the end of a year, when the collection will be transferred to another school.

"There are two marines in the collection. One is an old favorite called 'Holland Waters,' by Clays, depicting a ship with colored sails, just returning from a voyage. The other is Josef Israel's 'Children of the Sea,' giving a glimpse of sunlit waters, dancing and enticing, and of children playing on the sand.

"The presence of life, both human and animal, is of great value in a picture. We have it in Van Marcke's 'Golden Autumn Days,' in Dagnan-Bouveret's 'Watering Trough,' and in that choice picture, so choice, indeed, that it should hang in every collection, Millet's 'Bringing Home the New Born Calf.'

"The glory of autumn color and the stillness of winter landscape should figure in every group of picture. 'Sunset at Montclair,' by Inness, with its deep tints and soft shadows, has the poetic beauty that may escape four childish minds while it lays hold upon a fifth. There are two winter landscapes in this group: 'Ice Bound,' by Metcalf, where a deep pool, at freezing point, rests at the foot of evergreen crowned rocks; the other 'A French Village Under Snow,' by Francois, one of the three color etchings selected for this special collection. The other two etchings are 'A Road in France,' by Raoul Serré, and a fascinating glimpse of Bruges, by Levé.

"No slight value attaches to these pictures of foreign life and of foreign cities. With the help of skillful, sympathetic teaching, they should be a means of culture as well as of pleasure to the children. Of such interest, indeed, are they that we have placed here two other scenes of this kind, one a Venetian palace with the canal at its foot by Ricco, the other Oliver Dennett Grover's 'June Morning on Lake Orta,' both silent witnesses to the poetic beauty and the compelling charm of Italy.

"We believe that a large proportion of pictures in any collection for city schools should be out of door scenes. The two in this group that do not appeal to the children through their love for the open air are calculated to interest them in widely different ways. One, Elizabeth Nourse's "Mother and Children," touches the child in the simplest, tenderest way. The other is a colored Copley print of the decorative painting, by Violet Oakley, called the "Drafting of the Constitution." In it we have excellent portraits of the stately Washington, the astute Franklin, and the brilliant Hamilton, with all of whom we want our children to become acquainted. It is a fine composition, teaching a lesson, not only of history, but also of patriotism and of service.

"These fourteen pictures should make six distinct appeals to the children. They should speak of the tenderness of human relations, the dignity of homely, every day life and effort, the great onward march of history, the stillness and soft splendor of nature, the mystery of the sea, the interest of other countries, and, best of all, the value of noble conceptions nobly wrought."

Other items from the bulletin make interesting reading. For example, from the fund established in memory of Juliet Wise, who was president of the Jochannah lodge at the time of the founding of its first loan collection of color fac similes, the Jochannah lodge is giving this year $250 for the purchase of pictures for its second loan collection, begun last year in the Spalding School for Crippled Children. This gift was made possible by a member of the lodge, who recently, in memory of her husband, gave a generous contribution to the Juliet Wise fund.

At the exhibition of Artists of Chicago and Vicinity, held last spring at the Art institute, four oil paintings were purchased and presented to the society, to be hung in the public schools. The two Fine Arts Building Purchase prize pictures, "Tangling Branches" and "Springtime," both by Leon Roecker, are to hang in the social room of the new Lindblom Technical High school, on Lincoln street. The E. B. Butler Purchase prize picture, "From the Elevated," by William B. Owen Jr., is already hung with pride in the Chicago Normal college, where the artist's father is principal. The Mrs. Julius Rosenwald Purchase prize picture, "The Circus," by A. Loo Matthews, is to be hung in the Budlong school, on Foster avenue.

This society was a pioneer in urging that eighth grade pupils be taken to the Art institute at regular intervals. In fact, it made all the arrangements for the gallery tours until the institute finally took over the work. Now throughout the school year groups of forty eighth grade pupils, four from one school of each of the ten districts, meet at the institute for six consecutive Saturday mornings. The first morning is spent in the Egyptian room, the second in the Greek room, the third in the hall of medieval sculpture, and the remaining three mornings in the gallaries where the children can see the development of the art of painting from the Italian primitives to the art of the present day.

At noon, when the class breaks up, groups of children usually linger to look again at the pictures or the various pieces of sculpture. Many of them return on Sunday, bringing their parents, who are eager to learn what the children can teach them. This genuine and unaffected response to the effort made by the institute to give of its wealth to the youngsters proves that "art appeals to children, because it is a good enchanter, leading to fairy land, or whithersoever the spirit listeth."

There is in the bulletin a further account of one or two other schools, but the context of each story varies in detail only from the account of the Bell school. In each case the coming of the pictures proves an inspiration to the children. And their reaction to the paintings proves the importance of the presence of worth while pictures in the school. This movement is one which should grow in strength and purpose from year to year. It is one step in municipal development of which every one may be proud. The more members the society gains, the greater the work it can do. For all of Chicago to belong would be no more than right.

portion of the continent which spends no money unnecessarily and is silently struggling not to go under in a bankrupt order of things.

Russians there are aplenty in the less expensive hotels, well educated folk who have up to now been used to everything that is luxurious. They are living on the sales of their jewelry and furs. Every time they sell anything they come back to their hotel in taxis and invite all their nearby countrymen to dinner, whereat they have wine and cigarets in abundance. Then they settle down to live on the remainder of the money so acquired, seemingly quite oblivious of the time approaching when there will be no more jewels and furs to sell.

What will happen then seems to concern them little. That is where their oriental strain comes in. The oriental is supported by a fatalism of which we of the more enterprising accidental world know nothing.

ASTRONOMY

AN EARLY SCHOOL OF ASTRONOMY.

WHEN man was struggling upward out of the depths of savagery into civilization, whose mark is the notice of things that do not immediately concern animal needs, what did he first think about?

Putting aside the present day savages of the earth, who are only distantly related to us, both in race and in culture, and confining ourselves to our own particular ancestors, we find that when man first wrote at all he wrote about the stars. The earliest known writings deal with astronomy as their principal subject.

In southern France there is a lofty cave through a mountain, carved by the river Arize. This cave is called the Mas d'Azil. A natural shelter of the best sort, a short cut through the mountain now followed by the highway from St. Girons to Carcassonne, cool in summer, protected and warm in winter, this cavern has been a pleasant spot for people, since the earliest times.

The soil in the cave contains coins and relics of the Romans, Gauls, and early French in the upper layers, and deep down in the lower layers the remnants of people long since forgotten in the region. Below the strata of objects lost there by the men of the iron and bronze ages are strata containing objects that men of the stone ages carried in, and left there. It was in these stone age layers that the remains of an ancient schoolroom were found.

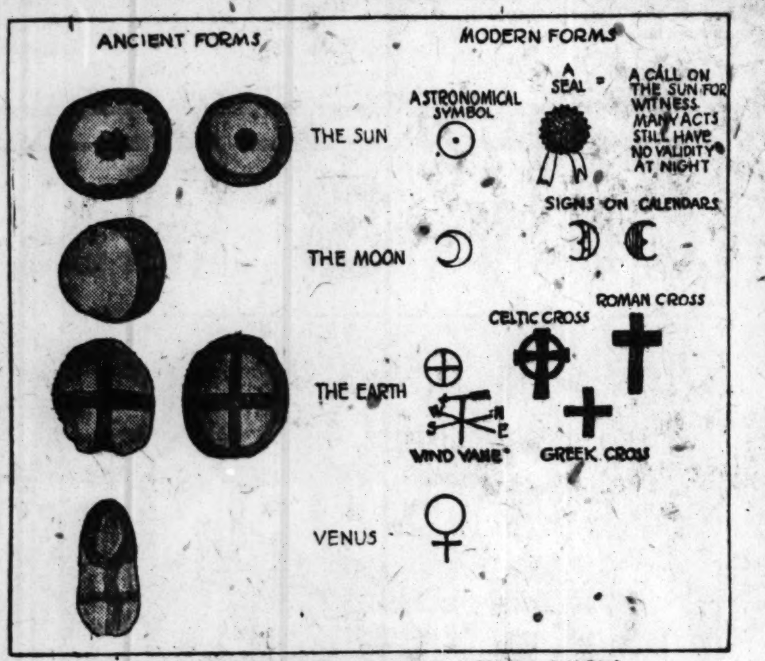
In the stone age there was no paper to write on; sheets of bark or of papyrus were unknown; there were no slates, but the river Arize, flowing by, was filled with an abundance of smooth, round pebbles. The students of those days wrote on these pebbles, using animal fat and iron oxide from the nearby hill for ink. Modern painters could well pattern after their example, for their glyphs, uniting chemically with the substance of the pebbles, has preserved their texts clear and sharp to this day.



STONE AGE SYMBOLS AND THEIR MODERN SHAPES
BY S.F. MAXWELL

The school of the Mas d'Azil flourished from 10,000 to 12,000 years ago. Painted pebbles are found there by the hundreds. The symbols on them often have close resemblances to archaic forms of our own "A B Cs," and the Roman numerals with I for 1, II for 2, III for 3, and so forth. But perhaps the most astonishing finds among them are the astronomical symbols.

Almanacs and ancient books on astronomy frequently give the ideographic symbols for the sun, moon, and planets rather than their names. An ideograph is a conventionalized picture of an object that stands for it in writing. Chinese writing is ideographic, and, in fact, all scripts contain ideographic picture words, even our own English language, which is the highest product of alphabetical evolution.

Ideographs have much to commend them, too, because among people of diverse languages (such as the stone age people must have been) they can be read by all, no matter what language the reader may be familiar with.

The normal course of the evolution of all script is to grow from the abbreviation, picture, or ideograph to the conventional letter, but the rate of evolution is different for different classes of forms. Those shapes which are used the most, the usual symbols for the commonest objects, change the fastest, while the shapes which are used least change slowest.

For example, the abbreviation for the Spanish word "Peso," "PS.," has changed to our dollar sign, "$," in 250 years. Our symbol for "pound" is lb., which stands for "Libra," but the English word of the same name, meaning a unit of money, has evolved into the sign "£." These changes have taken place within comparatively recent times.

The astronomical signs, being used so much less frequently, and at the same time so much more seriously, are changing much more slowly. The dot in the center of the circle indicates the sun; the crescent or light or dark faces in a circle, the moon (seen on calendars); Mars and Venus by symbols now used for male and female; and Jupiter by a sign which, curiously enough, is found in two forms in our modern type fonts, the figure "4," from the "fourth planet," and Rx on the physicians' prescriptions from the old Latin ideograph "Jupiter says."

Astronomers indicate the earth by a circle containing a cross. Its original meaning is the four directions within the circle of the horizon. This symbol of the cross, often with the circle, occurs over and over in all cultures and arts descended from Mediterranean lands. It is surprising, indeed, to see it in brown lines on pebbles painted by some unknown hand in the dim, far off ages when the glaciers were still lying over much of Germany.

The symbol for the sun is there, too, and the moon and the brighter planets. Unquestionably, astronomy was considered then, as now, the most dignified and the most worthy study for placing man's mind in contact with the infinite.

I Would Rather Walk than Ride!

"Since I discovered Cantilever Shoes, I prefer to walk. You've seen children run just because they were too vigorous and happy to move slowly. Cantilevers brought back to me that joy in walking."

Ordinary shoes, with a rigid strip of steel hidden in the shank, bind the muscles and restrict the movement of the foot so that much of the natural grace and freedom of walking is gone. But the Cantilever Shoe has a flexible shank. It bends WITH the foot. It encourages the free, graceful movement of the foot. It strengthens the arch.

The last is sensible and becoming. It follows the outline of the foot, and so gives plenty of room for the toes. The natural inner sole line permits the foot to lie in a healthy position, with the toes pointing comfortably straight ahead. This feature, and the set of the smart medium heel, encourage correct posture.

Send for Cantilever booklet. Mail orders filled.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Evangelism the Keynote of Church Federation Plans

By Rev. Gardner MacWhorter.

THE program being promoted by the Chicago Church federation for the coming year involves a simultaneous evangelistic movement for the entire Chicago region. The plan provides for preliminary preparation during the month of September by the evangelistic committees of the different denominations.

On Sunday and Monday, Oct. 2 and 3, there will be meetings at which Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York, executive secretary of the commission on evangelism of the federal council of churches, will be the principal speaker. He will be accompanied by the national evangelistic secretaries of the different denominations.

At the union ministers' meeting on Monday Bishop Thomas Nicholson will give the keynote address in welcoming these speakers and in stressing the importance of the proposed movement.

From the middle of October to the middle of December it is proposed to encourage classes for the training of workers in all parts of the city, and during this season, before the holidays, efforts will be made to secure lists of prospects and to develop a campaign of invitation throughout the neighborhoods of the churches. It is believed that this preparation through the autumn months will develop an atmosphere sympathetic with the idea of the great need of winning men to Christ on the part of all members of the churches. It is intended to seek the active coöperation of business men, to the end that they may contribute the same enterprise and energy in this great business that they give to their regular business affairs.

During the months from the first of January to Easter the intensive work will be carried along in efforts to recruit the membership of the churches with a large number of men and women and young people who will give open allegiance to the cause of Christ. "Gypsy" Smith will be here for six days early in the year, to give at least two addresses on each of the three sides of the city, especially designed to quicken the Christian people of Chicago to a greater consecration to this supreme task. During Easter week a series of noon day-loop meetings, when the speaker will be Dr. Frederick F. Shannon of Central church, will be held.

"During the last church year about 25,000 people were added to the Protestant churches, and we confidently believe that the number will be very largely increased," writes the Rev. Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston, president of the Chicago Church federation, "as the result of the movemnt now being planned. From time to time through the church year there will be meetings when the evangelistic note will be emphasized."

The Rev. William Rhind Wedderspoon, D. D., has been the pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church for the last five years, coming to Chicago from a six years' pastorate at the Foundry church in Washington, D. C. Previous to that he had served for sixteen years in the Methodist ministry at the Emory church, Pittsburgh, Pa., and in six New Jersey churches —at Highlands, Pointville, Farmingdale, North Long Branch, New Brunswick, and Asbury Park.

Though born in Scotland, the Rev. Dr. Wedderspoon received his education in the United States, taking his bachelor's and master's degrees at Taylor university, Upland, Ind., in 1898, and in 1907 he was honored with the doctorate in divinity in Allegheny college.

The Rev. Dr. Wedderspoon holds many important offices in addition to the pastorate of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church, one of the larger congregations of that denomination in Chicago. He is president of the board of trustees of the International Reform bureau in Washington, a trustee of the American university; a member of the Methodist Episcopal board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals; the Centenary commission; a director of the Chicago Tract society, and the Chicago Bible society; chairman of the commission on international friendship of the Chicago Church federation, and in 1920 he was a Chicago delegate to the quadrennial Methodist general conference, which was held in Des Moines.

In addition to his gifts as a pastor and preacher, the Rev. Mr. Wedderspoon is a talented reader in the Scotch dialect; his reading of Ian Maclaren's "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" being one of the best expressions of his talent.

Among other prominent Chicago Methodist clergymen who will attend the fourth ecumenical conference of world Methodism to be held in London, England, from Sept. 6 to 16 will be the Rev. J. S. Ladd Thomas, who will speak before the conference, and Elbert Robb Zaring, editor in chief of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, who goes to London to report the proceedings of this world-wide Methodist conference for the official weekly paper of the Methodist Episcopal church published in Chicago.

The Rev. Dr. Francis A. Purcell, rector of the Quigley Memorial Preparatory seminary, announces that the seminary will open on Tuesday morning, Sept. 6, with a spiritual retreat beginning at 8:30 o'clock in St. James' chapel. All students are expected to attend the retreat, after which examinations for promotion will be held.

The foreign student council of the Chicago Y. M. C. A. has prepared its program for the 1921-22 season. Cosmopolitan fellowship meetings will be held at the central department Sundays from 4 to 6:30. The fivefold purpose of the council is to keep a record of the arrival and whereabouts of every foreign student in Chicago; to further their spiritual interests; to promote friendly relations between various national groups; to secure greater hospitality and friendliness toward these students on the part of American citizens, and to provide foreign students as speakers for churches, schools, and civic organizations.

The Rev. John M. Wishart, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church of Washington, Ia., will come to Chicago on Oct. 1 to become the pastor of the Crerar Memorial church.

The forty-eighth annual camp meeting and Bible school of the Chicago district of the United Evangelical church is being held at Barrington, Ill., under the leadership of Bishop W. F. Heil, Presiding Elder H. H. Thoren, Pastor B. R. Schultze, and the Rev. J. G. Eller. The camp meeting is held for ten days and will close tomorrow.

The Orphans' and Old People's home festival of the Evangelical church will be held today at Bensenville, Ill., with services to be conducted by the Rev. A. W. Fruechte, pastor of Bethlehem Evangelical church, Diversey boulevard and Magnolia avenue, this morning, and this afternoon the Rev. H. W. Dinkmeyer, pastor of Bethany Evangelical church, Irving Park boulevard and Paulina street, will preach. A concert will given by Ballman's band this afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. The Rev. William Grotefeld of Downers Grove is the treasurer of the home, and active in arranging this afternoon's festival.

THE POTTERS

ORACLE (winking at Pa):
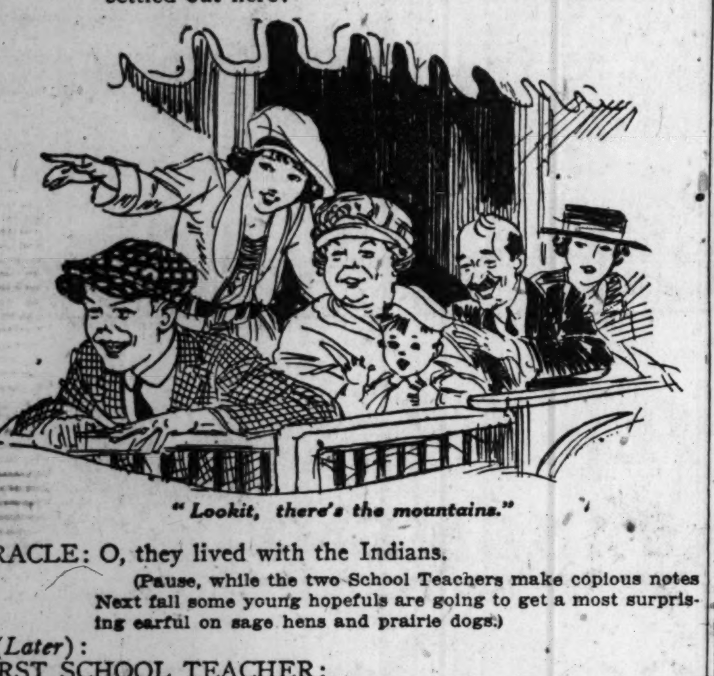
O, the railroad owns those who live on the right o' way, and the farmers own the others. But they're trying now to get the government to take them off their hands. You see, since prohibition came in the state taxes have been so depleted that the farmers have been compelled to pay a license for every prairie dog who lives on their farms. And besides they must build kennels to protect them in the winter.

MA: But what did the poor things do before the farmers settled out here?



"Lookit, there's the mountains."

ORACLE: O, they lived with the Indians.

(Pause, while the two School Teachers make copious notes Next fall some young hopefuls are going to get a most surprising earful on sage hens and prairie dogs.)

(Later):

FIRST SCHOOL TEACHER:
O, what was that? (pointing to a large depression in the ground.)

ORACLE: That's a coolie.

SECOND SCHOOL TEACHER:
Why do they call them that?

ORACLE: Because they were built by the coolies who were imported from the Pacific coast. They are fenced in during the summer and the sage hens are put in there to keep them from eating all the red huckleberries.

FIRST SCHOOL TEACHER:
Why? Do the sage hens love red huckleberries?

ORACLE (with a pitying look):
No, they hate them, but they like the effect after they eat them. You see, they first fill themselves with the red huckleberries and then sit out in the sun for three weeks without moving. By that time the huckleberries ferment, and then the sage hens begin to feel plumb reckless. That wouldn't be so bad, but pretty soon they go out and kill all the prairie dogs they can find. So that's why the farmers had these coolies built to keep them in until after the red huckleberry season is over.

(The two School Teachers note the most important points of this narrative.)

Scene V.—8 P. M., Mountain Time.

BILL: Lookit, there's the mountains.

MAMIE: O, aren't they gorgeous? Lookit, Ma, there's the mountains.

MA: Well, I must say, I'm glad of it. I'm just about all tuckered out.

PA: Well, well, so these are the mountains, eh? Well, well!

BILL: Gee, ain't they great!

MAMIE: O, lookit that peak sticking up over there! Isn't it a darling? Isn't it precious?

CONDUCTOR:
Next stop, Sunset Camp . . . get your baggage ready.

(And that's that!)

Dresses: Fall's Smartest Modes

Fifth Floor.

Very noticeable, even striking—is the predominance of black dresses; in no previous season for many a year has Dame Fashion so evidently featured black as a favorite.

Canton crepe, satin and charmeuse dresses in black, navy and brown comprise this unusual group; some elaborately bead embroidered, others with deft touches of leather applique, ribbon and braid.

Interesting are the new draped sleeves; and the smart full flare or straight line skirts; all are strictly dressmaker made on the newest lines; they have a distinctiveness usually found only in much higher priced dresses; sizes 36 to 44 for women and 14, 16 and 18 for misses; $30 is the least others ask; for Monday, your choice at.......... 24.50

Last Week—Kabo Corset Making Exhibit from the Pageant of Progress

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

The Kabo Corset Company's manufacturing exhibit which attracted such constant attention at the Pageant of Progress has been set up in our Corset Section, so that every woman can see just how a corset is made—see how deftly and accurately the girls follow up each process on the eight machines needed—especially on the "four needle back stripper" and on the Duplex eyeletter—the most modern Singer corset machine equipment to be had.

The Kabo Factory Demonstrator Will Explain the Various Operations

A display full of interest to the woman who is particular about her corsets. Three popular models, No. 7110, No. 7098 and Special No. 5, are being made, at $3.50 and $5.00. If you wish, our corsetières can fit you to a pair—or to the particular model your figure may require, for we have Kabo corsets in all styles for every figure at 1.50 to 8.50

Get Them Ready for School

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

Get your boys and girls ready for school, see that they wear Bear underwaists and they will be comfortable, especially your boys; they'll appreciate the freedom of the tricot knit. It is long wearing and does not bind. The tape used for staying is knitted, making it elastic; Bear underwaists support the outer clothing without dragging at the shoulders.

The buttonholes are knitted and locked in and can not unravel, so gratifying alike to mother and to the children.

Mother knows that all knitted fabrics shrink after washing, the BEAR waist is made larger to take care of this shrinkage, and after the waist is washed will fit the average child of the age on tag. For boys and girls, sizes 2 to 12 years, at.. 41c

Laundry Note: After washing knitted goods, grasp the top and bottom of the fabric firmly and pull gently; a better shaped garment will result.

Convince yourself of how sales are easily made. We will help you get started. You can either give full or part time. Come and get our proposition.

TALMAN & THIELE,
53 W. Jackson-blvd., Room 1146.

ARE WE THE PEOPLE YOU WANT TO WORK FOR? Are You the Man WE Want?

An internationally known manufacturer of a universally used accounting device, the largest concern in this line, offers an exceptional opportunity to a young man who is ambitious to advance to an executive position and willing to work hard to qualify for it. His general qualifications and adaptability to a high grade selling proposition should soon establish for him an earning capacity of about $5,000 a year on a commission basis.

A student of accountancy or one familiar with office routine can qualify if he has real selling ambition and possesses a good general education, a good appearance, a pleasing personality, and the ability to interview big executives. If you understand bookkeeping we can teach you to sell our product very quickly.

Act quickly if you are in earnest. Call Mr. Anglim or Mr. Buswell, Tel. State 5873, for an early appointment and a frank discussion of the details of this splendid opportunity.

SALESMEN Acquainted with Hotel and Restaurant Trade.

One of the principal importers and roasters of a high grade, trade-marked coffee and tea, about to extend its operations in Chicago and adjoining territory, requires the services of a few high class salesmen acquainted with the hotel and restaurant trade. The kind of men that are wanted are those who value a permanent connection with a high class house, where there is an opportunity for advancement and a bright future rather than a big salary to start. Those engaged will receive a living salary and expenses until their ability has been proven, after which time their salaries will be adjusted to a point commensurate with results obtained. This is a real opportunity for real earnest salesmen of ability to assure themselves of a life connection with one of the best houses in the United States. Tell all about yourself in your first letter, which will be treated in strict confidence. Address L W 12, Tribune.

SALESMEN.

We have several openings in our sales force for clean living, truth telling gentlemen of good habits who can appeal to the largest financial people in the city of Chicago with perfect assurance that you will be received not only as a gentleman, but will be heralded by all men you may interview as a representative of the greatest necessity known in the Loop of Chicago today.

To salesmen of ability and qualifications we can truthfully say you will never want anything better. The greatest surprise Chicago has ever known, coupled with being an absolute necessity, is now ready to be made public. Call in person for interview immediately. Do not answer unless you possess these qualifications.

Suite 340 National Life Building.

SALESMEN
Acquainted with Grocery Trade.

One of the principal importers and roasters of a high-grade, trade-marked brand of coffee and tea about to extend its operations in Chicago and adjoining territory, requires the services of a few high class salesmen acquainted with the retail grocery trade. The kind of men that are wanted are those who value a permanent connection with a high class house, where there is an opportunity for advancement and a bright future rather than a big salary to start. Those engaged will receive a living salary and expenses until their ability has been proven, after which time their salaries will be adjusted to a point commensurate with results obtained. This is a real opportunity for real earnest salesmen of ability to assure themselves of a life connection with one of the best houses in the United States. Tell all about yourself in your first letter which will be treated in strict confidence. Address L W 13, Tribune.

SALESMAN—A REAL OPPORTUNITY IS OFFERED A LIFE-SIZED TIRE SALESMAN. MUST KNOW TIRE DISTRIBUTORS AND DEALERS IN CHICAGO AND MIDDLE WESTERN TERRITORY AND BE ABLE TO CONTROL BIG BUSINESS. HEADQUARTERS IN CHICAGO. AN OPPORTUNITY TO REPRESENT A REAL TIRE AND RECEIVE A REAL INCOME. WRITE GIVING FULL DETAILS OF YOUR EXPERIENCE, WHAT YOU HAVE BEEN EARNING, ETC. ADDRESS B F 20, TRIBUNE.

SALESMAN—WE WISH TO GET IN TOUCH with a man who has the experience and acquaintanceship with the wholesale grocery and kindred trades of Chicago; one familiar with food products preferred. The territory mentioned is open to big possibilities. The line, quality products, and a man of initiative and strong selling ability can make it a very interesting proposition with big future possibilities. Full particulars covering experience, etc. Replies will be held strictly confidential. Address B N 19, Tribune.

SALESMAN—I WANT TO RUN MY BUSINESS in my own way, and I don't propose to let my sub-executives run it for me. If you are a real salesman of executive ability, and are willing to prove it to me and not try to run my end, I will pay you, and I'll pay you big, probably more than you have ever earned before. Don't answer unless you are entirely in earnest and can assume authority gracefully. Address P D 567, Tribune.

SALESMEN — SPECIALTY, WHO HAVE traveled Indiana and sold goods through the L. C. Mercantile Co. and Creasey Corporation Houses and are familiar with the savings we effect through our system of merchandising, for an entirely new membership proposition. Your earnings are limited only to your ability. If you are a real salesman who will work, write at once to THE CREASEY CORPORATION, South Bend, Ind.

SALESMEN—WE HAVE A FEW UNUSUAL openings for real salesmen in the city and as resident representatives in outside territory. If you are a red blooded battler you can make good for yourself and for us. No stocks, bonds, or real estate, no investment required, but an opportunity for a worker to make a good income; commission only. Address P D 498, Tribune.

SALESMEN—ARE YOU SATISFIED WITH your income? If not, call and see me. A real opportunity for live salesman to make money. Season just opening. We will give you every assistance that is necessary for your success. A wonderful future for the man who follows instructions. Call Room 847 First National Bank Bldg., 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. and 6 to 8 p. m. Ask for MR. CORCORAN, Sales Manager.

SALESMAN—WITH ORDINARY INTELLIGENCE, properly applied who is imbued with the spirit of progress. For such a man we have a vacancy on our force, paying a high income, with a future. REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Own Your Farm Home

"I AM TOO POOR TO PAY RENT." So said a man who recently bought land.

OUT OF EVERY 1,000 FARMERS in the U. S. there were 381 tenants in 1920. Tenancy has increased 61% since 1880, when there were 236 tenants out of every 1,000 farmers. Increase in tenancy for 40 years shows profitableness both to renters and owners; so it is twice as profitable to own the land you farm.

OWN YOUR FARM HOME. Get the double profit from operating and owning —especially when you can buy as productive land in Michigan as you rent in another state for the price of two or three years' rent. Our prices are $15 to $30 per acre, depending upon location and other advantages, and our terms are so reasonable that most any man can purchase.

CLAY LOAM LANDS with clover and timothy growing on them, we offer you near towns, on good roads, and with rural free delivery, telephone lines, grade and high schools all there. Get some land and reduce for yourself the cost of living which the National Industrial Conference says is 62% higher now than the July, 1914, level.

THE BEST TIME to see the land and harvests is right now. Come and talk to farmers who are established here. We have people making the trip every day.

WRITE AT ONCE about special low Homeseekers' rates to the lands and send for booklet fully describing them. Come and see some of AMERICA'S LAST BEST LAND to be had at a low price.

INSTRUCTION.

R. CUTTRISS WARDE, VOICE SPECIALIST.

Scientific voice building for singing and speaking; perfection in the art of singing in all its branches. Method based on the old Italian school of high front tone placement, nasal resonance, and diaphragmatic [deep] breathing. Specialist of the "voce postata" [golden secret of Italian voice placement], the whole foundation of "bel canto." A bad voice made good and beautiful. To this statement have the highest private and professional indorsement after twenty years of experience. First hand knowledge of all professional requirements for a successful career. Have one of the largest professional followings in America. Also high school for dramatic art and education, expression, and public speaking. The power of expression leads to: The ability to think "on your feet." Effective recitals. The mastery over other minds. Social prominence. Business success. Efficiency in any undertaking. Are these things worth while? This school is famous for brilliant results, which offer complete and thorough training in all branches of dramatic work with stage exp. while learning. Among the graduates of this school are many prominent artists now before the public. R. Cuttriss Warde, 922 N. Clark-st. [Washington Park-sq.]. Superior 6047. Clark-st. cars to studio doors, 10 min. from loop.

MME. LA CAPRIA, OPERATIC PRIMA Donna and Concert Singer, recognized as one of the greatest dramatic sopranos by Caruso, Bonci, Schumann Heink, Morgenstern, Metropolitan Opera, Gui, San Carlo Opera, Naples and R. E. Johnston, Concert Mgr., New York, will accept pupils ambitious for the highest perfection in singing. Marvelous progress obtained with each lesson due to the scientific knowledge imparted. Three octaves of phenomenally easy and brilliant tones. Deep breathing, pure diction, concert repertoire, complete preparation in all operatic roles, including rehearsals with entire casts. Talented pupils assisted in securing engagements. If you have failed to get results, now is your opportunity. Phone Kenwood 1431 for free voice trial. Studios, 4457 Vincennes-av.

CADILLAC'S 6 BARGAINS

PIERCE-ARROW LIMOUSINE 6-38. Model C-4, 1917. Painted a standard Pierce blue. Mechanical condition on this car is exceptionally fine, because the car has not had a great deal of mileage. Has an excellent set of Goodyear cord tires, one extra, bumper, clock, etc. Without a question this is the best Pierce-Arrow Limousine that we have ever offered. There is hardly a scratch on the paint. Motor runs very quietly. The upholstery shows practically no wear and the tires show very little wear. If you are looking for a Pierce-Arrow Limousine that we believe to be almost as good as a new one, do not fail to see this car. The price is extremely low and it will move quickly. It does not need any mechanical work or paint. In fact, the car is ready for continuous service without any additional expense. Price $3,250.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, ROADSTER. This is the current series and the same car as we are delivering new today, with equipment, costing over $4,200. We have made a thorough inspection of its mechanical condition and will guarantee it. Painted a dark Cadillac blue. Upholstering and top—in fact, the entire car—is almost like new. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, etc. If you are looking for the latest series Cadillac at $1,000 below the market price this bargain will please you. You will probably never have another opportunity this year to obtain a Cadillac car at this figure. Special for this sale, $2,500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, SUBURBAN SEDAN. This is the latest and current series and the same car we are delivering new today costing over $5,700. Has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra, bumper, clock, seat covers, etc. Has not had a great deal of mileage and the customer having availed himself of our service department, the car is being turned in to us in remarkable condition. We have made a thorough inspection of it mechanically and will guarantee it. You will probably never have another opportunity of buying a current series Cadillac Sedan like this. Special for this sale, $3,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, VICTORIA COUPE. This is a double letter series and a very late car of this series. The body on this car is practically a duplicate of our present coupe. We have made a thorough inspection in our mechanical department and replaced parts where necessary, and we will guarantee this car. We have just refinished it in our own paint shop and it has the appearance of a new Cadillac. Has an excellent set of cord tires and one extra. The velour upholstery in this car shows practically no wear. If you are looking for a late series Cadillac Coupe that we believe to be almost as good as new, don't fail to make an examination of this car. Price $2,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, VICTORIA COUPE, 4 passenger. This is our latest and current series and the same car that we are delivering new today costing over $5,000. We have never had one of this model to offer at this price that looks so much like new as this particular car does. Paint and upholstery show practically no wear. Cord tires are in excellent shape. Has one bumper and one extra tire. Mechanical condition is guaranteed by this company. We have priced this extremely low to move it at once. If you want a wonderful bargain in a Cadillac Coupe that we believe is as good as new, do not fail to see this automobile. Special for this sale, $3,750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, ROADSTER. This is probably the opportunity you have been waiting for to get one of this series of the Cadillac Roadster at this price. Mechanical condition is exceptionally good. In fact, the entire car is above the average used car. Has many extras, including spare tire, bumper, clock, etc. Tires are very fine. To avail yourself of this bargain you will have to come early, as the price will sell the car at once. Special for this sale, $1,500.

PAIGE 6-38, LIGHT SIX CYLINDER, 5 PASSENGER CAR. Just rebuilt in our own shops and refinished in black with white wheels and trim. Bright parts all renickled. This car has a reputation for its low cost of operation and wonderful durability. Body and general coach condition excellent. Top and upholstery good. Equipped with 5 good tires. The most exceptional bargain at $850.

PAIGE 6-39, LIGHT SIX CYLINDER, 5 PASSENGER CAR with Springfield body. Has an all-year top that can be readily converted with the change of seasons. Just thoroughly rebuilt in our own shops and put in A1 mechanical condition. Refinished a beautiful dark green and has in every respect the appearance of a new car. We feel confident that if you were as familiar with this car as we are you would appreciate the wonderful value we are offering at $1,150.

PAIGE 6-42 1920, 5 PASSENGER TOURING. Just rebuilt and refinished standard coach painter's green. Runs and looks like a new car. This car has had very careful driving here in the city. Top and upholstery good. Bumper and excellent set of tires. This has the same lines and is practically the same car as our 1921 model. Here is an opportunity to get a late model high grade, economical car at a great saving. Price $1,350.

PAIGE 6 CYLINDER, 7 PASSENGER TOURING CAR, Model 6-55, [Continental engine.] Rebuilt and refinished a beautiful Rolls-Royce blue, with 5 white wire wheels. An ideal vacation car. It is roomy enough for the entire family and luggage. Equipped with 5 good tires, bumper fore and aft, lock, clock, full equipment of tools. It is apparent that this car has had very careful handling and represents to the prospective buyer a great deal of service. An easy car to handle. A car that just a couple of months ago sold for $1,850; our reduced price today is $1,500. Come and see it.

THE QUESTION

Why do you see so many Oaklands on the streets and roads today?

THE ANSWER

People buy rebuilt OAKLANDS when they cannot afford a new one, for they get the same satisfactory transportation as a new Oakland. For a safe and economical BUY a REBUILT OAKLAND is hard to match. The prices are remarkable.

Pierce ARROWS

1920 Dual Valve 6-38
COUPE

Cast aluminum body, Westinghouse shock absorbers, front and rear Pierce-Arrow bumpers, exterior finished in Brewster green, new silk and linen seat covers. We feel very fortunate in being able to show you a car that is next to impossible to duplicate, especially at our price.

1920 Dual Valve 6-48
FOUR PASSENGER
SPORT TOURING

Brand new, black color scheme, with orange wheels, gives it a most striking appearance. The last word in an automobile.

1920 Dual Valve 6-38
FOUR PASSENGER
SEDAN

One of the most beautiful and artistically appointed automobiles you can possibly imagine. Spanish leather upholstery, six brand new cord tires, painted a Rolls-Royce blue with black wheels. The 1920 PIERCE-ARROW FOUR PASSENGER SEDAN has been pronounced the world's greatest closed car. They are extremely scarce, and never has one been offered before at such a low figure.

Packard Single Six Touring. This is the latest light six Packard. It was traded in for a Sedan and has only been used a few thousand miles. The car is being refinished and cannot be told from new in any particular. The price is only $2,750.

National Touring Car. This is the 12 cylinder model and is a very powerful and speedy automobile. It has been exceptionally well cared for and is very completely equipped with tonneau, windshield, seat covers, bumper, excellent cord tires, heater, winter sides, etc. This is a truly remarkable value at only $750.

Chalmers Sport Touring. Here is a practically new car in perfect condition. The cord tires show no wear, spare tire never used. Attractively painted in dark blue with red wire wheels. Big saving on this car at $1,500.

White "30" Roadster. Here is a snap for some one. Practically new Goodyear Cord tires, spare tire, bumper, etc. Paint is only fair, but the mechanical condition is very good. The price is only $350.

Packard Twin Six Touring, 1917 model. This car has just been received from our paint shop [the color is standard Packard Blue]. We have thoroughly overhauled the motor and chassis, equipped the car with practically new tires, and brought it up to new condition throughout. Bumper, wire wheels, etc., are part of the extra equipment. This is a value very hard to duplicate at $1,750.

LOCOMOBILE

7 pass. touring, newly painted, silver radiator, silver steps; briefly, with an appearance that causes sensation and envy in the streets. This magnificent car glides through the boulevards like a discreet boat through a blissful night in May, and the price? $2,350, a third of the actual price today. Remember, you have an opportunity to buy a wonderful, mechanically perfect, Locomobile for $2,350, which, with a dealer, only buys a cheaper class car. I need the money, so I have to sacrifice my automobile at this rediculous low rate. Ph. Kenwood 2506.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

A LONG ESTABLISHED AND HIGHly successful Chicago corporation is now putting out an article which carries a strong and immediate appeal to the buying public. We had many successes, but this is the best we have ever gotten out.

We want men of push and ability to assume the marketing of this high class line, which retails to the public for $175 each and up.

We want dealers to open their own stores in choice selected localities, where success is a foregone conclusion.

To carry stock and finance yourself will require from $5,000 to $50,000, depending upon the field in which you locate. If you are looking for an opening and an opportunity for your money and your ability, come in and see Mr. O. M. Poland, Room 1544 Hotel La Salle, Chicago, and get a demonstration of our article.

We have no patents, no stock, no territory nor other incomprehensible things to offer you, but we have the best selling article you ever saw, and the profits to be made from every sale will net you a good week's salary.

Bring some of the fair sex with you, as our article appeals strongly to the ladies, and their opinion will be worth something to you. Banks' and Dun's financial references exchanged.

BUSINESS FOR YOURSELF.
Men and Women.

We establish you in a permanent and profitable business, protected by exclusive contract. We manufacture our own patented article; no intermediate profits or commissions; in a class by itself; salable to millions of users and at popular price. No money tied up in rent or fixtures. We supply you with attractive advertising matter and complete selling plans. Money required for purchase of merchandise only is from $100 to $500, according to size of territory. This is an absolutely new article and a dandy. Choice of territory as long as it lasts. We want to establish permanent connection as this is basis for other things to follow. See or write. N. P. LADD, Room 904, 29 S. La Salle-st.

Closing hog market was strong at high point of the week, with practically nothing left unsold and traders expecting strong to higher prices the fore part of the coming week. Top light sold Saturday at $9.90, with the general average $8.25.

Last week's average price of hogs at $8.15 stood $1.10 below previous week and within 25c of low week of the year about two months ago, when the average at $7.90 was lowest since June, 1916.

Barring holiday periods last week's receipts of hogs at 112,000 were smallest since last October, yet the total stood 4,300 above the ten year average. Estimated average weight last week was the same as the previous week at 249 lbs, against 254 a year ago, 255 lbs two years ago, and 242 lbs for the ten year average.

Closing Cattle Trade Strong.

After breaking severely the forepart of the week general cattle trade closed strong, with smaller receipts and higher prices expected the coming week. Average price of good beef steers dropped 45c last week at $8.10.

Excessive suplies of native and range lambs forced the general average price 95c below previous week at $9.25, standing lowest since last February and nearly $1.00 below the ten year average.

Monday's probable hog receipts are estimated at 30,000 to 40,000. G. M. Nicoll marked 30,000, E. R. Gentry 31,000, R. W. Oaks and E. S. Waterbury 32,000, J. M. Waters 33,000, W. H. Overman and F. W. Waddell 34,000, F. Gehrmann 35,000, F. R. Burrows 36,000, M. Minteer 38,000, and A. G. Welhener 40,000.

Receipts at Chicago for next Monday are estimated at 15,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs, and 25,000 sheep, against 25,128 cattle, 22,810 hogs, and 24,751 sheep the corresponding Monday a year ago. Next week's estimated receipts, 47,000 cattle, 110,000 hogs, and 115,000 sheep.

Brooklyn Edison.

H. H. D.—The $3,000,000 of general mortgage 7 per cent bonds, series D, of the Brooklyn Edison company are a direct obligation secured by a mortgage on all the company's real and personal property, subject to $12,701,000 underlying bonds. The company's gross income, after expenses, taxes, etc., for the year ended June 30, 1921, was more than twice the total annual interest charges and for the last six calendar years averaged about three and one-half the interest on the entire funded debt during that period. The earnings have increased steadily for the last six years. It supplies electric light and power to most of Brooklyn. The bonds rate as a secured investment.

G. W.—The $3,000,000 West Penn Power company 7 per cent bonds, series D, are secured by a first mortgage on all physical property of the company. Gross earnings for the year ending June 30, 1921, were $9,320,331, and net, $3,246,028, which covers interest charges of $1,164,080, on all outstanding mortgage bonds nearly three times. Earnings have steadily increased for the last four years, both gross and net. These are a well secured investment.

Brief Answers.

W. L. V.—We advise bonds rather than stocks as sound investment for the investor of limited means. Among the common stocks, however, Standard Oil of Indiana ranks high. At present in general we should prefer industrial securities to those of railroads for the small investor.

J. G.—The St. Louis Southwestern Consolidated 4s are secured by first, second, and third liens, principally third. The road earned its interest charges during the period of government operation and was doing better at the end of 1920, but during the first five months of 1921 it has not been doing so well. These bonds appear to be well secured, but of only medium grade.

M. B.—We have no record of the Co-Operative Health association of Los Angeles. There is no market for its stock.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Trade in produce yesterday was fair. Butter prices were firm, with holders less anxious to sell. A firmer market is noticeable for eggs, with fresh firsts 29@31c, the latter for new laid. Receipts for the week were 51,361 cases, against 60,530 cases the previous week and 48,549 cases last year. Cold storage stocks at the four market are 3,386,716 cases, compared with 3,039,229 cases last year, a small decrease from the last week.

Live hens declined and spring chickens declined 1c and ducks 2c, with hens 24c for heavy and 19c for the general run. Spring chickens 22, roosters 15c, and ducks 12@22c, depending upon variety.

Potatoes were fair sale at 25c decline on cobblers and red stock, the latter bringing $1.25@2.50 and the former $2.50@2.75 per 100 lbs in carlots. Receipts on Saturday were 100 cars, and for the week 721 cars, against 340 cars the previous week and 232 cars last year. There were 305 cars on team track.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

KNOCKING SOUTH END OF BOUL MICH PROVES A BOOST

Blum Building to Be Made Seven Stories Higher.

BY AL CHASE.

Harry H. Blum believes Boul Mich, from Madison street to the Blackstone hotel, is Chicago's finest shopping street. Mr. Blum likewise firmly believes it's always going to be the city's niftiest spending thoroughfare. Consequently, when upper Michigan avenue enthusiasts begin talking about across the river and point with pardonable pride to the Spearmint tower and brag about the Drake, Mr. Blum is annoyed.

But instead of letting his annoyance merely turn into a peeve, Mr. Blum recently let it get him genuinely mad and out of his wrath has been born plans for what is expected will be one of Michigan avenue's most attractive office buildings and later on one of the world's most beautiful theaters.

Mr. Blum Loses His Goat.

"I've heard so much boasting about Upper Michigan avenue," said Mr. Blum, "that a few weeks ago, when I'd heard one unusually talkative person insinuate that in a few years there'd be nothing south of the river, I lost my temper and told him what I thought of the boulevard between Madison and the Blackstone, and said I'd back up my belief in its future by building as fine a building as I could put up."

Mr. Blum, who has more Boul Mich shop frontage devoted to women's apparel than any other Chicagoan, being sole owner of Blum's extensive shops in the Congress hotel and also the Vogue shop in the same building, some time ago bought the seven story Chicago Musical college building next door north of the Blackstone hotel.

Yesterday he announced that Architect Alfred S. Alschuler had drawn plans for a $600,000 seven story addition to be added on top, making it a fourteen story structure, which he believes will be the most luxurious office building in the west.

Plans Luxurious Theater.

And as soon as the present lease on the Ziegfeld theater in the rear of the building expires on May 1, 1924, Mr. Blum will convert the present dingy movie house into what he claims will be the most beautiful and luxurious intimate type of playhouse for light comedies in America, something Chicago needs badly.

"Negotiations practically are closed with one of the largest theatrical producing concerns in the country for the remodeled theater," said Mr. Blum.

The entire first floor front of the present Blum building, which fronts 80 feet on the boulevard and is 173 feet deep, will be completely remodeled. The entrance will be made into a black and gold gateway leading to an ornate marble and bronze lobby. Considerable paneling will be done in the new offices.

Will Build Offices to Suit.

"I'll build the offices exactly as wanted for any one who will take a five years' lease," said Mr. Blum. "If a tenant wants 'em paneled to the ceiling, he can have 'em. I'm hoping to make it the finest office building in the west. I'm going to spend $50,000 on an elaborate French chocolate shop in the basement—the finest Mr. Alschuler can design."

Mr. Blum opened his first shop on Michigan avenue in 1910 with 17½ feet frontage. He did a $64,000 business that year. Last year his business totaled $5,000,000 and the first six months of 1922 indicate a 21 per cent increase, leading Mr. Blum to predict a $6,000,000 record this year. The buyers' strike apparently isn't worrying him.

Has 400 Employés.

Mr. Blum uses the entire sixth and seventh floors of the Blum building and half of the fifth and will use another floor in the new addition for the manufacture of his garments. He has 400 employés.

The new addition will be completed by May 1, 1922. Work will start next month.

Says Entire Country Is Still Heavily Underbuilt

The entire country is still heavily underbuilt, according to S. W. Straus & Co., and only abnormal building activity for some time to come will make up the housing deficit, and also keep pace with the increased demand for buildings of all types, which are bound to make their influence felt as general business conditions pick up.

"There is no reason why capital should not be found for the housing situation today where right and proper safeguards for the protection of the lender are provided, as fundamental conditions are sound," says their statement. "A firmer tone is developing in prices for building materials, accompanying a somewhat increased demand for these commodities and in many departments of the industry opinion is expressed that prices will not sag below present levels, excepting, of course, the usual routine fluctuations.

"The heavy diversion of both capital and labor to residential building has impeded the development of office buildings, industrial plants and similar types and while this slowing up does not greatly affect the situation at this time, it will be reflected in a considerable shortage in these classes of buildings when the general business situation shall have returned to normal."

BUYS MILWAUKEE AVENUE 99 YEAR LEASE.

A ninety-nine year leasehold on the property at 1462-64 Milwaukee avenue, with a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 125, has been sold by Oscar S. Eiger, owner of the Cunard building, to Sol Cohn. The lease has ninety-two years to run and calls for a net rental of $3,000 annually. A. Clyman & Co. and W. J. Gough were brokers.

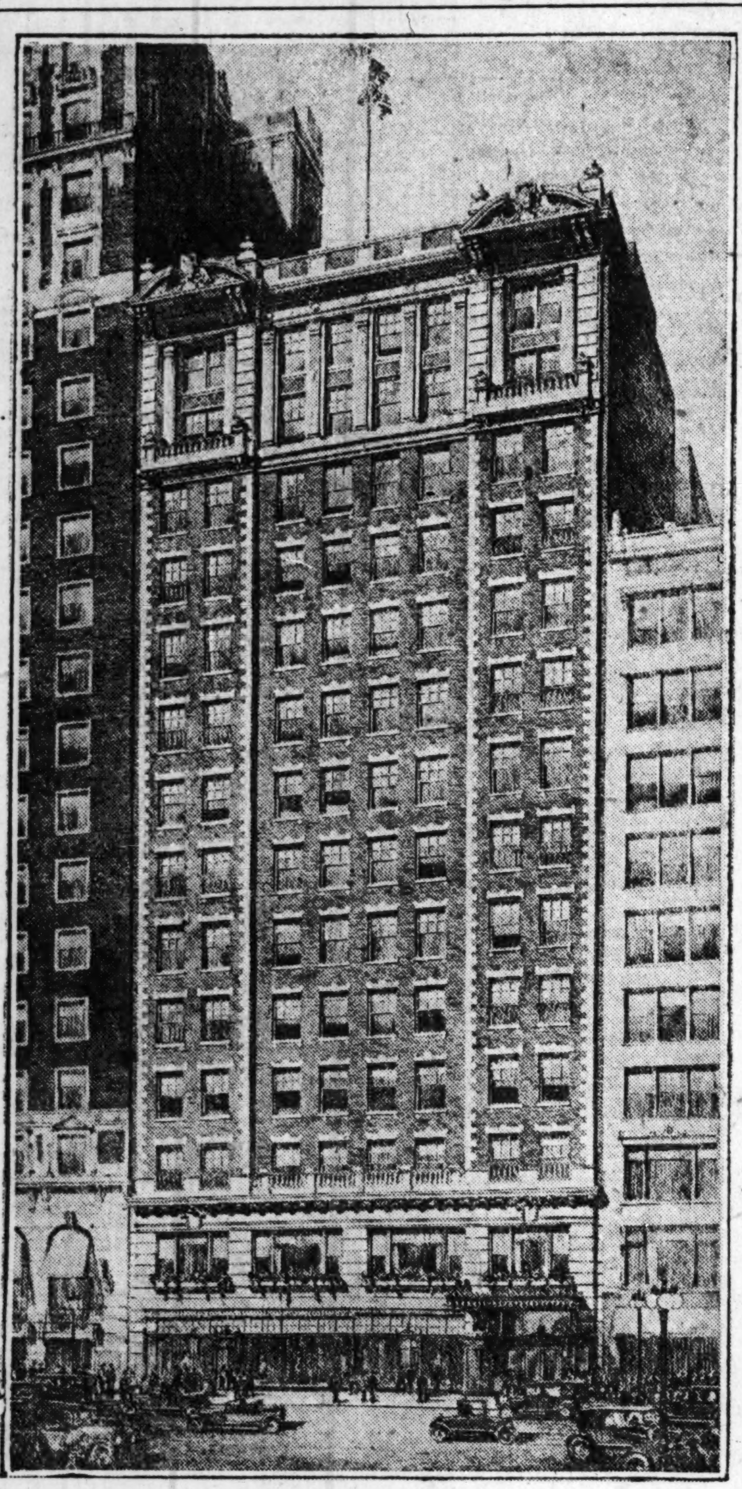
$450,000 LOAN ON NEW PLANT.

The Waterway Paper Products company has given to the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank a trust deed for $450,000, six years, 7 per cent, on the first $1,000,000 unit of the $4,000,000 print paper plant now being built at South Kedzie and the river from plans by Frank D. Chase, inc.

JEWELERS LEASE MADISON STREET SHOP.

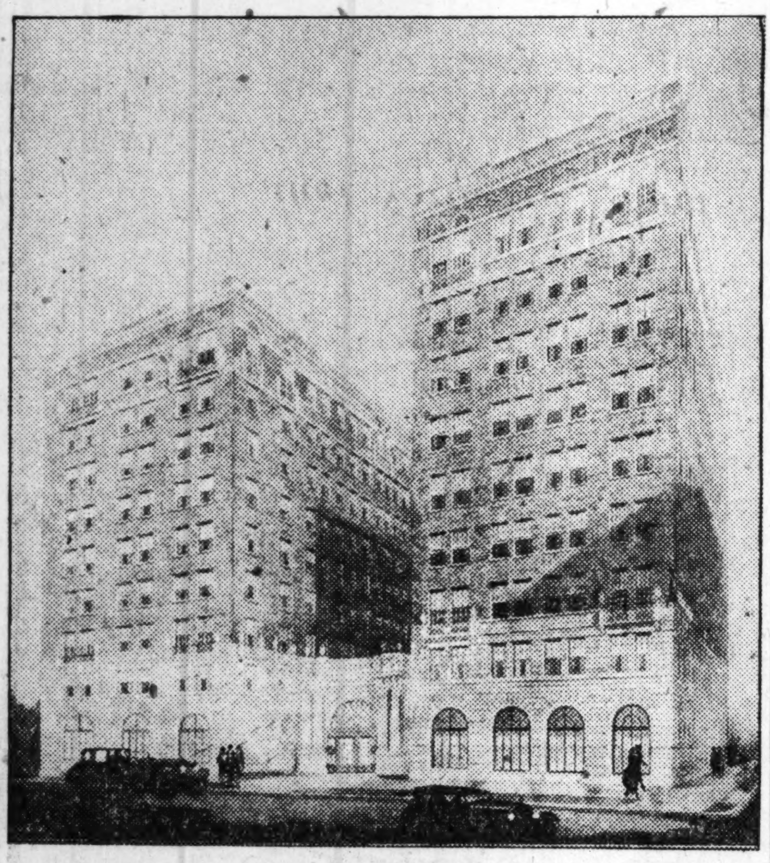
Lewis Roth and Joseph Mehlman have leased from C. N. Johnson, inc., through E. F. Keebler & Co. the 13x20 shop at 80 West Madison street beginning Sept. 15.

Boul Mich's Newest Improvement



ARCHITECT ALFRED S. ALSCHULER has drawn plans for a $600,000 seven story addition to be built on top of the present seven story Blum building, formerly the Chicago Musical College building, in Michigan avenue adjoining the Blackstone hotel on the north. Harry A. Blum, owner, intends making it one of the finest office buildings in the city. Later on the old Ziegfeld theater in the rear will be remodeled into one of the most luxurious theaters in the world, to house light comedies.

Here's Another North Side Hotel



CHICAGO is to have another big apartment hotel. Attorneys Mergentheim, Altheimer & Mayer have succeeded in getting a Circuit court mandamus order compelling the building department to issue a permit to the Briar Building corporation, of which George Haas is president, for a nine story $1,500,000 structure at the northwest corner of Briar place and Cambridge avenue, to be known as the Briar Apartment hotel. The building ordinance limits the height of apartment buildings to one and a half times the width of the street. The corporation claimed the building would be a hotel because of a common dining room, lobby, and library. Architect Paul Hansen's plans call for 112 apartments of two, three, four, and five rooms. It will be ready May 1. The lot is 122x127.

Some New Apartments

Work will start in two weeks on an eighteen apartment building at the northwest corner of Washtenaw and Ainslie, to have four and five rooms, from plans by Architect A. L. Himelblau. It will cost $100,000 and will be ready about Feb. 1. The site is 66x125. J. J. Bickley is the owner.

Mr. Himelblau also has designed three apartment buildings of six flats each, on the south side of Pratt boulevard, fifty feet west of Ashland, work on which will start the middle of September. They will be completed Feb. 1. Dr. M. M. Schoenbrod is owner. Each flat will have six rooms. The total cost will be $150,000.

A building is being erected at the northwest corner of Eastwood and North Rockwell by L. Siegel, at a cost of $60,000, from plans by Architect Himelblau. There will be six apartments and five stores.

Frank Sullivan has had plans for a three story building drawn by Architect Paul Gerhardt, to be erected at 5130 West Madison street. It will cost $50,000 and contain stores and ten apartments.

WOODLAWN 30 FLAT BUILDING SOLD.

Oscar C. Hagen has sold the thirty flats at 6022-30 Kenwood avenue, lot 100x177, to Forrest A. Sholes for an indicated $97,500, subject to $60,000.

New Postal Station to Be Built on South State

Uncle Sam, who for some reason seems to balk at building his own postal stations, will lease the new building at 2213-21 South State street, to be erected by L. M. Smith and B. W. Frank from plans by Architect Alfred S. Alschuler. It will be known as the 22dd Street Postal station and will cost with equipment $85,000. It will 22d Street Postal station and will be 110x125. It will be completed in about three months.

NATIONAL HAT CHAIN STORES TO OPEN SIX SHOPS IN CHICAGO

Five of Chicago's big outlying sections and the loop will have one shop each of a new concern, the Chain Stores company of Cincinnati, O., as the result of the signing of six leases through Seymour Marks aggregating $559,000 in rentals.

The Chain Stores company is a manufacturer and retailer of men's hats and caps, recently organized. The plan is to cover the entire country. The Chicago shops will be in the Wilson avenue district, Englewood, South Chicago, Milwaukee avenue, Roosevelt road, and the loop.

The downtown store will be at 62 West Madison street and will open Sept. 1. The 3,600 square feet of floor space was leased for five years at a term rental of $120,000.

At 4745 Broadway 3,500 square feet were rented for ten years from Oct. 1 at a term rental of $69,500. At 3301 Roosevelt road, corner Spaulding avenue, 4,000 square feet on the first and second floors, were leased for ten years from Sept. 1, at a total rental of $105,500. The South Chicago store will be at 3009 East 92d street, corner Commercial, and was leased for two years from Oct. 1 at a total rental of $12,500.

The Englewood shop will be at 6349 South Halsted street, where a three story building was leased for twenty-five years from May, 1922, at a term rental of $237,000. At 1091 Milwaukee avenue 2,500 square feet were leased for three and a half years from Sept. 1 at a total rental of $14,500.

In all of the six leases only part of the space will be used, the balance subleased. Mr. Marks represented all parties in the six deals.

Realty Notes

THOMAS A. LOWERY, for several years head of the financial and real estate advertising department of THE TRIBUNE, and Joseph A. Holpuch, building contractor, have organized the firm of Holpush & Lowery, with offices in the Conway building, and will handle Chicago subdivision property and do a general real estate business. At present they have Addison gardens, at Addison and North Austin avenues, and Willow Park, at Ogden avenue and West 35th street, two large subdivisions. The brokerage department of Holpuch & Lowery will be open for business about the middle of September.

Hanson C. Wheeler, formerly with McKey & Pogue; A. H. Shindler, E. Vinje, and George Sanders have formed the real estate firm of Shindler & Co., and will have offices at 7425 Stony Island avenue which will be open for business probably in six weeks.

The Real Estate Management corporation has been organized with main offices in room 727 of the Conway building, by Richard M. Johnson, of the R. M. Johnson company; Theodore C. Butz, of Lackner, Butz & Co., and Raymond L. Redheffer, vice president of the Security, and Second Security banks. The corporation has taken over the business of the R. M. Johnson company. Mr. Johnson will be in active charge as vice president and general manager.

The Beesley & Kirmaier Bond and Mortgage company has been organized with a capital of $25,000 to handel the bond and mortgage department of the firm of Beesley & Kirmier, realtors. Ralph H. Beesley is president.

The Schmidt Brothers Construction company has moved to its own building at 22 East Huron street. New phone is Superior 6428.

The Hool Realty company announces its appointment as agent for the Wells building, an eight story office structure at 120-22 North Wells street; the seven story Clayton building at 311 River street, and the seven story Kearney building at 325 South Wabash avenue. The Hool company during July was appointed agent for fourteen apartment buildings.

ASK REALTY HEAD TO HELP SOLVE BUILDING PUZZLE

IRVING B. HIETT.

In a fresh attempt to answer the question — "what's wrong with the building situation?" — several national associations of builders and material men have approached the new president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, Irving B. Hiett of Toledo, O., and asked the coöperation of the realtors in trying to solve the problem.

"It's a hopeful sign," said President Hiett, who spent several days recently at the national association's headquarters in the Consumers' building in sessions with the advisory committee, "when organizations of this kind ask for our coöperation. I feel that something concrete will result from such getting together."

Mr. Hiett is not only a realtor but is a builder. He has built more than 7,500 homes in Toledo. He is president of the Irving B. Hiett company and there are seventeen different building corporations which operate through his office.

The new offices of the national realty association, several floors above their old quarters at 220 South State street, contain 2,000 sq. ft., giving Secretary Tom Ingersoll, Publicity Director Don Goss and their staff much more space than they had.

Globe Mills Start Work on Five Story Warehouse

The Globe Mills, one of the oldest wallpaper firms in Chicago, are erecting another five story warehouse at 4856-64 South Halsted street, from plans by Architects Ludgin & Leviton, to cost $50,000. When completed, around Oct. 15, the building will not only fill the present requirements of the owners, but will leave about 30,000 square feet for rent for warehousing or manufacturing purposes.

The TRIBUNE IS FIRST IN CHICAGO

The Sunday Tribune has 89,000 more circulation in Chicago and suburbs than any other paper!

A CERTAIN Chicago evening paper, which in July had 89,000 LESS circulation in Chicago and suburbs than The Sunday Tribune, advertises that its 360,832 copies are "bought and taken home," so that it is read by 7 out of 9 of the English readers of the community.

THIS "EVENING" paper is printed in seven editions—those before two o'clock composing more than one-half of the total circulation. Many people buy more than one edition. Various members of the same family buy copies of the same "evening" paper. Many copies of the early editions are bought only to be thrown away.

CONTRAST this with The Sunday Tribune—one Tribune to a home, all arriving at the home at the beginning of a day of leisure—of reading. If this "evening" paper reaches 7 out of 9 of the English reading people in Chicago and suburbs with 360,632 copies, then the 450,723 Sunday Tribunes (July city and suburbs figures) must reach MORE than ALL of the English readers of this community.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE prints three times as much advertising per issue as the evening paper, and The Daily and Sunday Tribune combined print one-third of all the newspaper advertising in Chicago—confirming the statement that The Tribune is FIRST in Chicago.

How The Tribune Blankets Chicago

These maps of Chicago and leading suburbs tell a remarkable story of the domination of a great market by one great medium. The Sunday Tribune has 85% more circulation in Chicago and suburbs than the next Sunday paper, and 20% more than the leading evening paper.

On the map to the left each dot represents 500 families in the district or suburb in which it appears. On the map to the right each dot represents 500 Sunday Tribunes sold in the district or suburb in which it appears. In every sense of the word The Tribune "co-vers" Chicago.

The 48 Chicago districts on this map are those into which this great city has been divided by The Tribune for merchandising purposes. The suburbs shown are Evanston, Oak Park, Forest Park, River Forest, Maywood, Cicero, Berwyn, Riverside, Brookfield and La Grange.

Those familiar with Chicago will recognise that the number of Tribunes practically corresponds with the number of families in all the better residential sections and that considerable numbers of Tribunes are bought even in the poorer districts, inhabited largely by foreigners.
